Secretary—Mr. Robert Gracie.
Office—11, Bothwell-street, Glasgow.
London Agents—Messrs. Richard Smith and Co., 19, Southampton-row, Holborn, W.C.
ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.
The Company is formed for the purpose (1) of purchasing the magnificent block of buildings recently erected, with frontages to Hope-street, Bothwell-street, and Waterloo-street, immediately facing the New Central Station of the Caledonian Railway, Glasgow, and which comprise, in addition to the premises designed for the hotel, a number of noble and commodious shops, with elegant suites of offices on the entresol, first and second floors. An arcade, with shops on either side, entering from Hope-street, immediately opposite the railway station, occupies the centre portion of the buildings, and extends from Bothwell-street to Waterloo-street, having shops of a superior kind on both sides and at either end; (2) of furnishing, fitting up, and carrying on the hotel.
The property is freehold, and is situate in the centre of the business part of Glasgow. The Caledonian Railway is the leading thoroughfare from Glasgow to the South, connecting with the London and North-Western Railway at Carlisle.
The building is of noble and commanding elevation, and built from designs by and under the supervision of the eminent architects Messrs. Peddie and Kinnear, of Edinburgh.
A survey of the property has been made by the well-known hotel and property valuators, Messrs. Richard Smith and Co., 19, Southampton-row, W.C., and copies of their report may be seen in their hands, or at the office of the Company's Solicitors.
A provisional agreement has been entered into, whereby the Company has the opportunity of acquiring, from the present proprietors, the whole block of buildings, with the freehold, for the sum of £170,000, about two-thirds of the amount actually expended on it, and of which it is intended that £125,000 shall remain permanently on mortgage at 4½ per cent., which rate will probably be speedily reduced. Under these exceptionally favourable circumstances it is estimated that a paid-up capital of £75,000 will be amply sufficient for the purposes of the Company, and that a dividend of 10 per cent. will be immediately secured, while a still larger profit will be realized as the property is developed.
The hotel accommodation is most complete in every respect, and comprises over 100 bed rooms, private sitting rooms, and noble public rooms adapted for an extensive and high-class trade.
Plans and description of the buildings, the estimated cost of fitting and furnishing, and every detail of the undertaking, may be investigated at the offices of the London agents.
The only contract made on behalf of the Company is one for the acquisition of the property, dated 8th April, 1881, a copy of which, and of the articles of association, may be seen at the office of the solicitors, or of Messrs. Richard Smith and Co., 19, Southampton-row, Holborn, W.C., where also, as well as from the Secretary, prospectuses and forms of application may be obtained.
No promotion money has been or will be paid to any one.
If no allotment is made the money paid on application will be returned in full.

THE PARCHERRY INDIAN GOLD MINING COMPANY (Limited), South-east Wynaad, Madras Presidency.
The South Indian Gold Mining Company, whose estates immediately adjoin, have already declared their first dividend of £20 per cent. Incorporated under the Companies Acts, whereby the liability of the shareholders is limited to the amount of their shares. Capital £150,000, in shares of £1 each, of which 50,000 shares are taken as part payment by the vendor. The Directors will apply as soon as practicable for a settlement and official quotation on the Stock Exchange. Payable as follows:—2s. 6d. on application, 5s. on allotment, and 5s. in six weeks after allotment, and the balance as may be required, in calls of 2s. 6d. per share, with not less than one month's notice thereof.
In his official report to the Government, confined to the Gold Mines of the Wynaad and Carcoor Ghat, Mr. Brough Smyth writes (page 33):—"The workings, indeed, may be said to extend from Hadiabetta to Parcherry-hill, and the reef at the latter is probably one of the same series which has been so largely mined at Glenrock."
"The formation of the country in this locality, except that the hills are loftier, is similar to that generally observed in this tract, and the facilities for carrying on extensive mining operations are very great.
"There is, perhaps, no part of the Wynaad where there is a surer prospect of developing prosperous mines than here, and a very small expenditure of labour would suffice to ascertain accurately the extent and value of the reefs."
DIRECTORS.
Sir William Smith, Bart., Director of the Michipicoton Native Copper Company (Limited).
John Skinner, Esq. (late Manager Oriental Bank, Bombay), 2, Beaumont-crescent, West Kensington, W.
*Col. Henry Day, late Military Storekeeper, Bengal (now temporarily in the Wynaad).

Secretary (pro tem.)—Walter Dunlop, Esq. (late Municipal Auditor, Colombo).
Agents in India.—Messrs. Peirce, Leslie, and Co., Calicut, Cochin, and Tellicherry.
Offices—16, Tokenhouse-yard, E.C.
*This gentleman being on the spot, it is proposed to instruct him to take over the property on behalf of the Company, and at once commence operations.
PROSPECTUS.
The Company is formed to purchase an extensive estate, known as Holme's Application, situate in South-east Wynaad, Malabar, Southern India, bounded on the north by A. Wright's land, on the south by the well-known Caroline and Adeline Estates of the South Indian Gold Mining Company, and also bounded by the Yellambullay Estate, part of the property held by the Indian Gold Mines Company (Limited) of Glasgow, the lower slopes of Parcherry-hill forming the boundary on the south-west.—(Vide map accompanying the prospectus.)
The estate consists of about two hundred and ninety-nine acres, and is held in perpetuity from the Government of India by a grant under the Waste Lands Rules, subject to a nominal rental of rupees 533, annas 1, and pies 5 (about £50) per annum, with the option of conversion at any time into freehold by a payment of about rupees 13,327, 3 annas, and 5 pies, equal to about £1,300 (thirteen hundred pounds).
The title has been submitted to Mr. J. D. Mayne, late Advocate-General of Madras, and declared by him to convey the surface and mining rights absolutely and in perpetuity over the whole area, which, having regard to the recent Government restrictions limiting grants of mining areas to thirty acres only, and to complications which have arisen in reference to titles of other properties, places this Company altogether in an exceptionally favourable position.
Mr. G. E. Withers, Mining Agent (a gentleman prominently referred to by Mr. Brough Smyth), in his detailed report, dated 14th January, 1881, on Holme's application, writes:—"And is adjoining the property of the South Indian Gold Mining Company (that is making such rapid progress and has given such very good results) possesses, in my opinion, great facilities and every requisite for gold working. It contains, as far as present investigation goes, three distinct bodies of auriferous stone, one of which, however, cannot be implicitly relied on as being a very great depth, as it has been but slightly opened." And again, "There can be no question whatever regarding the value of this property, the more so when its proximity to the above-mentioned claim (the South Indian Gold Mining Company, Limited) is considered, several of whose reefs cannot but pass through it." And finally, "I may, in conclusion, remark that there are other outcrops which have not been opened or worked, owing, as I have before stated, to press of time."
For the supply of timber for mining purposes, attention is drawn to the heavy forest on the estate.
Mr. Withers' full report, and the detailed Government survey plan of the estate, showing the strike of the several reefs, &c., can be seen at the offices of the Company.
Mr. Brough Smyth's report to the Government was, it should be remembered, confined to the Wynaad and the Carcoor Ghat as distinct from other parts of India, and the high premiums the shares of several companies command, whose properties are situate immediately in South-East Wynaad, is very significant, for instance—
Indian Gold Mines of Glasgow, £10 shares have been recently quoted at about £55, or 450 per cent. premium.
South Indian, £1 shares have been recently quoted at about £3, or 200 per cent premium.
Devala Moyar, £1 shares have been recently quoted at about £2 10s., or 150 per cent. premium.
Indian Glenrock, £1 shares have been recently quoted at about £2, or 100 per cent. premium.
South-East Wynaad, £1 shares have been recently quoted at about £1 10s., or 50 per cent. premium.
The situation of these mines relatively to the property acquired can easily be seen by a reference to the map.
Recent assays of nine different samples (see Echo newspaper of the 7th January, 1881), taken by the South Indian Gold Mining Company (Limited), from depths of 80ft. and 170ft. below the surface, have given an average of 1½ ounces per ton of quartz, thus fully confirming at depth, in this immediate locality, the following Government note on Mr. Brough Smyth's report, as regards surface samples only, viz.:—
"If we omit the altogether exceptional sample from Wright's Level, which gave 204½oz. per ton, and the picked specimens from the same workings, which gave 25½oz. per ton, we get 88 samples, yielding an average of 1oz. 8dwts. 22grs. of gold per ton."
Mr. C. J. Harvey (late Manager of the Clunes Works of the Port Phillip Mining Company of Australia), in his report dated 3d September, 1879, on the Caroline and Adeline Estates (adjoining the property acquired), estimates the yield from some of the samples even as high as "8 to 10 ounces of gold per ton of quartz," and Mr. Oliver Pegler, reporting 31st October, 1879, "thinks the Caroline and Adeline veins may be classed among the most productive." It has been estimated by Mr. Brough Smyth that 100 stamp heads, crushing 250 tons per diem only, and giving an average of only 10dwts. to the ton, would return £68,000 per annum, and that any one reef was capable of such return.
Mr. J. W. Minchin, well known in connexion with the estates of the Devala-Moyar Company, writing from Ootacamund, 23d January, 1879, referring to the Yellambullay land of the Wynaad Gold Prospecting Company, since transferred to the Indian Gold Mines Company, Glasgow, says:—
"Mr. Brough Smyth and Mr. Laing are more taken with it than with anything they have seen in Wynaad," and that "he would prefer to work that than even Wright's Level on the Alpha, where such fine specimens have been found."
Thus, the mining area, in the centre of which these estates are situate (vide map accompanying prospectus) has been reported upon by the following well-known mining engineers of recognized position and standing, who one and all concur in its brilliant future and its facilities for economical and successful working:—
Mr. Brough Smyth, late Government Engineer and late Inspector of Mines, Victoria, Australia, and now Engineer to the Devala-Moyar Company.
Mr. Oliver Pegler, Associate Royal School of Mines, and late Engineer to the South-East Wynaad Company.
Mr. C. J. Harvey, late Manager Clunes Works of the Port Phillip Mining Company of Australia.
Mr. H. A. Severn, F.R.G.S., Resident Mining Engineer of the Indian Gold Mines Company (Limited), of Glasgow.
Mr. Thomas Laing, M.E., late Assistant to Mr. Brough Smyth when in the service of the Government.
Experience has shown that mines yielding large masses of gold from pockets are unreliable, one of the special features of the Wynaad Gold district is that, in the opinion of experts, there exists immense quantities of stone with gold permeating more or less throughout, rendering results far more equable from year to year and dependent more upon the number of stamp heads at work. The speculation being thus very much narrowed to a question of the application of modern machinery, &c.
Reference to the list enclosed with the prospectus of Foreign and Colonial Dividend Mines as prepared by Mr. Edward Ashmead, of Drapers'-gardens, will show the enormous returns yielded by some foreign mines, and the list of Indian Mining Companies recently formed, which appeared in the Mining World of the 19th March, 1881, sufficiently confirms the wide-spread interest attaching to this new industry, such tables assessing the amount already subscribed to develop these resources at nearly three millions sterling.
It is not therefore necessary to enlarge upon the facts; suffice it, that this particular locality is now ascertained, beyond doubt, to contain numerous auriferous deposits. Tract after tract of land has been eagerly bought up. Capital is being daily subscribed to develop the mines, and it is only reasonable to assume that large fortunes may be realized by the early possessors of properties in or near South-East Wynaad.
The vendor to the Company is the promoter thereof, and has himself fixed the purchase money at £98,000—£50,000 in shares and £48,000 in cash. The said vendor undertaking to defray all expenses of every kind whatsoever incidental to or incurred by him in the formation of the Company up to allotment; upon allotment the Company will contribute 2 per cent. on the capital towards such expenses.
The following contracts have been entered into, and applicants for shares will be permitted to inspect the same at the offices of the Solicitor of the Company—viz., one dated the 13th day of April, 1881, and made between Peirce Leslie and Company as agents for and on behalf of William Turton Holmes and Edwin Harton Stonehewer, of the first part, the said Peirce Leslie and Company of the second part, and W. J. Smith, of the third part (under which the vendor acquired his interest in the property), and one dated the 28th day of April, 1881, and made between W. J. Smith, of the one part, and Walter Dunlop, of the other part, as a trustee for and on behalf of the Company, being the agreement for sale to the Company.
Applications for shares can be made upon the accompanying form, and in the event of no allotment being made, the amount paid on application will be returned in full.

THE SOUTH POLGOOTH CONSOLS (Limited). Capital £65,000, in 65,000 shares of £1 each, of which 15,000 are reserved as part payment to the vendor, and the balance of 50,000 is now offered for subscription at par, payable as follows:—2s. 6d. on application, 7s. 6d. on allotment, and 10s. on the 1st June, 1881.

Report on Superior Quality of Tin.—Carwedras Tin Smelting Works, Truro, Cornwall, May 3d, 1881.—South Polgooth Consols.—We have pleasure in stating that the parcels of Black Tin purchased by us from the above mine during the last six months have realized more than the average market price of the day, owing to the good quality and high produce of the tin. (Signed) Daubuz and Co.
Important Telegrams from Mine.
Telegram, May 3d.—A new lode cut quite full of tin not seen before—splendidly rich.
Telegram, May 4th.—Lode recently struck has greatly improved today. Have been hauling nearly solid tin stuff.
ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.
This Company is formed for the purchase and further developing of a valuable and extensive mineral property, now being worked as a going concern.
The sett covers an area of nearly a square mile. It is bounded on the north-east by the Great Polgooth, which is stated to have returned £500,000 in profits, and on the west by Great Hewas and St. Austell Consols, likewise stated to have paid in dividends over £400,000 and £300,000 respectively.
The mine being in working condition, the Directors consider that it only requires for full development the erection of 100 to 150 stamps, and another engine of larger dimensions.
The Directors are advised, and believe that, after deducting all charges for raising, crushing, and sampling, there will remain an average profit of about £25 per ton.
It is estimated that the additional stamps, when in full work, will enable about 100 tons to be prepared monthly.
From the day the Company takes the property over, tin can be got into the market for sale immediately.
Full prospectuses can be obtained at the offices of the Company, or from the Bankers, Solicitors, and Brokers.
Application for shares may be made by letter, and sent to the Secretary, as follows:—
To the Directors of "The South Polgooth Consols (Limited)."
Gentlemen,—I enclose cheque (or P.O.O.) for ______, being a deposit of 2s. 6d. per share, and request that you will allot me (state number) shares of £1 each in your Company, and I hereby agree to accept same, or any smaller number which you may allot me, and I agree to make all payments thereon.

Guaranteed interest 10 per cent. during development.—The Agra Bank (Limited) are authorized to receive subscriptions for 86,667 shares of £1 each of THE INDIAN KINGSTON and SANDHURST GOLD MINING COMPANY (Limited). Capital £130,000, in 130,000 shares of £1 each, of which 43,333 are reserved as part payment under the contract for purchase, being the full number which can be allotted as fully-paid shares, the rules of the London Stock Exchange requiring that two-thirds of the shares of a company shall be allotted to the public. Payment as follows:—2s. on application, 8s. on allotment, and balance six weeks after allotment.
Guarantee of Interest during Development.—Upon the completion of the transfer of the property, the sum of £19,500 will be deposited, in the joint names of the two trustees, at the Bankers' of the Company, to guarantee the punctual payment of interest at the minimum rate of 10 per cent. per annum upon the amounts paid up on the shares for 18 months from the date of allotment.
As before the expiration of this period it is anticipated that the mines will be returning large profits, it has been stipulated that whatever profit is earned by the mining operations of the Company, during any portion of the first 18 months shall be in the first place applied to reimburse any previous payments out of such guarantee fund, any remaining profits being divisible amongst the shareholders.
The properties acquired by this Company adjoin and are immediately surrounded by the following mines of the Devalah District:—The South Indian Gold Mines, the Indian Gold Mines of Glasgow, the Indian Glenrock Mines, the Indian Phœnix Mines, the Rhodes Reef Mines, the Devala Moyar Mines, and the South-East Wynaad Mines, the shares of all which companies are at premiums ranging from 50 to 400 per cent.
The quartz contains a large proportion of gold.
Reports have been made upon the property by Mr. Oliver Pegler, Associate Royal School of Mines, and Mr. John Harris, Mining Engineer. It has also been referred to in favourable terms, in his official report, by Mr. R. Brough Smyth.
Upon the reports of these gentlemen most of the above-named properties have been purchased.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.
This Company is formed for the purpose of purchasing the Kingston and Sandhurst Estates, in the South Wynaad District, consisting of about 270 acres, and to work and extract the gold from the numerous quartz reefs which traverse them. The property is held under leases which have about 48 years to run from the year 1878, free from all royalties, subject to the payment of small annual rents.
Mr. Brough Smyth, reporting to the Government, referring to the auriferous reefs and native workings near Devala, remarks:—"In those places where there are enormous bodies of quartz exposed at the surface, the old native workings are extensive. The most striking examples of this remarkable occurrence of what must have been highly auriferous quartz, where the reefs exhibit their greatest thickness, are to be found on the Sandhurst (one of the estates of this Company), and on the Elizabeth and Strathearn Estates, and at Konambant."
Mr. Oliver Pegler says that "the principal reefs on the adjoining Elizabeth Estate of the South-East Wynaad Company continue direct into the Sandhurst and Kingston Estates," and
Mr. Brough Smyth, referring to one of these reefs (the Dawson), says:—"The quartz was found to be full of pyrites, and gold was visible in some of the pieces," and in his report to the Moyar Coffee Company of 29th March, he states that some of the reefs in the now celebrated Maryland and Strathearn Estates (distant about a quarter of a mile) extend into this Company's property. The Rhodes reef is on these estates. It embraces only 50 acres, and has recently been sold for £130,000, whereas this property, which contains about five times that area, and is equally rich and valuable, is offered for £91,500 only.
Mr. Harris states in his special report upon this property, that quartz, which he had taken haphazard and unselected from it gave a very good show of gold when washed, yet, he adds, "I set more value on the fact of the ancient miners and Koorumbers having worked the reefs so very extensively near the surface, and as deep as they could go with their rude appliances. As to the quantity of gold the reefs contain, depend upon it these people did not dig that ground over, and turn the place inside out and upside down for nothing. This to me is the best guarantee that the reefs must contain gold in paying quantities"
Access.—There is a good road on the property leading to the town of Calicut, on the sea coast, distant about 70 miles, also to Ootacamund and other towns. The altitude is over 3,000 feet. The water supply is ample for all purposes. Timber is abundant in the neighbouring forest of Glenrock, distant about three miles. Labour is plentiful and cheap. The climate is healthy and agrees well with Europeans.
During the last fortnight rumours have been received of the first crushing of the reefs in the first formed companies in this district which has caused the shares of the various companies, already at high premiums, to advance a further 20 to 200 per cent.
Immediately adjoining, as these estates do, those of the South Indian (Trevelyan) and South-East Wynaad Companies on the north and east, being within a few hundred yards of the Indian Gold Mines of Glasgow, Rhodes Reef, Devala Moyar, Indian Phœnix and Glenrock Gold Companies, the shares of all of which are at present quoted at premiums ranging from 50 to 400 per cent., and intersected as they are, according to Messrs. Brough Smyth, Oliver Pegler, and Harris, by many magnificent reefs, the Directors have every confidence that the mines of the Kingston and Sandhurst Estates will before long take a very high rank among those of the now celebrated Wynaad district.
The Directors propose to carry on mining operations upon a considerable scale, and to gradually extend them from time to time. They will also take an early opportunity, which will probably present itself when crushing is commenced in some of the adjoining mines, now in an advanced stage of development, of selling one of the reefs, by which operation it is not unlikely that the whole of the original capital may be returned, as in the case of the Rhodes Reef, and the bulk of the property still remain in the hands of the shareholders. The profits expected to be obtained by the various Indian Gold Mines have been estimated at from about 50 to 100 per cent. The Directors of this Company, in holding forth expectations of dividends to the shareholders, without going into intricate calculations and figures, will only submit that their prospects are as good as those of any Indian Gold Mining Company that has yet been offered to the public, and, compared with many, the price they are paying for these estates is moderate.
The following agreements have been entered into, viz.:—
An agreement dated the 28th day of January, 1881, and made between W. G. Hunter of the one part, and Henry Duncan of the other part; an agreement, dated the 4th day of April, 1881, between Jeremyiah Ryan of the one part and the said Henry Duncan of the other part; and an agreement dated the 23d day of April, 1881, and made between the said Henry Duncan of the one part, Frank Wilson of the second part, and Walter R. Burgess, for and on behalf of the Company, of the third part.
A large extent of the surface of the estates is now under cultivation as coffee plantations, &c., and is estimated to produce an immediate rental of £1,500 per annum.
The above agreements, together with the Memorandum and Articles of Association, can be inspected at the offices of the Solicitors of the Company.
The shares will be allotted in strict proportion to the number applied for.
After the shares have been allotted a Stock-Exchange settlement will be applied for.
Prospectuses and forms of application for shares can be obtained at the offices of the Company, and from the Bankers, Brokers, and Solicitors. By order,
Dated 27th April, 1881. WALTER R. BURGESS, Secretary.

THE HARZER NATURAL MINERAL WATER COMPANY (Limited). ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.
This Company is formed to purchase the concession of the famous Mineral Well known as the Harzer Sauerbrunnen, together with the buildings, implements, leases, licences, goodwill, railroad, stock, &c., and also to work the said Well, and carry on the business connected therewith. The Well is situate near the town of Goslar, at the foot of the Hartz Mountains, and is declared, after careful analysis by Professor Fresenius, of Wiesbaden, and by Dr. Treumann, of Hanover, to be of pure alkaline, muriatic quality. The business has been successfully carried on by the vendor since the discovery of the Well in 1875, but it is necessary to enlarge the sphere of operations 298,560 bottles were sold in 1877; 455,090 in 1878; 700,609 in 1879; and 1,200,000 in 1880. Large orders have been received this year from different parts of the world, and a shipment of 65,000 bottles has been made lately to New York, to be followed by at least the same quantity monthly.
This natural mineral water, besides possessing chemical, dietetic, and invigorating qualities superior to any other similar water, and being especially recommended by the medical faculty for diseases of the mucous membrane, for chronic catarrh, for cases of impaired digestion, and for gouty and rheumatic symptoms, is also pleasant to the palate, being entirely free from the soapy, saline taste so often found.
The profits derivable from the sale are very large, and it is estimated that a handsome dividend will be secured in the first year. The chief cost is in bottling, and this can be done for the low sum of £3,646 per million half-litres, the selling price of that quantity at the works being over £10,000.
The contracts may be seen at the Solicitor's offices, and the full prospectuses, with forms of application and numerous medical testimonials, may be obtained from the Secretary. In the absence of one of these forms, it will suffice to send a letter, giving the name in full, the occupation, address, and number of shares desired, with a deposit of 1s. per share. If no allotment is made the deposits will be returned in full.

THE HARZER NATURAL MINERAL WATER COMPANY (Limited).—The water may be obtained of all chemists, grocers, and provision dealers; but, if any difficulty be experienced, a letter or post card addressed to Mr. F. A. Abraham, the Manager, at the Central Stores, 135, London-wall, London, E.C., will receive prompt attention. A sample case of fifty bottles will be despatched, carriage free, on receipt of a remittance of 21s.

THE HARZER NATURAL MINERAL WATER COMPANY (Limited).—APPLICATION for SHARES can also be made by letter to the undersigned, accompanied by a remittance of 1s. per share. By order, H. M. WEBSTER, Secretary.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.
THE ANGLO-AMERICAN BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHT CORPORATION (Limited). Capital, £800,000; first issue, £400,000. Victoria Works, Belvedere-road, and Vine-street, Lambeth.
The Corporation is prepared to give estimates, and to book orders for the supply of machinery and lamps, upon the Brush System, for lighting up factories, warehouses, railway stations, docks, streets, &c.
The Corporation is also prepared to receive applications for licences, or for concessions for defined districts, and to enter into negotiations with responsible parties for the sale of licences for the British Colonies. The superiority of the Brush system in economy and simplicity being thoroughly established, its rapid development is now assured.
By the Brush system any number of lights from 1 to 40, each of 2,000 candle power, or any number from 1 to 12, each of 6,000 candle power, or a single light of 50,000 or more candle power, can be produced from one dynamo machine. The connecting wires may be extended over circuits of many miles, and it is claimed that economy, constancy, and simplicity are secured at a less cost than by any other system.
All enquiries to be addressed to the Secretary, at the temporary offices, 74, Hatton-garden, London, E.C.

The Subscription List will Close on Thursday, the 12th May, 1881, for London, and Friday, 13th instant, for the country.—Mr. Spencer Rolfe, C.E., M.I.M.E., in the accompanying report, estimates the annual profits at £78,600, or over 78 per cent. per annum on the whole capital. Mr. R. Symons, M.E., and Mineral Surveyor, reports:—"To exhaust the lode will require centuries of the labour of a very large staff of miners upon these extensive and rich mineral lands." Mr. William Tamblyn, Manager of the Winford Iron Ore and Ochre Mines, says:—"I consider these to be the very richest mines I ever worked in, the lodes are numerous and continue through the whole sett, which is very extensive." Captain Stephen Richards says:—"I have known the Shepherds Wheal Rose Mines and neighbourhood for the last 30 years, and I consider your property is one of the very best setts of mines in the whole of Cornwall." Captain Charles Oates, of Calstock, reports:—"I can strongly recommend the United Shepherds Wheal Rose Mines to intending investors as likely to prove a very profitable undertaking to the shareholders." The Mining Journal, in the enclosed extract, says:—"From the character of the undertaking and its great prospect of success, no doubt is entertained as to the amount of profit which will result."

THE UNITED SHEPHERDS WHEAL ROSE (Limited). Incorporated under the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1880, by which the liability of shareholders is limited to the amount of their shares. Capital £100,000, in 100,000 shares of £1 each, of which 90,000 are offered for subscription. Payment to be made as follows:—1s. on application, 5s. on allotment, and the balance as required in calls of not more than 5s. per share. All deposits will be returned in full where no allotment is made.

PROSPECTUS.
This Company has been formed for the purpose of purchasing and working a series of mines, secured by grants or concessions from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England and the Duchy of Cornwall, in the richest silver lead mining district in Cornwall. The property comprises the mines known as Wheal Anna, East Wheal Anna, Engelly, and Wheal Albert, forming one of the most extensive mineral properties in the county.
It is considered that the following report of Mr. Spencer Rolfe sufficiently embraces all the necessary details respecting the property to be acquired and the prospects of the Company's success.
Report of Spencer Rolfe, Esq., C.E., M.I.M.E., &c.
5, Westminster-chambers, Victoria-street, 19th April, 1881.
Gentlemen,—I have carefully examined the extensive area embraced in the several setts comprising these mines, and I have pleasure in reporting thereon as follows:—
Preliminary Statement.
I have deemed it necessary in the first place to satisfy myself as to the reason why mines apparently possessing so many natural facilities for economical working have not been more fully developed, and maintaining a profitable yield at the present time. From personal evidences, from acquaintance with the former lessees of the property, and from reliable statements made to me by persons who have a life-long knowledge of these mines, I can unhesitatingly state that the fact of the various lodes remaining undeveloped is entirely due to the unscientific method of working so general in the district. This want of systematic working is more fully exemplified in the case of the mines in question than in any others within my experience, either in England or abroad. To this cause, and to this alone, I consider I am fully justified in attributing the undeveloped condition of these mines.
General Description.
This property, which forms one of the largest combined setts in the locality, is situate in the parish of Perranzabuloe, about five and three-quarter miles from Truro, in Cornwall, and that it is very extensive may be judged from the fact that, from east to west on the line of the main lodes, the length is about one and three-quarter miles, while the greatest breadth from north to south is nearly one mile and a half. The surface is for the most part undulating, moderately so near the north and north-eastern boundary, but falling very rapidly from the centre to the west and south, where there are several deep valleys, with contours of high inclination. This sett is surrounded by the best lead mines yet discovered in the county. It lies immediately to the north of West Chiverton, which has yielded very large profits, and west of East Wheal Rose, Cargoll, and the disputed property of Sir C. Hawkins and Old Shepherd's Mine, all of which have given large profits upon the same lodes which continue through this property. The various mining setts embraced are Wheal Anna, East Wheal Anna, Wheal Albert, and Engelly sett, all of which, with the exception of the latter, have been proved to have valuable lodes running through them; while in the Engelly sett, which is virtually virgin ground, there is strong evidence to show that it will prove as productive, if not more so, than the other portions.
Wheal Albert.
Two main lodes, running almost due east and west, together with two, and possibly three caunter lodes, running in a direction almost at right angles to the main lodes, have been proved by shallow workings upon this sett. There is every evidence to show that the main lodes are a continuation of those so profitably worked in the North Shepherd's Mine, and any doubt that might have arisen as to their productiveness upon the Wheal Albert sett is entirely removed by the evidence procured from the workings which have been carried out upon them. The old engine shaft, which is sunk upon or near to the most northern main lode to the depth of about 100 fathoms, has proved the lode to average four feet in width at this point. A small shaft, a short distance east has been sunk to a depth of about 28 fathoms, and a level has been driven eastward from this shaft at a depth of about 12 fathoms from the surface, and for a length of some 60 or 70 fathoms, with a ventilating shaft at the end. The lode throughout this length maintained its average width, and produced considerable quantities of copper, blende, and argentiferous lead. This level, together with some others immediately adjoining, have been drained by an adit level running from a depth, I believe, of 27 fathoms below the surface, and terminating slightly above the bed of the stream near the northern boundary of the sett. The lodes in this portion of the property have a good underlie, and are of a very good workable nature. As a proof of their exceptionable richness at so shallow a depth, I may state that I have the evidence of a miner who maintained himself for a considerable period solely by re-working the heaps of debris cast out in sinking shallow shafts sunk upon the lodes. Taking into consideration the fact that two, and possibly three, cross lodes traverse this portion of the property in addition to those already mentioned, I feel assured that, with but small expenditure, it would be possible to raise from five hundred to seven hundred tons of lead ore per month from this sett alone. It is exceedingly probable that some of the caunter lodes are a continuation of those which prove so remunerative in West Chiverton.
Wheal Anna Sett and East Wheal Anna Sett.
Three main lodes have been proved to traverse these setts, and there is very strong evidence to show that a fourth exists, but has not been proved. These, I have reason to believe, are in continuation with those of the Old Shepherd's Mine, and in addition to these it is probable that the Main East Wheal Rose Lode traverses some portion of East Wheal Anna, but of this I have no positive proof beyond the fact of a lode having been cross cut by an adit driven from the southern boundary, which gave evidences of the special character of this lode. From the western boundary of the property near Perran Well, an adit has been driven for nearly eight hundred fathoms, and following the course of the most southern of the main lodes. The end of this adit is at the boundary between Wheal Anna and East Wheal Anna, where it attains a depth of some 30 fathoms below the surface. A shaft has been sunk at this point, and at nine fathoms in depth a level has been driven for a considerable distance northward, cross cutting three of the main lodes. Northward of the course of the deep adit, and parallel with it is driven a shallow adit at a depth, I believe, of some 12 or 15 fathoms below the surface. The deep adit has, by extreme negligence, been allowed to fall in in places, and has therefore flooded the whole of the workings above the point of stoppage, rendering it impossible to examine them, and to procure samples of the ore in situ. I have, however, obtained some very good samples of the produce of these lodes by having the burrows round the shallow shafts opened out, and further, I have had an excavation made upon the course of one of the lodes which was found at a depth of only nine feet below the surface, and showed every evidence of being rich and workable. From this portion of the property I have procured samples of copper, lead, and zinc ores of exceptional richness. It will be readily understood that by clearing out and rendering secure the deep adit the whole of the lodes upon this portion of the property can be worked out to a depth of 30 fathoms below the surface, and if we assume the aggregate length of the lodes to be two thousand five hundred fathoms, and that they shall yield for this depth the very moderate quantity of eight tons per fathom, there would be a yield of over two hundred and eighty thousand pounds (£280,000) worth of ore, without the expenditure of any capital whatever for pumping engines and cost of working the same.
Engelly Sett.
As I have previously stated, this sett is almost entirely virgin ground, but in one or two cases it has been proved that the lodes traverse it undiminished in richness, and I have reason to believe in addition to the lodes traversing the adjoining setts there are others which from their position and associations may prove to be even more profitable.
Cross Courses.
In addition to the lodes mentioned as traversing the three last setts, and upon which the above estimate has been based, there are several cross courses rich in minerals, and proved caunter lodes from which large returns may be anticipated.
Economy of Working.
It will be seen that from the natural configuration of the surface, from the favourable underlie of the lodes, from their character, and from the faults which have raised them to favourable positions, that this group of mines offers facilities for economy of working far superior to any other mines in the district. In addition to this it will be seen that the more expensive portion of the work involved in their development has already been carried out. The deep adit alone has been estimated to have cost no less than £10,000. In the high-lying ground of Wheal Albert water is plentiful for dressing purposes, while good roads surround and traverse the sett, while the East Rose section of the Cornwall Mineral Railways will pass directly through the property. At the present time the nearest railway depot is some two miles off, and doubtless this has proved one of the causes which have hitherto retarded the development of these mines.
Advantages of being Undeveloped.
In addition to the great local advantages, this group of setts possesses one which I consider to be of the greatest importance, but which is frequently lost sight of. In stating that a mine has previously yielded large sums in working profits it must not be forgotten that the mine is reduced in absolute value in proportion to the amount of ore abstracted, and upon which these profits were based. In the property under consideration all but a very small portion is entirely unworked, and even in the worked portions but little of its riches have been removed, although it has been proved conclusively that they are in existence.
Estimated Annual Profits.
It is exceedingly difficult to form any reliable estimate of the probable output of these mines. It is therefore necessary that I should base my estimate upon the capabilities of adjoining ones, modified somewhat as experience may dictate, and at the same time adopt as my basis a most moderate standard. With but slight expenditure of capital these mines might be caused to give an output of 800 to 1,000 tons of ore per month, of which from 500 to 800 tons would be silver lead. A statement of the results anticipated would be as follows:—

Sale of 700 tons of silver-lead per month, or 8,400 tons per annum, at £15..	£126,000
Sale of copper and blende, say ..	5,000
	£131,000
Deduct for working expenses 40 per cent.	52,400
This would leave a net annual profit of ..	£78,600

Or over 78 per cent. per annum on the whole capital.
Probable Duration.
It can be readily shown that these mines will prove virtually inexhaustible. For example, the total length of proved lodes on the property would exceed 12,000 fathoms. The money return, if these were worked to the same depth as at East Wheal Rose, and the returns from their lodes taken as a basis, would exceed a gross amount equal to over twelve millions sterling.
Concluding Remarks.
In conclusion, I would briefly recapitulate my own views upon the property, together with such evidence as I have procured from reliable persons long resident in the locality. The general contour, the geological formation, the position of faults and upheavals, and the position and the substance of the lodes themselves, all favour economical working and rich veins of ore. Many of these advantages are peculiar to this sett, while it lacks only one that the adjoining mines possess—that is to say, means of conveyance by railway, and this, as I have previously stated, will, I understand, be shortly remedied by a branch running directly through the property. Ample evidences have been furnished me of the richness of the lodes in silver-lead, copper, and zinc, not only by actual observation, but by the statements of unprejudiced miners in the locality: for example, Mr. R. Symons, a Mining Surveyor, who is well acquainted with this and the surrounding district, in which he has resided 45 years, gives it as his opinion that the sett will prove exceptionally productive, and amongst the best in the locality; whilst Captain Stephen Richards, who was born and resided since upon the property, appears to be equally confident of the successful issue of this undertaking. Among the strongest proofs which I can adduce is that contained in Captain Richard Nancarrow's report upon the Old Shepherd Mines, in which he states:—"But on the west the Wheal Albert ends at the twenty-five and thirty-five-fathom levels, is driven right up to this boundary, and left off with a splendid lode at each end, the leader of which is a foot wide, rich for lead and blende. About 41 years ago I worked in the Wheal Albert Sett, a short distance from West Wheal Rose boundary, and 15 fathoms from surface; at this point we had a lode worth four tons of lead per fathom. I mention this to show how rich this lode makes at a very shallow depth." Finally, I would again state my conviction that these mines will prove exceptionally remunerative in every way if worked with due attention to their special requirements, and with the avoidance of those errors so common in the Cornish system of metal mining, and which I unhesitatingly repeat have caused the failure of many promising mines.
I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,
C. Spencer Rolfe, C.E., M.I.M.E., &c.
The mines have also been carefully inspected and reported upon by the following Mining Engineers:—R. Symons, M.E., and Mineral Surveyor, of Truro; Captain Stephen Richards, of Perranzabuloe; Captain Charles Oates, of Calstock; and William Tamblyn, Manager of the Winford Iron Ore and Ochre Mines; all practical men of great experience. Copies of their Reports accompany the prospectus.
The purchase-money for the entire property has been fixed by the vendors, who are the founders of the Company, at £35,000, of which £25,000 only will be paid in cash. The vendors' confidence in the undertaking being such that they have consented to take the remainder of the purchase money in paid-up shares. The vendors will pay all the preliminary expenses (except brokerage) up to the allotment of shares, including legal, printing, advertising, and other charges.
The following are the only contracts entered into:—(1). Dated the 30th day of April, 1881, between Edmund Lloyd Owen and Edmund Lloyd Owen, the younger, of the one part, and Richard Watson Maude, of the other part. (2.) Dated the 2d day of May, 1881, and made between Richard Watson Maude of the one part, and William John Cock (as Trustee for the United Shepherds Wheal Rose Limited), of the other part. Copies of these contracts and the Articles of Association may be seen at the offices of the Company's Solicitors.
The liability of shareholders is limited to the amount of their respective shares, and no payment beyond that amount can, in any event, be required.
Prospectuses, with form of application for shares, map, and copy reports, can be obtained at the offices of the Company and of the Solicitors and Brokers.

THE UNITED SHEPHERDS WHEAL ROSE (Limited).—APPLICATIONS for SHARES can also be made by letter to the Secretary of the Company, at the offices, 8, Great Winchester-street, E.C., accompanied by a remittance of 1s. per share.

This Company will have the right to use the now celebrated Designolles Patented Process, by which, practically, the whole of the gold contained in ores of all descriptions is completely separated from the gangues and other impurities in which it is distributed. It is, therefore, of special value for these mines, which contain enormous deposits of auriferous pyrites or sulphurets, and, according to the result of many assays made by Mr. Designolles, give as high as 5oz. of gold to the ton. The value of the patent is evident from the fact that the St. John Del Rey Mining Company, according to its report, has sustained an annual loss of from £53,000 to £85,000 in gold, which, by the ordinary method of extraction, it is impossible to recover; whereas, by the use of the Designolles Patent, the whole (or nearly so) of this amount would be saved.

THE KEYSTONE GOLD MINING COMPANY (Limited). Incorporated under the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1880, whereby the liability of shareholders is limited to the amount of their shares; Capital £125,000, in 125,000 shares of £1 each, of which 40,000 shares are reserved as part payment to the vendor. Payment as follows:—2s. on application, 3s. on allotment, 7s. 6d. on the 15th June, 1881, and 7s. 6d. on the 15th July, 1881. In the event of no allotment being made, amounts paid on application for shares will be returned in full.
The vendor guarantees a dividend of 7 per cent. for one year from date of allotment of shares on the paid-up capital, in order to give sufficient time for the erection of additional machinery; to secure this dividend a sufficient amount will be retained and invested in consols by the Directors on the completion of the purchase.

PROSPECTUS.
This Company is formed for the purpose of acquiring and working an extensive freehold mining property, consisting of four mines, entitled the Jones No. 1 and No. 2, the Parrish Mine, and the Kindly Mine. These mines extend over an area of 293 acres, and are situate in Randolph County, North Carolina, U.S., 12 miles from Thomasville, a town on the Piedmont Air Line Railway, 23 hours from New York.
From the accompanying report of Mr. Edward T. McCarthy, Associate of the Royal School of Mines, it will be seen that—
There is an abundance of fine timber upon the estate, which is a matter of great importance, as this is usually a most costly item in the working of a mine.
The main-ore body extends across the property for over 3,300ft., in a north-westerly and south-easterly direction, having an average width of over 500ft., and is, in fact, a vast belt of auriferous schist, carrying from 6 dwts. to over 10 ozs. of gold per ton, and the average of 16 assays taken from different sections of the lode was 1 oz. 2 dwts. per ton, as shown by the report of Mr. McCarthy.
The amount of ore in sight in these mines has been estimated at from 1,000,000 to 3,000,000 tons; but as, according to Mr. McCarthy's Report, explorations have only been made for about 80ft. in depth, it is impossible to compute what further amount of ore deeper working will develope.
It appears from Mr. McCarthy's Report that there is at present on the property a ten-stamp mill with copper plates, a 70-horse power engine and boiler, an assay office, blacksmith's shop, and dwelling-houses. There is also a tramway, 450ft. long, connecting the mine with the mill.
One of the advantages of this undertaking will be the free right which this Company is to have to use the Designolles process, which is a most simple, effective, and inexpensive method of treating all auriferous ores. The gold is taken up by an electro-chemical and mechanical action combined, and becomes amalgam, which amalgam is then readily separated from the mass.
By the methods heretofore employed in the treatment of auriferous ores, a large proportion of the gold escapes the process of extraction, either by reason of the extremely fine state of division in which it exists, or in consequence of the peculiar chemical conditions which prevent amalgamation.
This subject has been treated in full in the last report issued by the St. John Del Rey Mining Company (Limited), where the loss was admitted to be as follows:—
During the years 1877-78, a loss, on the quantity of ore treated, of £85,000, or 33 per cent. on their capital.
During the years 1878-79, a loss of £68,194, or 26 per cent. on their capital.
During the years 1879-80, a loss of £53,500, or 20 per cent. on their capital.
And further, they state
"It will therefore be seen that for a high recovery of gold from so heavily charged pyritic matrix a special and exceptionally exhaustive process of treatment is necessary."
That exhaustive process the Directors believe is now found in the Designolles system.
It need hardly be pointed out that the above figures show a serious annual loss, which, if recovered by the Designolles process, would represent a large additional dividend.
Trials on a working scale have been made in Paris during the past year, and also on the mines of this Company in America, and it is estimated that the total cost of mining and extracting the gold by this patented process does not exceed 4s. per ton.
Considerable attention has lately been attracted to this process, from the fact that by means of it gold has been extracted from the pyrites which exist in such large quantities in the Province of Huelva, in Spain, the mines of which are worked by the Rio Tinto, Tharsis, and other Companies.
It will be seen from Mr. McCarthy's Report that the facilities for working are so great that 4s. is an ample estimate for the cost per ton in treating the surface ores, increasing according to the depth up to 5s. Taking the average value of the ore at only 28s. per ton, instead of 54s. according to Mr. McCarthy's assays, and the cost of treatment at 8s. instead of 5s. per ton, a profit of £30,000 per annum would be realized by the treatment of 100 tons daily, taking 300 working days in the year; but on the basis of Mr. McCarthy's estimates, a profit of over £100,000 per annum may be reckoned on. The Directors propose to commence with 100 tons daily, and augment as quickly as possible.
One of the four mines purchased by the Company, the Parrish, which is about half a mile distant from the Jones, is large enough to be worked as a separate undertaking. It may be desirable hereafter to sell that to a new company when its great value has been proved.
The vendor is bound by agreement to place in the hands of the Directors an amount of Consols sufficient to pay 7 per cent. on the capital for the first year, which will ensure the payment of a dividend during the time necessary for the erection of additional machinery to work the mines on a large scale.
The only contract entered into is dated the 2d day of May, 1881, and is made between John Norris of the one part, and Thomas Orchard, as Trustee for the Company, of the other part.
The vendor is the promoter of the Company, by whom the purchase money for the properties, including the right to use the Designolles process, has been fixed at £80,000 in cash and £40,000 in fully paid up shares of the Company, and the vendor undertakes to defray all costs and expenses of agency, advertising, printing, and all legal and other charges incidental to the formation and establishment of the Company up to the allotment of shares.
The accompanying report herewith enclosed contains fuller information than can be furnished in the body of a prospectus.
The above-mentioned contract, and the Memorandum and Articles of Association and Report can be seen at the offices of the Solicitors to the Company.
Prospectuses and forms of application for shares may be had at the Bankers, Brokers, or Solicitors, or at the offices of the Company.
It is intended to apply to the Committee of the Stock Exchange for an official quotation.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.
This Association is formed to purchase the existing interests of the Wine Growers and Foreign Produce Agency, and to extend its operations by supplying shareholders and the public with foreign provision, grocery, cheeses, wines, spirits, &c., and all kinds of specialities at prices defying competition.
The wholesale business, supplying the above commodities, is carried on at 35 and 37, Mincing-lane, and 12, Little Tower-street, and the accounts have been investigated by accountants. Their report shows a net profit of about 30 to 35 per cent. per annum upon the working capital. Shops will be opened in the best positions in the metropolis and suburbs, and in the principal towns, for the convenience of shareholders and the public. The purchase includes, in addition to the business, goodwill, &c., the benefit of an agreement for the leases of the extensive premises, 12, Little Tower-street, for 20 years unexpired. The vendor takes the whole of his purchase-money in fully paid-up shares, and in addition he guarantees a minimum dividend of 15 per cent. per annum for five years, his exclusive services as manager and buyer being secured for that period. There is probably no branch of trade in which the advantage of purchasing direct from producers and manufacturers is more thoroughly exemplified than in that of wines, spirits, and foreign produce, more particularly in articles of specialities, for which in many instances the Association will act as sole consignees, realizing a profit of from 10 to 20 per cent. upon each wholesale transaction. These commodities being well known and appreciated by all classes in the United Kingdom are rapidly increasing in demand, becoming indispensable to every household.
Full prospectuses and applications for shares can be obtained at the Bankers', Solicitors', and temporary offices, 3, Copthall-buildings, Bank, E.C.

FOREIGN PROVISION, WINE, and SPIRIT TRADING ASSOCIATION (Limited).—The LIST of APPLICATIONS for SHARES will CLOSE on Wednesday, 18th May, 1881. Any further issue will be made at a premium.

THE NATIONAL MODEL DWELLINGS COMPANY (Limited). Capital £500,000, in 500,000 shares of £1 each; 5s. per share on application and allotment, and the balance one month after allotment.
TRUSTEES.
The Right Honourable the Earl of Jersey.
R. N. Fowler, Esq., M.P., Alderman and Sheriff.
W. J. Thompson, Esq. (Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson).
This Company has commenced business by the purchase of two freehold blocks of model dwellings, of the best and most modern construction, just erected on the site of the Queen's Bench Prison, in the Borough, which is the best in London for this class of building, being opposite to the Borough-road Station, close to the principal wharves and warehouses on the Surrey side of the River, and less than a mile from the City and from Blackfriars, Waterloo, Westminster, and Lambeth bridges.
All the rooms are let to respectable tenants, at rents in excess of the Company's estimates. The Company, therefore, enters upon an immediate income, securing the fixed dividend of 5 per cent., with an ample margin for bonus, reserve fund, &c.
The Directors have secured the option of purchase, on equally favourable terms, of the other similar blocks which are being built on the same site, so that the Company offers to its shareholders a safe and immediately profitable investment.
Prospectuses and forms of application for shares may be had of the Bankers, Messrs. Dimsdales and Co., 50, Cornhill, E.C., and of L. B. BURNS, Secretary.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.
This Company has been formed to carry on, by purchase and extension, the Maison Blanche Club Restaurant, commenced at 3, Cannon-street, E.C.
The Club is proprietary, and the sanction of the Inland Revenue, in respect to licences, has been obtained.
The Premises proposed by the Club House are at 55, Cannon-street (between the Cannon-street and Mansion-house Termini), and consist of four large and lofty floors, for which a provisional agreement at a moderate rent has been entered into, and may be inspected between the hours of 9 and 6 o'clock. They are expected to be ready for occupation early in June.
Basing the estimates of returns and members' subscriptions upon the certain connection of the Club, the Committee confidentially expect to declare large dividends on the subscribed capital.
Prospectus and Forms of Application for Shares may be obtained at the Offices of the Company and of the Bankers.

EVERY SHAREHOLDER, Trustee, Capitalist, and Investor should read Messrs. ENDEAN and Co.'s LIST of selected INVESTMENTS, yielding from 5 to 20 per cent. DEBENTURE PROSPECTUS.
The Directors of the British and American Freehold Land and Timber Company (Limited) invite applications for an issue of £120,000 Seven per cent. First Mortgage Debentures.
The present issue of Debentures will be secured upon 104,000 acres of selected freehold timber lands, situate in the State of Arkansas, in the United States of America, a full description of which will be found in the appendix to the prospectus, to which special attention is requested.
It is conclusively shown by the description of the property, the letters, statements, and exhaustive reports in the appendix, that the timber on these carefully selected lands is exceptionally valuable, and for quantity, quality, accessibility, and value per acre is, it may confidently be stated, unequalled by the timber on any other tract of land of like extent in the United States. The land itself is also proved by the report of Mr. Davison and other examiners, not in the interest of owner or vendor, to be of great richness and fertility, and that when cleared of timber it will lease at from £1 to £2 per acre and sell at a much higher price.
It is estimated that the annual net profits from the sale of timber and lumber from these lands will be sufficient to many times meet the amount that will be annually required for the payment of the interest on the debentures and drawings, amounting to £16,400 per annum; also that the sale of the black walnut on the lands will of itself, at present prices, produce more than ten times enough to pay off the present issue; and the white oak, cypress, hickory, cherry, ash, curly maple, and other saleable woods will yield a far greater sum than the Walnut.
Saw mills will be erected, and timber and lumber operations will be commenced under competent management as soon as working forces can be organized. It is intended to clear from one to two thousand acres annually, and to prepare and send the timber and manufactured lumber of various kinds to the best markets, and from this source alone the Company can realize funds ample for debenture interest and redemption, and dividends to shareholders.
Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Churchill and Sim, Timber Brokers, 29, Clement's-lane, London, E.C., for the sale of timber imported into England.
Immediately after allotment, the whole property will be mortgaged to the Trustees upon trust for the debenture-holders.
If no allotment be made, the deposits will be returned in full.
The property, all of which is held upon registered titles, will be vested in the Trustees, on behalf of the debenture-holders, to secure the due payment of the annual drawings and interest on debentures, and the Company covenants not to divide any profits in any year until the amount required for the above purposes has been paid to the Trustees. An abstract of the trust deed will be found in the appendix and a copy thereof and of the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company can be seen at the offices of the Company's solicitors, Messrs. Newman, Stretton, Hilliard, and Willins, 75, Cornhill, London, E.C.
Prospectuses, with forms of application for debentures, can be obtained of the Bankers, Solicitors, or of the Secretary, at the Company's office, 31, Lombard-street, London, E.C.

Extracts from the appendix to debenture prospectus.
Description of the Company's property.
This estate is situate in Arkansas, midway between Little Rock, the capital, and Memphis, the principal commercial city.
The Memphis and Little Rock Railway runs along the southern side of the lands, and the Iron Mountain Railway from Little Rock to St. Louis along the northern side, and the Arkansas Central Railway and Little Rock and Kansas City Railways, now under construction, will run directly through the estate.
The lands lie along the banks of or are in close proximity to the White, Cache, and St. Francis rivers, each navigable for steamers.
Farms in cultivation and villages adjoin the lands, and thriving towns are near, while the cities of Little Rock, Memphis, and St. Louis are immediate market towns.
The estate is rich agricultural land, carefully selected for its fine timber of oak, cypress, black walnut, curly maple, cherry, hickory, ash, and red gum. It may be reasonably anticipated that, allowing for all contingencies, the annual profits on the timber will exceed £250,000.
The supply of timber will probably require less than 2,000 acres of land, so that while the quantity proposed to be cut will make little impression on either the American or English markets, there will remain sufficient timber for cutting at this rate for many years. The soil is of the richest character, in fact of almost inexhaustible fertility. Dr. David Dale Owen says of this district:—"These lands are not excelled for fertility by any in the world." The lands are nearly all dry, and at once available for cultivation after being cleared of the timber. Cotton, tobacco, and Indian corn are the staples, yielding crops seldom equalled. The grains, grasses, and root crops are also large and easily grown. All fruits grow luxuriantly, cattle subsist and fatten on the natural vegetation and need not be housed during the winter. Roads, churches, schools, stores, and good neighbours make the estate now attractive for farms. The best judges report that the land laid out in farms will rent out from £1 to £3 per acre, and will sell at £5 per acre.
The climate is mild and very equable, and timber cutting or farming operations may be carried on throughout the year. The thermometer here does not show as high temperature as in the Northern States.
The timber on this estate is valuable without regard to the land, and the land is valuable without the timber. Either the cutting off the timber or the selling of the land for farms enhances the value of the remaining timber and land in an increasing ratio.
The tide of emigration from the Northern States and from Canada and Europe is setting strongly towards the south-west, on account of the climate, soil, and productions, and the 104,000 acres of land, without the timber, afford a good security for and a handsome profit upon the investment simply to sell to emigrants for farming purposes.
Extracts from the Report of Mr. Davison, specially appointed to examine and Report upon the Property.
You desire to know the character and value of the land when cleared, and to what it is adapted, the quantity, quality, and value of timber, and accessibility by natural means, and I will give you my best judgment from personal observation and very careful and thorough inquiry of many disinterested people living on adjoining lands. The lands in question are situate mainly in the St. Francis, Cache, and De View bottoms, and these three rivers afford ample water communication for the transportation of timber to market, and Government has made an appropriation for their improvement which will add greatly to the facilities for transportation and the value of the lands upon their borders. I was agreeably surprised to find a really wonderful uniformity in going through these bottoms. To my surprise I found magnificent growing crops. I send you a sample, marked, from the base of a stalk of corn that measured 15 feet in height, and the whole field promised a yield of 50 bushels to the acre. The timber is really wonderful. I have travelled somewhat through the timber lands of Maine, Northern New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Canada, and have never seen anything to equal it either as to quantity or quality. The different varieties of timber grow to a size and attain to a height that is surprising to one who is accustomed to seeing good timber elsewhere. And the number of such trees to the acre is also wonderful. We made several counts, measuring off land at points that seemed no more than an average, and found from 42 to 54 trees to the acre that would measure from five to 14 feet in circumference at the stump, and straight trunks, with no large limbs, to a height of 50 or 60 feet.
The easy manner of getting out this timber adds greatly to its value, as with a short haul it can be rafted on the St. Francis river to the Mississippi, and so to New Orleans, and thence to the markets of the world. The land when cleared will produce good crops of cotton, tobacco, corn—all the vegetable of this latitude, and seems peculiarly adapted to fruit. I never saw better fruit than grows here in the greatest profusion and with little or no trouble. Cotton yields from three-fourths of a bale to a bale of 500 pounds to the acre, corn 30 to 50 bushels. Stock raising here would be very profitable, as they need no winter shelter or feeding. The magnificent growth of trees, shrubs, and vine in the forest, the clear water and white sandy bottom of the lake, and the beautiful flowers that grow in and around it, make a picture that one must be dull indeed not to enjoy with enthusiasm. We passed through a tract of black walnut timber country. We selected a place that seemed a fair average, and counted 20 trees to the acre, from 18 inches to three feet in diameter. We passed several cypress brakes that exceeded anything I ever saw; I believe the trees would count 150 to 200 to the acre, and some of them very large. This timber must be very valuable. To sum up, I have no hesitation in saying this is as fine a body of land as I ever saw.
Extracts from the Report of Mr. James Campbell, of Glasgow.
I went over and carefully examined about 30,000 acres of timber land for and in behalf of friends here who intended to purchase the 104,000 acres. At several places I measured off an acre, occasionally stopping where the timber appeared the thinnest, and counted such large trees as would square from 24 to 36 inches. On each of these acres I counted from 20 to 30 trees that would make logs of timber from 40 to 50 feet in length, and from two to three feet square, free from limbs. The trees are principally black walnut, white oak, hickory, ash, cherry, cypress, red cedar, and other woods. I measured one black walnut tree that was 17 feet in circumference as high as could be reached from the ground.
I counted only the trees that would square up from 24 to 36 inches. The timber is sound and of fine quality, and for both size and quality I have never seen anything to equal it.
The land is dry and very fertile. I was shown farms in the neighbourhood of these lands in which from £350 to £500 of cotton per acre had been raised each year for 20 and 30 years in succession without any dressing or fertilising material of any kind. The most exhausting crops are raised there on the same land, year after year in succession, for many years, without much change of crops or the use of fertilisers of any sort.
Farm lands rented near there on lease for five to 10 dollars per acre. I found the land and timber came in all respects fully up to the descriptions of them supplied by you, and such descriptions were in no way overdrawn.
In conclusion, I will say that for many years I have had experience in timber matters, and that I believe the property to be of great value, and I would not hesitate a moment to invest in the enterprise.
Extracts from the Report of the British Consul at New Orleans made at the request of several English gentlemen proposing to invest in the lands.
I have passed through or near a large portion of the lands, and have examined similar lands under cultivation, and have questioned intelligent and impartial persons respecting their quality and the prospects of the country in general. As I understand your friends would be guided in some measure by my opinion, I acted as though I were their agent, and have not allowed myself to be convinced lightly upon any point.
The present value of the land in my first two categories appears to be from $5 to $15 the acre. Cleared land may be (and is) rented at from $3 to $10 the acre for the second year. On the roads I travelled there was a farm of some sort about every three miles. The corn is very good. I saw cobs which measured 10 inches in circumference.
Hay is also a profitable crop. I saw several sorts of grass. The timber consists of white oak, cypress, walnut in abundance, and many less valuable sorts.
General Observations.—I will not draw envious comparisons, but the Arkansans I met will bear favourable comparison with several communities of much greater pretensions with which I have been brought into contact. There are fortunes to be made out of timber and stock-raising, and once emulation is roused they would undoubtedly be made. I have seen too much officially of the dark side of emigration to say anything which might induce my countrymen to come out to any country that did not present a safe prospect; and I say, without reserve, that the right sort of man could not only live well upon these lands, but make money very rapidly. The climate is not oppressively hot. Taxation is light, and Arkansas is now one of the best governed States in the Union.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.
This Company is formed for the purpose of acquiring the grants of, and developing and working, three separate extensive copper and tin mining properties in the parishes of Breage and Perranuthno, Cornwall, a district long noted for its great mineral deposits.
The properties acquired are named respectively Sydney Cove, Trebarvah, and Pembro, which are almost surrounded by mines that are stated to have returned copper and tin amounting in the aggregate to over £4,000,000 sterling.
The Directors desire to point out the important fact, that as the Company possesses three distinct properties, each of which it is expected will be productive enough to return ore sufficient to pay handsome dividends on the entire share capital, many of the ordinary risks of mining are avoided.
It is important to note that the mines have only been worked to shallow depths, and that nearly the whole of the mineral is standing intact.
No. 1.—Sydney Cove.
This mine has not been worked below the 30-fathoms level, and may therefore be considered almost a virgin or unworked mine. Sufficient, however, has been done to prove that the lodes are numerous and unusually productive, and what is of great importance, the Great Wheal Vor Tin Lode runs through the property, intersecting the majority of the copper lodes.
Captain Doidge, Manager of East Wheal Rose, reports:—"The number of lodes are too many to detail in one report, but I will point out some of them. Neptune, which has returned about £400,000; Charlotte United returned £157,000, Wheal Speedwell returned £167,000, St. Aubyn's and Grylls £65,000, Wheal Prosper returned £29,000, Trewavas returned £110,000 worth of copper ore in five years from one lode; these must come into the property."
Captain Doidge further says:—"Very little has been done on this property; only a shaft sunk about 30 fathoms, and the 30 fathom level driven a few fathoms."
Captain Richard King states:—"You have here the best piece of copper ground in the county." "You will have no difficulty in raising 250 tons of copper ore and 20 tons of tin monthly."
Reports accompanying the prospectus show (1), that Sydney Cove contains an unusual number of immensely rich copper lodes, the majority of which are intersected by the celebrated Great Wheal Vor tin lode. (2) That these lodes are standing almost whole, very little mineral having been taken away. (3) That the Mine being shallow, the cost for pumping and hauling is infinitesimal when compared with Dolcoath, Carn Brea, and many other deep mines paying large dividends in spite of their enormous expenses. (4) If, as Captain King reports, "250 tons of copper and 20 tons of tin per month can be raised," this Mine alone should pay good dividends on the total share capital of the Company.
No. 2.—Trebarvah Mines.
These Mines are situate near Marazion, in close proximity to Wheal Neptune (which, according to report, returned upwards of £100,000), and other mines, which have given in the aggregate several hundreds of thousands of pounds profit.
The mine is well found in machinery for pumping, hauling, and dressing the ore, consisting of (see Captain Harris' report) a 43-inch pumping engine with 12 tons boiler, balance bob with 12 inch main rods from surface to the bottom, and all appear in good working order. There is also a 16-inch whim drawing engine with boiler, case, &c., complete, and a large quantity of other material suitable for the working of an extensive mine.
This is a most important feature, for Captain Harris, late Manager of Great Wheal Vor, says:—"I should think the engine could be got to work and the mine drained to the bottom in a month from the commencement of operations, when copper could be at once raised."
Captain Laity's estimate of probable returns of copper at, say 500 tons per month, would make the profits arising from this mine also sufficient to pay remunerative dividends on the share capital of the Company.
No. 3.—Pembro Copper Mine.
This mine is situate in the parish of Breage, contiguous to Great Wheal Vor, Wheal Metal, Godolphin, Great Wheal Fortune, and other well-known productive mines. The engine shaft is sunk to the 60-fathom level, and, according to Captain James's report, the 40, 50, and 60 levels all carry rich lodes which are now standing, and from which ore can be broken so soon as the water is pumped out.
Josiah Thomas, Esq., Manager of Dolcoath Mine, reports:—"I consider the geological position of the sett favourable for the production of copper, lying as it does to the east of a granite range, and the killas being intersected by an elvan course. Under similar circumstances, as in rich Gwenap Mines for instance, large quantities of copper have been met." "The stuff as seen at surface has a promising character, and I may observe that I have known Henry Colenso (who has signed one of the reports you sent me) for several years, and feel sure that he is a good miner and that his word may be relied upon."
Henry Colenso, who formerly worked in the mine, reports:—"The 40, 30, and 20 levels are driven chiefly west of engine shaft." "These levels were all of very good value, but at the 40 level the lode generally improved and continued in depth."
From this mine, according to the reports accompanying the prospectus, almost as soon as the machinery is erected regular sales of ore can be made, and as the other known lodes are opened up large returns may be anticipated.
The vendors guarantee that the dividend for the first year shall not be less than 7 per cent. on the paid-up capital, and have agreed to deposit the sum necessary for payment in cash—viz., £5,600, or 8,000 fully paid-up shares of the Company. The Directors have every expectation that a larger dividend will be earned even during the first year, and that it will not be necessary to call on the vendors for the fulfilment of their guarantee.
The vendors, being the promoters of the Company, have arranged the following terms:—The purchase money is £36,000, of which £13,500 is to be paid in cash, and £22,500 in fully paid up shares of the Company, but the Directors retain to themselves the option of paying the whole amount in cash.
The vendors undertake to defray all costs and expenses of agency, brokerage, advertising, printing, and all legal and other charges incidental to the formation of the Company up to the allotment of shares. Mr. James T. Browne, one of the vendors, will join the Board after the allotment of shares.
The following contracts have been entered into, viz.:—(1) dated 2d May, 1881, between Thomas Edward Vickers and James Thomas Browne; (2) dated 2d May, 1881, between William Argall and James Thomas Browne; (3) dated 5th May, 1881, between James Thomas Browne and Henry Browne and the Company.
The contracts, memorandum and articles of association, reports and plans of the properties can be seen at the offices of the Company, where further information may be obtained.
It is intended to apply to the Committee of the Stock Exchange for an official quotation.
Prospectuses and forms of application may be had at the Bankers', Brokers', Solicitors', or at the offices of the Company.

THE BOARD of WORKS for the SAINT GILES DISTRICT.—Sewers Contract.—The Board will meet at its offices, No. 199, High Holborn, on Tuesday, the 10th day of May, 1881, at 10 a.m. precisely, to receive TENDERS for the CONSTRUCTION of about 700ft. run of BRICK SEWERS, in several streets within the district, together with certain works in connexion therewith, agreeably to plans and specification prepared by Mr. G. Wallace, the Surveyor to the Board. Sealed tenders for the above work on forms supplied at these offices, endorsed "Tender for New Sewers, &c., 1881," with a deposit of £20 in Bank of England notes (as evidence that the tender is bona fide), must be delivered at the offices of the Board previously to the hour of meeting, together with the names, residences, and callings of two substantial householders, as sureties in £600 for the due performance of the contract. The deposits will, immediately after the meeting, be returned to the respective persons whose tenders are not accepted, that of the person whose tender is accepted will be retained until the contract and bond shall have been duly executed, and in default of being so executed by the 24th day of May, 1881, such deposit will be absolutely forfeited to the Board without prejudice to any proceedings it may be advised to adopt for neglect to execute such contract and bond, the expense whereof is to be defrayed by the contractor. The quantities will be supplied. The Board will not be bound to accept the lowest or any tender. J. HENRY JONES, Clerk to the Board.
Offices, 199, High Holborn, W.C., April 21st, 1881.

TO BUILDERS and others.—Artizans' and Labourers' Dwellings.—The Commissioners of Sewers of the City of London are prepared to receive TENDERS for taking on BUILDING LEASES for 80 years (the first year at a peppercorn), with option of purchase, the PLOTS of GROUND situate in or near Golden-lane and in or near Harrow-alley and Stoney-lane, and known as the Golden-lane Area and Petticoat-square Area respectively, for the purpose of building thereon dwellings for artizans and labourers, in accordance with conditions and plans approved by Her Majesty's Secretary of State, copies of which, with forms of tender, may be obtained at this office.
The Commissioners do not bind themselves to accept the highest or any tender.
The Tenders are to be sealed, endorsed as directed in the Form of Tender, and addressed to the undersigned.
HENRY BLAKE, Principal Clerk.
Sewers' Office, Guildhall, November 1880.

AUSTINFRIARS, City of London.—To be LET, by Tender, by the Drapers' Company, the PREMISES known as 14 and 14a, Austinfriars, occupying a commanding position in that street at the corner of Winkworth-buildings, and having right of way into Austinfriars-passage. The premises have a frontage to Austinfriars of 26ft., and a return frontage to Winkworth-buildings of 86ft., and contain a superficial area of about 3,000ft.
They will be let either on a repairing lease for 21 years from the 29th September, 1881, or on a building lease of 80 years from the same date.
Tenders will be opened at a Court of Assistants of the Company, to be held at Drapers'-hall, on Tuesday, the 31st May, 1881, instead of Wednesday, the 1st June, as previously advertised.
Forms of tender may be obtained of Mr. Charles Reilly, 23, St. Swithin's-lane; or at the Clerk's office, Drapers'-hall, Throgmorton-street, E.C., where any further information required will be given.

LONDON and ST. KATHARINE DOCKS.—Rummage Sale of Tea.—The Directors of the London and St. Katharine Docks Company hereby give notice that, under authority of the 142d section of their Act, 1864, they will cause to be put up to AUCTION, at a Rummage Sale, on or about 23d May, sundry PACKAGES of TEA (which have been in deposit at the Cutler-street warehouses and London Docks several years) for the payment of rates, rent, and charges due thereon.
Particulars may be ascertained upon application at the respective warehouses, and the proprietors of any of the goods who may be desirous of preventing the sale thereof, may do so upon payment of the rates, rent, and charges due upon the same, on or before the 19th May.
The goods will be on show at the warehouses from the 16th May until the day of sale, and catalogues may be obtained of Messrs. Hancock, Brothers, and Co., Brokers, 23, Mincing-lane.
By order, B. H. MARTINDALE, General Manager.

TUNIS.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

CAMP OF SI ALI BEY AT KOOKA, April 29.

The Heir-Apparent has had a very narrow escape, and certainly managed his withdrawal from the Kroumir mountains with much dexterity. It is feared, however, that the Minister of War's troops will be unable to follow us. After the fighting on the 27th (in which, so far as I could learn, the losses had been severest on the French side), the Kroumirs brought in two large French tents, which proved that the Kroumirs had forced their assailants to retire from some position they had taken up. As night closed in the French advanced, and our camp was soon almost completely surrounded. The Kroumirs began to clamorously insult and threaten the Bey's soldiers, and accuse Si Ali of cowardice and taunt him with having sold them to the French. Under these painful circumstances a council of war was held, and it was decided to withdraw to Souk-el-Khamis, on the French railway, and thus insure our retreat. The tents were struck long before dawn, and, under cover of the night we began our very undignified retreat with a long forced march.

Before retreating Si Ali Bey recorded a protest as to his ability to control the Kroumirs, and the French General's refusal to allow him to deal with them. We marched in silence in order that the poor Kroumirs might not know their Sovereign was obliged by his powerful ally to leave them to their fate. Nothing that I saw of these people led me to think as badly of them as the French would have us do, though doubtless they have been in the past a thorn in the side of their own Sovereign, and by no means agreeable neighbours. They are resolute, athletic, and hardy mountaineers, sleeping even with their guns on their arms, and firmly resolved (for they are probably doomed to extermination) to sell their lives as dearly as possible. After a few hours' march, we suddenly found that we were only separated by a few hillocks from a French camp at Gendouba. We, therefore, hurried on as much as possible, but later we found that French soldiers were marching from another point apparently across our road, but as they were at some distance we pushed on, and at the same time the Bey sent a messenger to the commanding officer saying that as he had not been sent to war against the French, he did not wish to interfere with them, and only desired to know whether his retreat would be interfered with. The messenger remained away so long that we decided to take up our quarters at Ben-Bachir, about six miles from the French camp at Souk-el-Arba. The envoy returned saying the French General desired to see Si Ali Bey. The Heir-Apparent sent Si Tahar Zaouch, his confidential secretary, who met the French General half way between the two camps. The latter refused to confer with any one but Si Ali Bey himself, and he was fetched accordingly. After a long conference the Bey returned, and a report was sent to Tunis of what had passed. During our march we had almost as much difficulty to convince the Bedouins that it was undesirable for them to defend their homes and country as it was to pacify the Kroumirs. Next day (April 29) we moved to Kooka, south of Beja. It is suspected that this movement was ordered by the French.

The Heir-Apparent begs me particularly to relate the details of his interview yesterday with the French General. As soon as the Prince sent a messenger to suggest an arrangement for the French and Tunisian troops to take different routes, the French commanding officer sent a note on a scrap of paper to Si Ali Bey requiring him to go to the French camp. The interview took place at the Souk-el-Arba railway station. Before he arrived there he was stopped by French sentinels until permission was obtained for him to pass. He waited at the station half an hour before the French General arrived. As soon as he came he did not even salute the Heir-Apparent with the usual courtesies observed on such occasions, but asked him abruptly what he wanted. Si Ali Bey answered that he had come in consequence of the invitation sent to him. The General said that the Tunisians had acted properly in retreating from the Kroumir mountains and ordered him to recall the other troops on the frontier, to avoid going to Kef or any part of the country through which the French had passed, and added that he must find his way back to Tunis viâ Teboursak and Testour, as the French meant to go to Beja. He then turned his back on the Bey and left the place. The Bey returned to his camp deeply mortified at the way he had been treated. Considering his well-known courteous manners, position, and age, his complaints are certainly well grounded. We started early this morning for a wearisome day's march and are now camped at Kooka, to the south of Beja. Si Ali Bey has asked leave to return at once to Tunis.

RAILWAY RATES AND FARES.

The Select Committee of the House of Commons appointed to inquire into the question of railway rates and fares reassembled on Thursday, Mr. E. Ashley presiding.

A deputation from the Association of Trade Protection Societies of the United Kingdom, consisting of Alderman Bennett, of Manchester, Mr. Rutter, and Mr. Mellor, was heard.

Mr. Bennett stated that the association numbered 39 societies, comprising over 25,000 members, who were bankers, merchants, manufacturers, and traders carrying on business in almost all parts of the United Kingdom, and at the annual meeting, held at the Westminster Palace Hotel on Wednesday, the following resolution was adopted:—"That the present rates charged by railway companies for the carriage of goods are very unequal and ill-adjusted, and that the committee be requested to take such measures as they may find practicable to secure a fair adjustment of such rates. That it be a recommendation to endeavour to obtain the appointment of a staff of permanent Railway Commissioners, and that a deputation from this association wait upon the Select Committee of the House of Commons on Railway Rates to ask that a clause should be inserted in the report of the Select Committee recommending that trade protection societies should be allowed to appear and have a locus standi before the Railway Commissioners, which at present they have not."

A memorial from the Bicycle Union was received, and ordered to be put upon the notes.

The examination of Mr. Taylor, grocer, of Swansea, being continued by LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL,

Witness stated that the parties injured by the excessive rates between London and Swansea were the public. At present a great many of the better London houses were not represented in the Swansea district, because the prohibitive rates prevented small buyers from coming to London at all. As to the Railway Commission, the tribunal was too expensive for many persons to resort to it.

Mr. MONK.—Do you object to the Commission on account of its cost?—On that ground and also because it is a tiresome process.

Are you aware that the Commissioners do not require an applicant to appear before them by counsel—that they will hear a case through a solicitor?—I was not aware of it; but even if that is so the proceeding would still be very expensive.

By Mr. BARCLAY.—Is it understood to be the modern principle of carrying on business to make an equal percentage of profit on all goods?—It is. No doubt a different principle was recognized a few years ago—some 25 years ago.

Was the system then adopted to put as much profit on certain articles as you thought you could get?—Well, no doubt we had to provide against loss from bad debts. The cash system is now practised, and we have not so many bad debts. We made, no doubt, a greater margin of profit on certain articles in days gone by than we do now.

Mr. Brown, a retired trader of Newport, who was the next witness, examined by LORD R. CHURCHILL, stated that for the carriage of drapery and woollen goods between London and Newport the Great Western Company charged 45s. per ton, which was an excess of 11s. 4d. over the maximum legal charge. The 45s. included the charge for collection and delivery, but he believed the cost of collection and delivery to the company should not be more than 4s. a ton. The trade of Newport was now substantially in the hands of the Great Western Company. The charge for carpets and floorcloths was 33s. 8d. per ton, and for heavy goods and hardware 35s., the maximum rate allowed in the Acts of Parliament being 26s. 9d. Witness gave numerous other figures of a similar description. The railway companies had for a long time acted outrageously, and he contended that a general equalization of the rates, both for goods and passengers, was desirable. He thought penalties should be imposed on the railway companies where they overcharged, and was in favour of the Railway Commission being continued with extended powers.

By SIR D. GOOCH.—He had obtained the railway company's rates from Lord Skelmersdale's report.

By SIR E. WATKIN.—In the rates he had given he had allowed 4s. for collection and delivery. He had made no allowance for warehouses or sidings, nor for the trucks being returned empty.

Mr. King, corn factor, of Mark-lane, was next examined. He complained of the inequalities in the rates for the carriage of corn and grain from certain stations in Surrey and London. He also objected to special rates being quoted to certain tradesmen.

Mr. Hunter, who had got up the case for the Farmers' Alliance, was recalled, and, in reply to Mr. BARCLAY, said he had prepared statistics showing overcharges in the case of the Great Eastern Company. He had taken three stations, Chelmsford, Thetford, and Norwich. From Chelmsford, for the carriage of artificial manures and unground bones in bulk, in lots of under two tons, there was an overcharge to every station on the line, varying from 4s. 2d. to 10s. 6d. above the maximum allowed by their Acts. From Thetford there was an overcharge on every class of articles to the 29 stations to which he had taken the rates, varying from 7d. to 13s. 9d. He had allowed 2s. 6d. per ton for collection and delivery. From Norwich, for the carriage of bacon, flax, leather, hides, hardware, wine and spirits, &c., the least overcharge was 5s. 5d. per ton, and the greatest 11s. 7d. Between Chelmsford, Thetford, and Norwich and the stations he had inquired about there were 2,040 rates quoted in the company's rate-books, and out of that number there were only 19 that were not above the maximum allowed by the company's Acts. Witness expressed it as his opinion that the Board of Trade had power under one of the sections of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1873, to appoint a representative in the interest of the public to go before the Commissioners against the railway companies in cases of overcharge. Witness also spoke as to the satisfactory manner in which a Railway Commission had worked in America which had power to enforce penalties against the companies in cases of overcharge.

The Committee then adjourned.

LAW REPORT, May 7.

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE.

COURT OF APPEAL.

(Sittings at Westminster, before LORDS JUSTICES BRAMWELL, BRETT, and COTTON.)

ENGELHARDT AND CO. V. BOSANQUET AND CO.

This was an appeal from a decision of two Judges in a Divisional Court—Mr. Justice Watkin Williams and Mr. Justice Mathew—in a case arising out of a contract for the sale of a very large quantity of sugar, to be delivered in portions at certain periods, the question being as to the rights and liabilities of the parties in the event of the sugar not being quite in accordance with the contract. The contract, made by a Mincing-lane broker in November, 1879, was in these terms:—

"Sold to Messrs. Engelhardt and Co., for account of Messrs. Bosanquet, Curtis, and Co., 2,000 tons vacuum pan Demerara sugar in hogsheads, from No. 7 to No. 10 Dutch standard in colour, at 30s. per cwt., the price to be based on 94 degrees shipping polarization, with 3d. per degree for anything below, and fractions in proportion, but nothing extra for over 94 degrees. The sugar to be shipped in two steamers, and bills of lading to be dated not later than the 7th of January, 1880, and 20th of January, 1880."

Messrs. Barings Brothers, on account of Messrs. Engelhardt, sent to the sellers' agents at Demerara who were to ship the sugar a letter of credit for £60,000 for the cost of the sugar to be shipped from Demerara. On the 1st of January, 1880, 914 hogsheads and 1,058 bags (about 932 tons) of sugar were shipped, and arrived on the 17th, when the cargo was inspected and rejected, and the next cargo was rejected because the first was rejected as not according to contract. It was rejected because the average test of the cargo was only 90¼ degrees, and this low polarization, it was said, was entirely different from what was bargained for, and rendered the sugar totally unfit for the purpose for which it was purchased; because it was reduced in value to the purity of Muscovado refining kinds, worth many shillings less, and because it was not intended that the sugars were to be as low as 93 degrees. Under the contract an arbitrator was to decide in case of any dispute; and the arbitrator certified that 469 hogsheads and 404 bags of the cargo were in accordance with the contract, the remainder being sugar below No. 7, or about No. 6 in colour, and though of the kind of sugar specified in the contract, it was not in accordance with the letter of the contract, which, he thought, was to be read so as to require the sugar to be between No. 7 and No. 10. But though a large part of the sugar was below No. 7 in colour, it averaged over that number—that is to say, if the whole cargo had been mixed together the colour would have been above No. 7, and there would have been nothing unusual or objectionable in so mixing the sugar before shipment, and the average polarization of the cargo was 90·25 per cent. The purchasers had written a letter in these terms:—"A good grainy sugar, as near 92 as possible; colour to be kept low; cargoes to average above 90." And the sugar was manufactured in pursuance of these instructions; and in these circumstances the question was whether the purchasers had a right to reject the first cargo, and, if so, then to reject the next because the first was rightly rejected as not in accordance with the contract. The Judges in the Divisional Court had decided in substance in favour of the purchasers, who sued to recover the price; and the sellers appealed from that decision, on the ground that there had been no real failure in performance of the contract.

Mr. BENJAMIN, Q.C., and Mr. W. HARRISON, Q.C. (with Mr. English Harrison), argued the case for the sellers, who appealed, and especially urged a waiver of the strict stipulations of the contract.

Mr. COHEN, Q.C., and Mr. M'LEOD argued for the purchasers in support of the decision appealed against.

The COURT came to the conclusion that the purchasers had waived the strict stipulations of the contract as to the colour so that it might be a little below No. 7, for (as Lord Justice Bramwell put it) colour was comparatively immaterial as to value, so that it was not very low, and the real test was polarization, which would be sufficient if above 90 degrees, and, therefore, that the sugar was not rightly rejected as not being in accordance with the contract, so that the purchasers had no right to recover the price. In point of fact, the strict stipulations of the contract had been varied in this respect, and so the judgment must be reversed.

Judgment for the sellers, the defendants.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

CHANCERY DIVISION.

(Before the LORD CHANCELLOR, in his Room at the House of Lords.)

THE PUBLIC WORSHIP REGULATION ACT—DEAN V. THE REV. S. F. GREEN.

This case, which was mentioned in The Times on the 4th ult., under the head of "Ritualists and the Law," again came before his Lordship on a renewed application for an order to remove and sell the furniture seized at the rectory of St. John's, Miles Platting, Manchester, for £243 7s. 8d., the taxed costs in a suit under the Public Worship Regulation Act.

Mr. Jeune appeared in support of the application; Mr. A. Charles, Q.C. (with whom was Mr. M. Thompson), opposed.

It was stated by Mr. JEUNE that since the first hearing an application had been made to the Divisional Court and also to the Court of Appeal for a writ of Habeas Corpus to discharge Mr. Green from Lancaster Castle, and it having been refused, he had to ask for the order. A discussion arose whether his Lordship under the sequestration he had granted under 2 and 3 Will. IV., chap. 93, could order the ecclesiastical property to be sold, as he would much prefer making such order. It was, however, submitted and authorities cited that the real and personal property must first be exhausted before the Bishop would grant a sequestration on the living. In the course of the discussion it was stated that the living produced £250 a year, that the furniture was worth £270, and that Mr. Green had a wife and five children, one under six years.

The LORD CHANCELLOR was surprised that costs to the amount of £243 had been incurred in an undefended cause. He should have thought some £10 would have been the amount. (A laugh.)

Mr. JEUNE said under the Public Worship Act all evidence was vivâ voce.

The LORD CHANCELLOR said the defects extended as they went on. He had not heard before of what had just been mentioned.

It was stated that some of the items in the bill could have been reduced, and his Lordship said it was the parties' own fault if they would not attend. Another point was raised under the first and second sections of the Act 2 and 3 Will. IV., and it was submitted the Act would not apply to the case.

The LORD CHANCELLOR said the point should have been raised when the sequestration was applied for. He presumed notice had been given to the other side, and in his Lordship's opinion it was not fair to Judges, when there was an objection, not to make it, as parties could appear under protest.

The question was discussed, and his Lordship said he would reserve his opinion. On a question whether the goods were to be sold at the rectory or removed to another place, his Lordship was understood to say that he thought the rectory would be the best place.

Judgment was accordingly reserved.

(Before the MASTER of the ROLLS.)

IN RE THE SOUTHPORT AND LANCASHIRE BANKING COMPANY.

Two petitions were presented for the winding up of this company, and have stood over from time to time to enable some arrangements to be made with a view to a reconstruction of the company. The petitions came on for hearing again to-day, and the voluntary winding-up was now ordered to be continued under supervision, in order to enable the liquidator to take such steps as might be necessary for the sale of the company's assets to a new company.

Mr. Roxburgh, Q.C., Mr. Chitty, Q.C., Mr. Ince, Q.C., Mr. Macnaghten, Q.C., Mr. Whitehorne, Q.C., Mr. Romer, Q.C., Mr. G. Williamson, and Mr. Northmore Lawrence were the counsel engaged.

(Before VICE-CHANCELLOR HALL.)

FOSS V. SKINNER.

Mr. GRAHAM HASTINGS, Q.C. (with whom was Mr. Stirling), stated that this was an action by the debenture-holders of Butler's Wharf Company (Limited), for about £70,000 to realize their security. The property had only produced between £2,000 and £3,000, and he asked that out of this sum the costs of all parties should first be paid, and that the residue should be apportioned among the debenture-holders according to the sums owing to them on their debentures.

Mr. Fellowes appeared for the defendants, who were trustees for the debenture-holders.

The VICE-CHANCELLOR made the order.

RESTALL V. THE CITY OF LONDON CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION (LIMITED).

This was an action on behalf of the debenture-holders of the above association to realize their security. It was stated that there was a question as to the validity of some of the debentures.

Mr. Graham Hastings, Q.C., and Mr. Alexander appeared for the plaintiff, who held a debenture for £1,000; Mr. Buckley appeared for the company.

The VICE-CHANCELLOR made the usual order, and appointed Mr. Broad, the official liquidator of the company, receiver on behalf of the debenture-holders.

IN RE SAMUEL FOX AND COMPANY'S TRADE-MARK.

This was an application on behalf Messrs. Fox and Co., the well-known manufacturers of the "Paragon" umbrella frame, that the Registrar of Trade-marks might be directed to proceed with the registration of a certain mark used by the applicants in their trade. The mark in question consisted of a running fox, preceded by the word "Optimus." Messrs. Fox had already upon the register a similar mark, consisting of a running fox, preceded by the word "Stabilis." The Registrar of Trade-marks objected to register a second mark so similar to the first, on the ground that the public would be thereby led to suppose that Messrs. Fox had acquired an exclusive right to the use of the words "optimus" and "stabilis," but was willing to allow the registration of the fox with a blank space, which might be filled up in any way the applicants desired. Messrs. Fox, however, considered that it was commercially more advantageous to them to register the mark in its entirety.

Mr. Rigby, Q.C., and Mr. Carpmael argued the case on behalf of Messrs. Fox, Mr. Stirling on behalf of the Registrar of Trade-marks.

The VICE-CHANCELLOR considered that as the Registrar had already consented to the registration of the fox accompanied by the word "stabilis," he could not now object to register it accompanied by the word "optimus," and he accordingly directed the Registrar to proceed with the registration.

QUEEN'S BENCH DIVISION.

(Sittings in Banc, before LORD COLERIDGE and MR. JUSTICE FIELD.)

THE QUEEN ON THE PROSECUTION OF THE HON. W. GROSVENOR AND OTHERS V. RIDGWAYS.

This was the prosecution by criminal information on the part of the directors of the Army and Navy Co-operative Stores against the proprietors and publishers of the Broad Arrow for a libel reflecting on them in their character and conduct as directors, imputing to them that they manipulated the accounts, &c. The defendants had been tried before Lord Coleridge and both found guilty, and they were now called up for judgment.

Sir H. Giffard, Mr. Poland, and Mr. F. Fulton were for the prosecution; Sir J. Holker and Mr. Attenborough were for the defendants.

Affidavits were filed in mitigation, the topics of mitigation being that there had been a previous publication by General Braybrooke, charges against the directors as to the mode in which they kept the accounts, &c., and that a correspondent, a gentleman in Her Majesty's service, had written them a letter which they inserted, the drift of which was to inquire where the professed profits went, &c., and that the editor in a note, which was chiefly complained of, merely drew attention to General Braybrooke's pamphlet, and advised shareholders to support him, and that thus the alleged libel was in the course of public discussion of a matter of public interest.

SIR JOHN HOLKER and SIR H. GIFFARD having been heard at some length on the part of the defendants and the prosecutors,

The learned JUDGES conferred together for some time, and then,

LORD COLERIDGE said that they would take time till Monday to consider their judgment.

The rest of the day was occupied with a new trial case.

DALE V. WAKEFIELD.

This was an action on a policy of insurance on a ship insured in February, 1878, for £2,000 on a voyage from New York to Leith and lost at sea in March, 1878. The action was begun in April, but the course of litigation had been delayed by the necessity for a commission to take evidence at New York. The defence set up by the underwriters was unseaworthiness and concealment and misrepresentation as to material facts, and the case for the defence was supported by the entry made by a surveyor at New York in 1878, that the ship on the 29th of January was "badly wormed in all parts," and her class in the "Bureau Veritas" cancelled—or recommended to be cancelled—and she was put on the water again (on the 30th) after merely painting the bottom. And there was other evidence to show that the ship was "badly wormed"—i.e., worm-eaten in her timbers, which had not been disclosed to the underwriters who insured the ship in February. In fact, the ship had to be abandoned at sea, and was lost. The jury, however, found in favour of the underwriters, but the learned Judge was dissatisfied with the verdict, and though there was some evidence of repairs, yet Mr. Justice Field, after reading the whole of it, concurred with him in thinking it "unsatisfactory." This was an application to set aside the verdict as against the evidence.

Mr. COHEN, Q.C., and Mr. HOLLAMS argued the case for the plaintiffs, the owners, in support of the verdict, the argument being in effect that the ship must have been seaworthy or could not have stood so much bad weather as she had.

Mr. C. BUTT, Q.C., and Mr. BARNES argued for the underwriters against the verdict as entirely unsupported by the evidence. The arguments were protracted, lasting half yesterday and half to-day, altogether about a whole day. At the close of the arguments,

The COURT, without hesitation, came to the conclusion that the verdict was unsatisfactory, and that there must be a new trial. In substance, the case for the defence was that the state of the vessel as known to the owners had not been disclosed to the underwriters, in consequence of which they were deprived of means of forming a fair judgment as to the insurance. And there was a great body of evidence in support of the defence. The jury, however, had found against it; but the learned Judge was dissatisfied with the verdict, and the Court considered that there were good grounds for that opinion. There was strong evidence that the ship was badly worm-eaten, and that this was known to some of the owners and concealed from the underwriters. And there was, therefore, abundant reason for concurring in the dissatisfaction of the learned Judge, and for directing a new trial.

BUSINESS OF THE COURT.

LORD COLERIDGE, in the course of the day, said that it would be very convenient that there should be a list of motions to be made for the next ensuing motion day—for instance, on Monday next; and, if necessary, a rule or order would be made for such a list. Motions, therefore, to be made next Monday should be put down on a list.

(Sittings at Nisi Prius, before MR. BARON POLLOCK and a Special Jury.)

PELLOTIER ET UXOR V. THE METROPOLITAN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. Murphy, Q.C., and Mr. Finlay were counsel for the plaintiffs; Mr. Kemp, Q.C., and Mr. C. M. Baker appeared for the defendants.

This was an action by the plaintiff and his wife, by the first to recover damages for the loss of his wife's services, and by the latter for personal injuries received by Madame Pellotier when travelling on the defendants' line, in a collision in the tunnel near Praed-street, on the 10th of January, 1880. The plaintiff is a teacher of languages, residing at Tunbridge Wells, and he kept there until lately two private hotels or boarding-houses, at Rock-villa and Mount Ephraim. The defendants originally pleaded contributory negligence, but that defence was abandoned by their learned counsel, and the question resolved itself into one of damages only. Madame Pellotier gave her evidence sitting in the well below her counsel, and said she had been 25 years married, and was 62 years old. She had been attended by different medical men, and had faithfully detailed her symptoms to them.

Mr. Kemp did not cross-examine the lady, and M. Pellotier was called. He said his wife had not been able to attend at all the business of the boarding-houses since the accident, and there was a loss of from £50 to £60 a year profit on each of them. He had been obliged to take her to St. Leonard's, and his bill there was £23 15s. Altogether his expenses disbursed owing to the accident had been some £198 odd, but that included Dr. Waller's bill of £135 for board, lodging, and medical attendance, as Madame Pellotier had remained 16 weeks with him after the accident, being a friend of the doctor's mother.

Cross-examined, the plaintiff said he had a little property near Lyons, but he had not contemplated retiring there shortly. He rather intended to go to Paris to open some kind of boarding-house there. He had been compelled to sell one of his houses at Tunbridge Wells at a sacrifice of £200; he could not as yet find a purchaser for the other.

Dr. Erichsen was the next witness, and he deposed to the extent of the female plaintiff's injuries. He had seen her five times since the accident up to yesterday. She was suffering from severe pains in the head and spine just about the neck and shoulders, and in the lumbar regions. There was a nervous twitching and also jerky symptoms. She had had a concussion or wrench of the spine. Her condition varied, and he had ordered her to wear a poroplastic jacket. She was rather worse in March last, but seemed again to have improved yesterday. There was a thickening of the structures over the cervical spine. The plaintiff was getting better. Had she been a young woman her recovery would hardly have been doubtful, but it was a different thing with a woman over 60 years of age. This witness also was not cross-examined.

Dr. Waller was then called, and said he charged seven guineas a week for Madame Pellotier. The nurse's board was one guinea a week, and he charged five guineas for a visit to Hastings.

Cross-examined.—I have never taken in patients like this to board before or after. I approved the plaintiff's staying with me, as I had lots of spare room. It was for her own sake; for my own I should have preferred her returning home.

There being no witnesses called for the defence, Mr. MURPHY summed up his case, saying he hoped he had dealt fairly with the company, and only asked for reasonable damages.

Mr. KEMP then replied on the whole case, saying he could not deny the collision nor the plaintiff's injuries, but he hoped nothing in the nature of a penalty would be inflicted on the defendants. Their business was carried on with wonderful care, considering the number of trains running during the day. Accidents, however, would happen, as no human mechanism ever would or could be made perfect. Sometimes a small act, the pulling of a wrong handle for, instance, of one of the company's servants, entailed on them, without any special fault on their part, the most serious consequences. Why had the plaintiff not removed his wife back to Tunbridge Wells to her home) instead of lingering on in town before the serious symptoms developed themselves? The very fact of being at a distance from home, family, and business would give rise to a nervous apprehension in the mind of a woman, which would necessarily greatly retard her recovery. Beyond this there was the dread of coming into court, and the ill-grounded fear that the witness would be severely handled by the opposing counsel in the box. (Madame Pellotier was here escorted from court, but was taken with a distressing fit of hysterics outside.) Mr. Kemp resumed, saying he must say he thought the young physician's bill was excessive; but the jury would deal fairly both with the plaintiffs and the company, who were placed in a very difficult position, but who had endeavoured to meet the matter in a conciliatory spirit, without inflicting unnecessary pain.

Mr. BARON POLLOCK then summed up, observing that the defendants very properly admitted their negligence, but that would entail the jury's awarding two separate amounts—one for the husband's loss of services and expenses, the other for the wife's sufferings. The latter was evidently the more delicate and difficult task—viz., how to compensate for bodily sufferings in a pecuniary shape. The case had been fairly, temperately, and reasonably put before them on both sides, and when it was said that Dr. Waller's bill was excessive there was no suggestion that there was anything fraudulent about it; only that as a young practitioner he had made "a good thing" out of it. The jury would consider the money actually paid by the plaintiff, how much his wife had been depreciated—he used the word in no impolite sense—in the past and the future, and then they would add something for her sufferings.

The jury retired to consider their verdict, and after deliberating for half an hour returned into court and asked his Lordship if they were at liberty to assess the plaintiff's expenses—e.g., if they thought the doctor's bill excessive.

His LORDSHIP answered in the affirmative, and the jury then returned a verdict for the plaintiff for £200 expenses, £200 loss of services, and £300 for Madame Pellotier's injuries. Thereupon the learned Baron entered judgment for the plaintiffs for £700, and certified for a special jury.

(Sittings at Nisi Prius, before MR. JUSTICE BOWEN and a Common Jury.)

COOMBE AND WIFE V. MOORE.

This was an action of an extraordinary description. The plaintiff (Mr. Coombe), who has been for many years cashier in Scott's Bank, lives at 10, Norfolk-road, St. John's-wood. The defendant, Mr. George Washington Moore, who is the manager of the Christy's Minstrels and the proprietor of that undertaking, lives at Moore-house, Finchley-road, St. John's-wood. The plaintiff's house is about 200 yards from the defendant's. The defendant is an American, and on the 4th of July last he was desirous of celebrating the anniversary of the declaration of the independence of the United States of America. He had invited several friends to his house on the occasion, and part of the entertainment which he prepared for his guests was a display of fireworks. The 4th of July was Sunday, and when the Sunday had passed, between 12 and 1 o'clock on the morning of the 5th, some fireworks were let off in the defendant's garden. Four persons who lived in the neighbourhood were called, who heard the reports of the fireworks, and they described the first report as having a sound like an explosion; and two police officers were also called, who stated that they saw about 12 or 14 rockets, which had been let off on the occasion in question. The plaintiffs were aroused by the first report, and Mr. Coombe went downstairs, followed by Mrs. Coombe. While he was in his garden, he saw four or five rockets, the sticks and cases of which fell into his garden. Mrs. Coombe was much alarmed, and an attack of hysteria supervened, which was followed by neuralgia. Under the doctor's advice she went by sea for a trip to Ireland, which improved, though it did not quite restore, her health. The first application made to the defendant for compensation was made through the plaintiff's solicitor, and was not sent till September. On the close of the case for the plaintiffs, it was submitted on behalf of the defendant that the case should be withdrawn from the jury on the ground that the consequences which were alleged to have resulted from the acts of the defendant were not such as might reasonably have been contemplated.

His LORDSHIP, however, declined to stop the case, and submitted two questions to the jury—namely, whether the acts of the defendant were reasonably calculated to interfere with the health of people living in the neighbourhood, having regard to people's ordinary habits of life, and, whether the injury to the health of Mrs. Coombe was the consequence of the acts of the defendant; and he directed them that the defendant would not be liable for an interference with the comfort of the plaintiffs unless their comfort was so far interfered with as to affect health.

After a brief consultation in the box, the foreman of the jury stated that there was no prospect of their agreeing upon a verdict. They then retired, and, after having been absent for about an hour, they returned and answered the questions which had been left to them in favour of the plaintiffs. They assessed the damages at one farthing.

Mr. Ribton and Mr. A. G. M'Intyre appeared for the plaintiffs; Mr. Powell, Q.C., and Mr. Winch for the defendant.

PROBATE, DIVORCE, AND ADMIRALTY DIVISION.

(Before the RIGHT HON. the PRESIDENT.)

COOPER V. COOPER.

Mr. Currie appeared for the petitioner; Mr. Inderwick, Q.C., and Mr. Bayford were for the respondent.

This was a wife's petition for a restitution of conjugal rights, which was resisted by the husband, who brought counter-charges of adultery and cruelty against her, praying for a judicial separation. The evidence for the respondent's case was taken first, and it was to the effect that the wife had behaved with considerable violence towards him since 1877, when she first gave way to habits of drinking. The marriage was solemnized at the parish church of Whitstable in 1859, and the respondent, who was a master mariner, said he had no reason to complain of his wife's conduct until 1877, when, as he alleged, he had found on his return home from a voyage to the French coast that she was at times quite intoxicated. In June, 1879, he took her with him on a voyage, during which she told him that a man with whom she was acquainted at Whitstable had behaved indecently towards her. From rumours which he heard at Whitstable, though principally from what she had herself said to him, he had reason to believe that she had been too intimate with this man. The children were called to-day to prove that their mother had at times acted with violence towards their father, and that the man with whom the respondent charged her with having committed adultery had frequently visited her during their father's absence at sea. The petitioner denied on oath that she had ever given way to habits of drinking or that there was any foundation for the charge of adultery brought against her. It appeared that the person with whom it was alleged that the guilty intimacy had existed is 73 years of age, and it was stated that it was owing to illness that he was unable to give his evidence to-day. It appeared that at one time it had been almost agreed that the parties should enter into a voluntary deed of separation, under which the wife was to be allowed 12s. a week.

At the conclusion of the case, which lasted some hours,

The PRESIDENT said that it would not be necessary that he should express any opinion as to the charge of adultery, though he might say that he was of opinion that at times the respondent had not known what she had said, and had herself laid the foundation for this charge against her. As to that of cruelty, after the evidence of the children and the medical man, he could have no doubt that it had been established, and that the petitioner was not a safe person to be allowed to remain with those who, when she was under the influence of drink, became the objects of her animosity. He should therefore grant to the husband a decree for a judicial separation on the ground of his wife's cruelty, but it was desirable that some provision should be made for her.

Mr. INDERWICK said the husband was willing to do this in accordance with the terms of the deed of separation, but he had a right to insist if he did make her this allowance it should only continue so long as she did not molest him or their children. He was willing that she should have the access to the children stipulated for in the deed of separation, but only on the same terms.

His LORDSHIP said that the wife must understand that the allowance and access to the children would continue only as long as she conducted herself properly.

PHILLIPS V. PHILLIPS.

Mr. C. A. Middleton appeared for the petitioner.

The parties in this case were married on August 30, 1873, at the church of St. Clement Danes, Strand, at which date the respondent, the husband, was an accountant, though he subsequently became an organist. There had been issue of the marriage four children, all of whom are now living. Three months after their marriage they went to Lisbon, where the respondent was manager of an hotel until 1875. As an organist, he had on his return to England earned some £200 a year; but, owing to his extravagance, he had been constantly in pecuniary difficulties. Five or six years after the marriage he had taken to staying out very frequently late at night and returning home in a state of intoxication. Evidence having been given of his cruelty, and adultery with a woman in Hampstead after he had separated from the petitioner in 1880,

The COURT pronounced a decree nisi, with costs, giving the wife the custody of the children.

POWELL V. POWELL.

Mr. M'Call appeared for the petitioner.

The parties in this case were married in August, 1877, both being at the time very young, and had lived together until June, 1880, when the husband learnt from his wife that she had on the 18th and 24th of that month been guilty of adultery with a person named Gardiner at the Arundel Hotel, in Arundel-street, Strand. It appeared that the respondent had been much disappointed at having no children, and that in 1878 she had in consequence insisted, in spite of the remonstrances of the petitioner, on returning to the stage, on which she had been for a short time before her marriage. It was stated that Gardiner had originally been made a co-respondent, but his name had subsequently been struck out by permission of the Court. It appeared from the evidence to-day that admittedly a person named Gardiner had slept at the Arundel Hotel on one of the days in question, though the landlady said she could not recognize the respondent's photograph as that of the lady who had then passed as Mrs. Gardiner; and from the description of the man who was with her, the petitioner had, as he thought, reason to believe that that Mr. Gardiner was not the same person as the one with whom his wife had admitted having carried on an adulterous intercourse.

His LORDSHIP adjourned the case that the respondent's father, before whom she was said to have admitted her guilt, might be called, intimating at the same time that the persons at the Arundel Hotel must be made to understand that they could not be allowed to stand in the way of the administration of justice.

BUHL V. BUHL AND TRITTON.

Mr. Powles appeared for the petitioner.

The parties in this case were married on September 2, 1875, at St. James's Church, Piccadilly. They lived together until 1878, at which time the petitioner, a dealer in fancy goods, had to file his petition in bankruptcy. The respondent then refused to live any longer with her husband and they entered into a deed of separation, under which he agreed to make her an allowance of £50 a year. He found out subsequently that she had lived with a man named Tritton, an actor, as his wife. She and Tritten were tried at the Old Bailey in March, 1879, for passing fictitious cheques, and sentenced to 9 and 16 months' imprisonment respectively.

The COURT pronounced a decree nisi.

MALTBY V. MALTBY.

Mr. Hopwood, Q.C., and Mr. Darling appeared for the petitioner.

The petitioner and respondent, whose families were in good positions in life, were married at the parish church of Lenton, in the county of Nottingham, in February, 1874. After their marriage they came to London, and lived together in the first instance at Catford-bridge, in Kent, whence they removed to Southampton-row. Their cohabitation was of an intermittent character. The respondent, who was described as a dramatic writer and actor, was frequently away for long periods fulfilling engagements in the provinces. He corresponded, however, with his wife, to whose goodness and forbearance he always bore willing testimony; but his letters were couched in such a spirit of levity as to show that his desire was still to lead a bachelor life. The petitioner had in her own right a small income, which she was willing to share with him; but this consideration had apparently no effect upon him. She saw him for the last time in 1876, and she recently discovered that while apart from her he had lived at Charlton, in Kent, with a woman who passed as his wife. She prayed for a divorce on the ground of his adultery and desertion.

The COURT pronounced a decree nisi, with costs, and custody of the child of the marriage to the petitioner.

GOLDSMITH V. GOLDSMITH AND BINDON.

Mr. Callaghan appeared for the petitioner.

The petitioner, who is now a merchant tailor, carrying on business at Manchester, married the respondent at the register office in the district of Islington, in March, 1875. They lived and cohabited together at different addresses in London and at Glasgow, but had no family. In June, 1877, the petitioner, being then in bad circumstances, went down to Manchester, where he obtained employment. The respondent refused to join him there, and in May, 1880, he discovered that she had formed a criminal intimacy with the co-respondent, her sister's husband. He prayed for a divorce on the ground of her adultery. The charge was established.

Decree nisi, with costs.

FLITTON V. FLITTON.

Mr. Inderwick, Q.C., and Mr. Currie appeared for the petitioner.

The marriage of the parties in this case was solemnized at the Independent Chapel, Melbourne, in Cambridgeshire, in June, 1867. They lived and cohabited together at Melbourne, where the respondent carried on the business of a miller, and had four children. Some years after the marriage he formed an intimacy with a young woman who was a servant in his house, and in November, 1874, he parted from his wife. She prayed for a divorce on the ground of his adultery and desertion.

The COURT pronounced a decree nisi, with costs, and custody of the children to the petitioner.

WHITAKER V. WHITAKER.

Mr. C. A. Middleton appeared for the petitioner.

In this case also the wife was the petitioner. She was married to the respondent, who was at the time managing director of a cotton factory, which has since failed, in August, 1869. They lived and cohabited together at Rochdale, and had three children. In 1878 the petitioner discovered that the respondent had formed an intimacy with a woman named Howard, a mill-hand. She condoned his infidelity at the entreaty of his father; but finding that he still continued his intimacy with Howard, she finally parted from him in 1880 and instituted these proceedings for a divorce on the ground of his adultery and desertion. The charges having been established,

The COURT pronounced a decree nisi, with costs, and custody of the children to the petitioner.

BANFIELD V. BANFIELD.

Mr. Searle appeared for the petitioner.

The petitioner and respondent, who were both young and in respectable positions in life, were married at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Cirencester, in April, 1870. They lived and cohabited together at Brighton, where the respondent's father carried on the business of a shipowner and coal merchant, but had no family. A few years after their marriage the respondent became addicted to drink and indulged in the vice to such an extent that in 1877 he had to be placed in an institution for inebriates. He left the institution in March, 1878, and it appeared that he afterwards formed an adulterous connexion with a lady whose acquaintance he had made while she kept an hotel at Burgess-hill, Sussex. The petitioner prayed for a divorce on the ground of his adultery and desertion.—Decree nisi, with costs.

In the cases of "Brill v. Brill" and "Cripps v. Cripps" decrees of judicial separation were pronounced on the petitions of the wives; and in "Bone v. Bone and Bagley" and "Blomfield v. Blomfield" (in the latter of which the wife was the petitioner), decrees nisi were granted.

Mr. Pritchard, Mr. C. A. Middleton, Mr. Bayford, and Mr. M'Intyre were the counsel engaged.

In the case of "Orbell v. Orbell," a decree of judicial separation was pronounced on the petition of the husband; and in "Sparrow v. Sparrow and Cherry," a decree nisi, with costs, was granted on the ground of the wife's adultery.

Mr. Bargrave Deane and Mr. Searle were the counsel engaged.

WRECK COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

(Before MR. H. C. ROTHERY, the Wreck Commissioner, with ASSESSORS.)

THE YEDDO.

Captain Vaux and Captain Curling were the Assessors.

Judgment in this inquiry into the stranding of a steamer on the Long Sand through an error in mistaking the Sunk Light for the Kentish Knock Light was given to-day.

The WRECK COMMISSIONER said the evidence had only convinced the Court that the navigation of the Yeddo by one and all had been conducted in such a loose and careless way as the Court had seldom seen. No care, as far as they could see, was taken by the master to ascertain the position of the vessel, either when the revolving light was passed, or indeed at any other time. The master, also, was not justified in leaving the deck at the time he did. It had been said that the master should at some time or other go below. No doubt he should, but he should always take the opportunity at a time when the vessel was not in difficult quarters. It was perfectly clear that when the chief mate was in charge a suspicion crossed his mind that the revolving light was not a pure white light, but that it had a red flash, for he had told them that when the second mate came on deck he (the chief mate) asked him if he had seen a red light, as he had a suspicion that there was a red flash. Having the suspicion that there was a red light in the flash, it was his duty to have at once called the master's attention to it, and for not doing so the Court thought he was to blame. The second mate told them that when his attention was called to the light by the first mate, he did look at it several times, but did not discover any red flash. At the same time all admitted that as soon as the vessel was aground the red flash was distinctly visible. But when the vessel was aground, she must have been at a considerably greater distance from the Sunk Light than when she was abreast of it. It did appear extraordinary that neither the chief nor the second mate should have seen the red flash when abreast of the light, and yet that they should have seen it so very distinctly when the vessel took the ground. It was the duty of the master to have taken a cast of the lead; had he done so, it would have shown him that he was in 10 to 12 fathoms of water, whereas had he been in his right course, well out in mid-channel, he would have had 16 to 17, or if he had been in the deeps 20 to 26 fathoms of water. On the whole, the master was greatly in fault. The chief and second mates were also in fault, but in a lesser degree. The whole navigation of the vessel was in the hands of the master, and he neglected, apparently, to call their attention to the light or to direct them to see whether any change took place in its colour. The Court had been asked by the Board of Trade to deal with the certificates of the master and chief and second officers. It appeared that Captain Owen had been in the service of his present employers for about 13 years. The Court had had letters from the owners showing the high estimation that they had of him, both as a seaman and as a trustworthy person in every way. It seemed, also, that Captain Owen was a pilot for the North Sea and the Baltic outside the Humber. No doubt it was very painful to have to pass a sentence of suspension upon a gentleman holding so high a character. But they felt they would not otherwise be doing their duty, seeing that had the weather not been so favourable, had the wind risen, as it did in two recent cases where vessels went aground near the same spot, in all probability the lives of all on board would have been lost. In all the circumstances the Court would pass a lenient sentence, and would suspend his certificate for six months. With regard to the chief and second officers, they were to blame, although in a minor degree. The Court would not, however, deal with their certificates.

Mr. Digby appeared for the Solicitor to the Board of Trade (Mr. W. Murton); Mr. H. W. Nelson for the master and owners; and Mr. Gibson for the chief mate.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

(Before MR. REGISTRAR MURRAY.)

IN RE G. COLLS.

The bankrupt was described as a licensed victualler, of the Bell Hotel, Addle-hill, also lately carrying on business as a builder in South Kensington and Earl's-court. He now applied to pass his examination upon a statement of affairs which returned unsecured debts amounting to £5,500, fully secured debts £30,985, and assets £3,881.

Mr. Wild appeared for the trustee.

There was no opposition and the bankrupt passed.

"SIEVERS v. ADELMANN."—Messrs. Cooke-Collis and Sayer, solicitors for the plaintiff, write, May 5:—"From a part of the evidence given in this case it would appear that annoyance had been caused to the neighbourhood by balls and dances given by Mrs. Percival Pickering, at 48, Bryanston-square, by which "a quiet square had been made into a noisy one." As this statement has caused much pain to Mrs. Percival Pickering, we trust you will allow us to say that during the period from the year 1874 to the 1st of June, 1880, one ball was given in that lady's house, and one only."

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

(From the Illustrated London News.)

The will (dated November 1, 1879), with two codicils (dated March 24, 1880, and February 27, 1881), of Mr. Samuel Courtauld, late of Gosfield-hall, near Halstead, Essex, and of 76, Lancaster-gate, Hyde Park, who died on March 21 last, was proved on the 22d ult. by Miss Sarah Ann Cawston, Colonel Arthur Swann Howard Lowe, Edward Bromley, and Samuel Jeffrey M'Kee, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £700,000. The testator leaves all his real estate in the parish of High Garrett, certain houses at Halstead, and pecuniary legacies of £10,000 and £80,000 to his adopted daughter Miss Cawston; the Gosfield-hall estate and the residue of his freehold property to his adopted daughter Mrs. Louisa Ruth Lowe for life, then to her husband, Colonel Lowe, for life, and on the death of the survivor of them to such one or more of their children as they shall appoint; he also gives to Mrs. Lowe all his household furniture, plate, pictures, and effects at Gosfield-hall, except any that may be selected by Miss Cawston, all his live and dead farming stock and crops, and a pecuniary legacy of £140,000; his residence at Lancaster-gate, with the furniture and effects, is given between his said two adopted daughters. The testator bequeaths £10,000 to be laid out in the purchase of an annuity on the lives of Miss Cawston, Mrs. Lowe, and Mrs. Courtauld (the wife of his nephew, Sydney Courtauld), to be applied by them for the support of the chapel services at High Garrett in connexion with the Free Church at Halstead, or for the schools at High Garrett and Gosfield, or for the Coffee and Reading Rooms; £4,000 to the British and Foreign Unitarian Society; £2,500 to the Society for the Liberation of Religion from State Patronage and Control; £2,000 each to the London Hospital and the Essex and Colchester Hospital; £1,000 each to the Charing-cross Hospital, the Royal Free Hospital, the East London Hospital for Children, Shadwell, and the Royal Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Chest, City-road; £15,000 each to his nieces, Edith Arendrup and Susannah Ruth Solly; £15,000 to his late wife's niece, Mrs. John Minton Courtauld; £20,000 upon trust for the widow and children of his late nephew, Louis Courtauld; and there are considerable other legacies and annuities to his own and his late wife's relatives, and to friends, executors, and servants. Many of these legacies are directed to be paid out of his capital in the firm of Samuel Courtauld and Co., and the remainder of such capital is bequeathed to his nephews, George and Sydney Courtauld. The testator appoints as his residuary legatees most of the pecuniary legatees under his will, except servants, and the residue of the personalty is to be divided among them in proportion to their legacies.

The will (dated January 5, 1875), with two codicils (dated November 2, 1877, and September 13, 1880) of General James Arthur Butler, late of Holt-lodge, Kintbury, Berks, who died on February 26 last, has been proved by Francis Lovelock Coxe and William Hensman Teulon, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. The testator devises all his real estate to Thomas Butler, and he bequeaths to his sister, Miss Rose Butler, an annuity of £600, legacies to other relatives and to his executors; also £1,500 to his housekeeper, Elizabeth Punter; £500 to his cook, Jane Rolfe; and £300 and some horses and carriages to his groom, William Hayward. The residue of the personalty is to be divided between the said Thomas Butler and his cousins, Whitwell Butler, John Butler, and James Butler.

The will (dated August 18, 1854) of Lady Emily Caroline Bathurst, widow of the Hon. and Rev. Charles Bathurst, formerly of Wytham, Berks, afterwards of Great Ilford, Essex, but late of 33, Eaton-place, who died on March 26 last, was proved on the 5th ult. by the Hon. and Rev. Henry William Bertie, the brother, and Lady Charlotte Margaret Bertie, the sister, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £18,000. The testatrix leaves all her real and personal estate to be equally divided between her said brother and sister as tenants in common. The deceased was the daughter of Montague, fifth Earl of Abingdon.

The will (dated August 26, 1878) of Mr. James Tennant, late of 149, Strand, mineralogist, who died on February 23 last, was proved on the 5th ult. by Frederick Tennant, the brother, and John Jones, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £5,000. The testator, among other legacies, wishes Baroness Burdett-Coutts to accept one of his large pieces of double refracting spar, or some mineral or fossil, for her collection at Holly-lodge; and he bequeaths £400 Scinde Railway stock upon trust for his housekeeper, Sarah Pennyfather, for life; at her decease the stock is directed to be sold, and the proceeds paid to the treasurer of King's College, London, for the purpose of founding a prize, to be called the "Tennant" prize, to encourage the study of mineralogy, to be given in money, books, instruments, or a medal.

The will (dated August 23, 1880) of the Rev. Sir George William Crawfurd, late of Burgh-hall, near Boston, Lincolnshire, who died on February 24 last, was proved on the 1st ult. by Sir Charles William Frederick Crawfurd, the son, the sole executor, to whom he leaves all his real and personal estate. The personalty is sworn under £16,000.

The will (dated December 27, 1861) of Lady Elizabeth Bulteel, formerly of Flete, Devon, but late of 52, Green-street, Grosvenor-square, who died on November 8 last, was proved on the 5th ult. under a nominal sum, by John Bulteel, the son, the sole executor, to whom she devises and bequeaths all her real and personal estate. The testatrix was the daughter of Charles, second Earl Grey, and the widow of Mr. J. C. Bulteel.

CALCUTTA, May 8.

The only opposition General Kennedy's Waziri expeditionary column has encountered has been from the Nana Khels under Moosa Khan. These made a stand on Wednesday at the Shahalum Plateau, two miles beyond Torwan. A skirmish took place, and the 1st Sikhs, after repulsing the onslaught of 50 Waziri fanatics, carried the position. The enemy then retreated, leaving 20 killed. Our loss was two killed and four wounded. Several sections of the tribe which have hitherto been holding out have now submitted, and it is expected that Moosa Khan will follow their example. The towers belonging to the recalcitrant sections were blown up. General Kennedy is now at Kanigoram ; it is hoped he will be able to return about the 13th inst.

There is no news of any further disturbances among the Bheels. These rude hillmen appear to have been for some time discontented with the Oodeypore Government, chiefly on account of the gradual increase of the liquor tax, and the census operations may have also raised a vague uneasiness. The immediate cause of the rising was the oppressive conduct of the Thannadar of Barapal and the Excise contractor there. The Thannadar sent a trooper to summon the chief of Pudoorapal. The trooper, while attempting to arrest the chief, was killed by the Bheels, and word was immediately sent round that blood had been shed in the common cause of resisting the census. The tribes collected, attacked the Barapal police station, and killed all the officials there. The Oodeypore Durbar at once sent a force along the Oodeypore and Kherwarra road. There seemed a chance of a peaceful settlement, but a man who fired an arrow at the troops on the march was shot, and this led to a fresh outbreak. The Sepoys marched to Rukubnath, keeping up a running fight, and killing 20 or 30 Bheels. There they were shut up by the Bheels, who still professed to be willing to negotiate if no more troops were sent. The Maharana sent an officer to negotiate, but without effect, until the 15th ult, when Colonel Blair, the Political Agent of the Meywar Hill tracts, induced the Bheels to agree to hold a conference with the Durbar officials. The meeting was held, but, unfortunately, Sawal Doss, the Maharana's agent, brought several Sepoys with him. When the conference was nearly complete, Sawal Doss waved his hand as a sign to some bystanders to fall back. At the same moment a gun went off accidentally ; the Bheels took alarm, fled to the hills, and the Sepoys began firing on them, and wounded two men. Colonel Blair, fearing the Bheels might attack the British station at Kherwarra, 12 miles distant, summoned troops from Ahmedabad, Baroda, and Erinpura. After a few days the Bheels consented to renew the negotiations, and it is believed that everything is now satisfactorily settled. The rising was entirely confined to the portion of the Bheel country under the Oodeypore State. The tracts under British officers remained comparatively quiet.

The Home Government has sanctioned the appointment of a Director of Transport for one year, when it is hoped that the suggestions of the Army Commission will be carried out. These suggestions are still before the Supreme Council. It is proposed to establish five depôts of mules, at Peshawur, Rawul Pindi, Jhelum, Mean meer, and Mooltan respectively—the mules to number 5,500, and intended for the purpose of equipping, with full regimental carriage, a brigade of all arms, to be kept ready for service. This brigade is to consist of the 100th Foot, the 14th Sikhs, the 11th Bengal Lancers, all at Umballa ; the 21st Punjab Infantry, at Talagunge, the C Battery 4th Brigade of Artillery, at Mean meer : the M Battery 3d Brigade, at Meerut ; and the 1st Company of Sappers, at Roorkee.

The reduction of the Peshawur garrison to a brigade, which is to be carried out shortly, is due to the unhealthiness of the station and not to the reorganization of the Punjab frontier force, as originally stated, the greater portion of the Peshawur garrison will be placed at Rawul Pindi as soon as the railway is completed, and, possibly, a new cantonment will be formed at Hassan Abdul. The extensive defensive works planned for Attock are not likely to be constructed.

The question of the Indian Marine is now occupying the attention of the Government officers. That service, as it is at present constituted, has no legal means of maintaining discipline, the existing shipping laws being held inapplicable. The Government has been for some time pressing the Secretary of State to obtain an Act of Parliament to put things on a proper footing ; but Lord Hartington, like his predecessor, has been as yet unable to find time to do so, and it is believed that the Admiralty are opposed to legislation on the subject. Meanwhile the Finance Minister has raised objections to the cost of the service, and advocates a return to the old plan of putting the marine under the provincial governments and defraying the expenses from provincial funds. This proposal is strongly opposed by the Commander-in-Chief and the Military Department. The question is likely to remain in abeyance till settled by Parliament.

A somewhat serious encounter between the military and the police took place at Bombay on Friday. A detachment of Native Infantry attempting to march by a prohibited road was warned by the police to desist. The Sepoys resented this and attacked the police. The latter were speedily reinforced, but the soldiers fixed bayonets and surrounded their opponents, several of whom were hurt. At last an officer of another native regiment arriving on the scene ordered the men to pile arms, which, after some hesitation, they did. A body of native cavalry was also brought up, and order was restored. A court of inquiry was to be held yesterday.

General Wilson took his seat as a member of the Supreme Council on Monday.

AFGHANISTAN.

(By Indo-European Telegraph, via Teheran.)

CALCUTTA, May 8.

The movement of troops eastward from Pishin is proceeding satisfactorily. All the railway preparations are completed. Eleven regiments and four batteries are ordered to return to India.

Three thousand rifles and a large quantity of ammunition which have been presented to the Ameer have arrived at Killa Abdulla en route for Candahar.

The field guns given to the Governor of Candahar are said to be of an obsolete type and to have been long lying in store at Ferozepore Arsenal. Sirdar Alum Khan, who fought against General Roberts at Cabul, but afterwards made submission and aided in bringing about a peaceful settlement, left Simla on Wednesday for Cabul. It is reported that he is to be appointed to a high office under the Ameer.

Hyat Khan's case is now before the Government, and the decision will be given shortly. It is believed that the case for the prosecution has absolutely broken down.

There is no trustworthy news from Cabul, but it is reported that the Ameer is maintaining order and conducting affairs well. He is said to have succeeded in raising three or four new regiments in outlying portions of the Cabul districts, and to have recalled General Gholam Hyder Khan from Ghazni to take command of the troops at the capital. It is also said that Abdurrahman is very anxious to visit Candahar and may possibly do so soon.

From Herat comes a rumour that Sartip has patched up a peace with Ayoob and given him his daughter in marriage ; also that Hassim Khan is at Herat, but suspected by Ayoob; and that the Candahari troops there are weak, while the Herati troops are being disarmed, as their fidelity is doubted.

BURMAH.

(By Indo-European Telegraph, vid Teheran.)

CALCUTTA, May 8.

According to the recent census, the total population of British Burmah is 3,704,253, being an increase of 34 per cent. since 1872. Rangoon contains 132,004, and Moulmein 46,472, an increase in the former of 36 per cent. and in the latter of 14 per cent. This large increase is due chiefly to immigration.

The Vittor Pisani, an Italian man-of-war, commanded by Prince Tommasso of Savoy, has arrived at Rangoon. The Prince landed under a Royal salute.

It is reported from Bhamo that an insurrection against the Chinese Government has broken out among the Panthays of Yunan, and that all the cotton boats have returned to Bhamo in consequence.

SOUTH AFRICA.

(By Eastern and South African Cables.)

DURBAN, May 7.

A few facts from the evidence given before the Commission are interesting and suggestive.

Two Englishmen were fired at from a Boer laager at Wonderfontien on Good Friday.

Two witnesses swear they heard the Boers at Majuba insist on firing at the white flag. Mr. Pullen swore that he was prevented from reoccupying his house at Middelburg and compelled to leave the Transvaal by threats against his life.

Four petty chiefs have sworn to slavery being practised by the Boers.

Mr. Moffat, the son of Dr. Moffat, the missionary, was shamefully ill-treated at Zeerust, and was only saved by a chief's threat to send an impi if he were not left alone.

One chief had already advanced some distance to relieve the Potchefstroom garrison when it surrendered.

Mr. Forssman will notify to the Commission that a fortnight after peace was signed he was told by the Triumvirate that all his property would be confiscated.

A visitor who has returned from the Transvaal gives a most gloomy account of the state of feeling there and of the bitterness towards all Europeans.

The Boers are making every preparation for war.

The guns surrendered at Potchefstroom are believed to have been irrecoverably made away with, probably in the Free State.

TUNIS.

TUNIS, May 6.

The following circumstances have greatly increased the anxieties of the Tunisian Government. After the conflict near Ben Bachir, it appears the Inthia wrote letters in blood, which they declared to be that of their sons, wives, and children, to the heads of the neighbouring tribes invoking their aid. These tribes expected some action from the Bey. Unfortunately, at this juncture, they intercepted a courier passing from Ali Bey's to Si Selim's camp, and found letters enjoining him to conciliate the French General. On this discovery, three divisions of the Mejer tribes, Worgh Sharen, Bu Ghanem, and Ouled Aya, openly revolted against the Bey. Their Cadis fled to a sanctuary, thence escaping to Tunis, where they arrived this morning. The Bey and his Ministers are concerting measures to re-establish his authority, but the tribes of the interior accuse him of having sold his country to France.

The sudden change in General Logerot's march on Beja is supposed to confirm the news received here of heavy French losses by the unexpected resistance of the Kroumirs.

MAY 7.

Reports which arrived this morning at the Bardo confirm the statements as to the continued severe fighting in the Dhomer Mountains.

General Logerot's column is reported to have had an engagement yesterday with the Kroumirs, near Fernana. The Kroumirs themselves admit the French fire at a distance to be fairly accurate, but say they generally fire high at close quarters and stand with difficulty their sorties during the night. Large reinforcements daily arrive at Gardimaou. The statements as to the obstinacy of the struggle are confirmed. It is certain the Kroumirs still persist in their determination not to surrender.

No further news has reached Tunis as to the proceedings of the insurgent General.

Information has been received to-day satisfactorily disproving M. Roustan's allegations as to the part taken by the Englishman, Mr. Perkins, in the battle of Ain-is-main on the 26th of April. That gentleman has requested the whole matter to be laid before the British Government.

The Bey administered justice as usual to-day. He frequently asserts his determination to reject all demands for the establishment of a French protectorate over Tunis, and to leave the decision of the question in the hands of the Sultan and the Great Powers. This resolution is strengthened by the fact that no propositions have ever been made to him officially or in writing, but chiefly through private persons. As a protectorate would involve an undoubted and manifest violation of treaty obligations, Lord Granville's statement is favourably construed at the Bardo.

Telegrams received yesterday from Constantinople have had a reassuring effect on the mind of the Bey.

MAY 8.

I have just seen Colonel Taib Masmuri, late commandant at Tabarca. His account of the bombardment is very interesting, but he declines to answer the question about returning the fire. He denies that anyone at Tabarca ever fired on the Hyéne. He says that the French captain landed at the fort, and offered him many inducements to surrender it, but he refused. In the evening the Admiral peremptorily repeated this demand, saying that the Government of the Republic would, if necessary, take the territory forcibly. Colonel Masmuri replied next morning in writing, saying that the demand had been referred to the decision of Ali Bey. Quite unexpectedly, and without notice, at 2 o'clock on April 26, a heavy fire was opened on the forts from the ironclad. The second shot killed three soldiers, and in a few minutes Colonel Masmuri was thrown down wounded. Several soldiers were dead near him. Meanwhile a band of Kroumirs from the shore forced the magazine and abstracted ammunition. After swimming to the mainland, Masmuri wandered about for five days, and then some Kroumirs took him to General Selim's camp. He says the Kroumirs (?) are eager to fight, and the enthusiasm is extending. He was almost starved en route. He very bitterly reproaches the French for bombarding without notice while he was awaiting instructions. Many were killed besides soldiers. The island fort was almost razed.

PARIS, May 8.

The following is the Note sent by the Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs, Assym Pasha, to his representatives abroad :—

"At Constantinople, May 3.

"My different circular despatches have successively placed you in possession of the present state of affairs at Tunis, and of the standpoint from which we have always regarded that question. A simple local accident, consisting of the aggression of some barbarian tribes on the border of Algeria, whom the Tunisian authorities had from the first declared themselves ready to chastise, has nevertheless, to our great surprise, brought about an expedition of French troops into Tunis. According to the latest information from the Pasha of Tunis, the French troops are advancing into the interior of the country, after having taken possession of several fortified points. His Highness thinks that so important a military movement and so rapid a march across his province, notwithstanding the declarations of France, who declares she is pursuing no object of conquest, seem to denote one or other of the three following aims—either an assumption of possession, an occupation, or a protectorate of Tunis. In view of this situation, the gravity of which will be apparent to everybody, His Highness and the population imperatively call upon us to exercise the incontestable sovereign rights of the Porte and protect a province which forms an integral part of the Ottoman Empire. Strong in our rights and persuaded of our duty towards that population, subject to the Porte, we recently proposed to the signatory Powers of the Treaty of Berlin an understanding, either with them or directly with France, in order to effect a solution of a nature to satisfy the grievances of the Government of the French Republic. This appeal elicited no reply, and the question remains whether the Powers are going, contrary to their feelings of justice or equity, to persist in their passive attitude in this respect. As to ourselves, we cannot see with indifference the events passing in a part of our master's possessions, and we cannot but ask ourselves whether immutable justice is always the guide of European Cabinets or whether they wish to intrench themselves in passive abstention, in view of the right of the stronger. It would be painful for us to come to such a conclusion, the realization of which would lead to a perturbation of the general peace the Porte and the Powers desire, and entail a commotion which would be serious in the present state of the East. We therefore trust that our appeal will be heard by the signatory Governments of the Treaty of Berlin, which guarantees the vital interests of the Ottoman Empire, and that they will give effect to our proposal of a frank and conciliatory understanding, which might lead to a settlement of the Tunisian conflict to the satisfaction of all, conformably to the desires of the French Government. Please communicate this despatch to the Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Government to which you are accredited."

Garibaldi, in contradicting a report that one of his sons had joined the Kroumirs, writes to a Savoy admirer :—

"As to the war between France and Italy eagerly dreamed of by our common enemies, I think our corpses will have to be trampled on before that monstrosity is realized. An Italian a French citizen in France, a Frenchman an Italian citizen in Italy, such is the goal we should reach. No more barriers, no more frontiers, complete equality —a fraternity which may serve as a basis for human fraternity. To Savoy and its gallant children a hearty greeting."

M. Magnin, Minister of Finance, in an interview with the Budget Committee, has estimated the cost of the Tunis expedition at 40 million francs, to be met out of the excess of revenue over estimates, which on the past four months has already reached 64 millions.

ROME, May 8.

In the Chamber yesterday Signori de Rudini and Mafsari, both of the Right, again rose to interrogate the Minister for Foreign Affairs regarding the French movements in Tunisian territory, from the double point of party and foreign politics. Signor de Rudini considered it a very curious coincidence that the announcement that the Cairoli Ministry would remain in power should have been immediately followed by the occupation of Biserta by French troops. That fact was in contradiction to Signor Cairoli's statement of April 7, that the operations of the French army would be limited to punishing the Kroumirs. It proved that France aimed at going far beyond what she originally contemplated, or, at any rate, what she had publicly acknowledged. He spoke at length on the importance of Biserta and Tunis. He considered that where Italian interests are there Italy was. If Biserta was not actually Tunis it was a most important military point of the Regency. He, therefore, desired to know whether any explanations had been received from the French Government regarding a fact of which it was idle to dissemble the gravity, or whether the Italian Government intended to ask for any. Signor Massari limited himself to asking what interchange of communications there had been with England regarding the occupation of Biserta, and what were the views of Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet.

Thereupon Signor Cairoli replied that he had little to add to what Signor Depretis in his absence had stated a few days ago. What he had laid before the Chamber on April 7 was based upon the declarations made by France in identical terms to England and Italy. No doubt the occupation of Biserta, if it had a permanent character, would be in contradiction to those declarations; but inasmuch as there existed no specific grounds for doubting the loyalty of the French Government he must hold that the occupation of Biserta was solely connected with the development of the operations against the Kroumirs and would be but a temporary step. As regarded the protection of the lives and interests of Italian subjects the Italian Government had acted in full accord with that of England. The English Government had sent the frigate Monarch into Tunisian waters and the ironclad Maria Pia had already been despatched by Italy. Signori de Rudini and Massari took note of the Minister's statements.

FRANCE.

PARIS, Sunday, May 8, 9 30 P.M.

The new general tariff is promulgated to-day and the Government, according to the Temps, has to-day denounced all the treaties of commerce, so that the present conventional tariff only remains in force till the 8th of November next.

Mr. Kennedy left Paris yesterday. The negotiations will meanwhile be continued in London. A telegram from Madrid states that the Spanish Government is about to send delegates to commence negotiations for a new treaty with France, and other Powers are on the point of doing the same.

In a long and interesting article in the Débats of to-day on the negotiations for the new treaty of commerce, M. Paul Leroy Beaulieu advises the French Government to return to the ad valorem duties if the conversion to specific duties should prove an obstacle to the conclusion of a treaty. He thinks ad valorem duties have many advantages over specific. The latter offer great difficulties in their application to mixed textiles, and these difficulties must increase as these goods become, as they are becoming, more and more diversified. Another disadvantage of specific duties is that they are invariable, and, therefore, become proportionately heavier as improvements in the method of production reduce prices. It is even doubtful whether they have not the very disadvantage for which ad valorem duties are blamed, for with the numerous categories necessitated they may, perhaps, open up as many opportunities for fraud. As regards the conversion, he agrees with the assertion made by Englishmen that it has been carried out on a scale which has raised the duty in almost every case and in many cases to double and treble the existing rate.

ST. NAZAIRE, May 8.

The new Penhouet Dock was opened this afternoon in the presence of the Minister of Public Works, M. Sadi-Carnot. There was an immense concourse of people, and great enthusiasm was exhibited. The first stone of the new waterworks has also been laid. To-night a grand banquet has been given by the Mayor to 300 guests, including the Prefect and all the local notabilities. M. Sadi-Carnot, in returning thanks for the toast of his health, gave an assurance that President Grévy, who was prevented at the eleventh hour from attending the ceremony, would visit St. Nazaire on the first opportunity. He promised some harbour improvements, and hoped the dock would soon be full of shipping.

THE MONETARY CONFERENCE.

PARIS, May 8.

At the Monetary Conference yesterday M. Cernuschi submitted two proposals as a sequel to his remarks at the previous sitting. He then recognized the importance of Germany's declarations as being an admission of the feasibility and necessity of bimetallism, and as expressing a readiness, while not herself adopting it, to assist France and America in establishing it. He recalled the gold monometallic movement, dating from 1866, Mr. Lowe's willingness to make the sovereign equivalent to 25f., provided France would demonetize silver, and the inclination of the then French Government to make the sacrifice. He inferred from Germany's declaration that she would have become bimetallic in 1871, but for the fear of France becoming gold monometallic. He therefore suggested the cancelling of monetary history since 1871, and the reimbursement to Germany of the 96,000,000 marks which she would not have lost had bimetallism been established. The States which had bought silver at 15 or 20 per cent. discount and coined it at the old par—America, for instance, since 1874 had coined $140,000,000 in fractional currency, or Bland Bill dollars, saving $20,000,000 by the fall in silver—should repay these 96,000,000 marks which they had made by coining debased coin. Or India alone, if necessary, might do this, thus stopping the leakage of at least 25,000,000 rupees a year on the exchange, a leakage which might even increase. Germany's dignity would not suffer from being recouped what a general mistake had made her lose and others unjustly gain. As to the resistance of the English Government to bimetallism, M. Cernuschi instanced Peel's tardy conversion to a metallic currency, as also to free trade, as proofs that England usually took ten years to consummate an economic reform, and he predicted that four or five years more would be necessary to convert the English Government to bimetallism. Following up these ideas, M. Cernuschi yesterday proposed that all the States, England included, should be requested to make known what profit they had made since January 2, 1874, by buying silver below 60d. and coining it at the old par, a return which might serve as a basis for the restitution to Germany ; also that Germany should be requested to call in all the old thalers, issuing notes in exchange. The holders, he showed, would not be prejudiced, for the thalers, not being exportable and not meltable, except at a great loss, were like paper money. The eventual calling in, moreover, had always been contemplated, and its immediate execution would not only ascertain the exact amount of German silver, but would render effective Germany's proffered engagement to resist the exportation of her silver. If not called in, German bankers would melt down these thalers and send the ingots to be coined into France, to pay what might be owed in France and England. Mr. Horton suggested a similar return as to gold. These three proposals were not put to the vote, but entered on the minutes, so as to come under the cognizance of the Governments concerned. Baron Thielmann, who demurred to the likelihood or feasibility of an immediate calling in of the thaler, stated, in reply to Mr. Horton, that England's attitude had something to do with Germany's present standpoint. Not only had Germany considerable direct commerce and important financial relations with England, but a large part of her Transatlantic and Asiatic commerce was settled by bills on London, thus making it important for her to retain a monetary system analogous to the English. After long speeches by M. Pierson (Holland) for and M. Pirmez (Belgium) against bimetallism, the Conference adjourned till Tuesday.

TURKEY AND GREECE.

ATHENS, May 8.

The animosity against the King and the Ministry increases and hostile placards continue to be circulated and thrown into the Palace, but public quiet is not disturbed. The journals show greater vigour in attacking the Ministry, which finds few apologists. The convention for the surrender of Thessaly is waited for with curiosity, but no excitement, though any condition binding the future of Greece will be universally repelled and would probably produce a rupture of negotiations.

VIENNA, May 8.

The Turks have formulated the clauses which they wish to have inserted in the convention. As you were informed at the time, the Turks intended to bring forward their demands in the Note of acceptance, but were ultimately dissuaded from doing so by the representations made to them. The chief of these clauses related to the part which Greece was to take upon herself of the Turkish Debt, the free disposal of the State domains and the Vakoufs, and the guarantees for the position of the Mahomedan population that might remain in the ceded districts.

As regards the first, it seems that the financial loss of Thessaly, as calculated by the Turks, turns out to be much greater than had been anticipated, and seems to have quite startled the Ambassadors. The calculation seems to be correct in so far as it takes the revenues which the ceded territory yielded as its basis and insists on full compensation for that revenue by Greece taking a part of the Turkish Debt corresponding to the capital sum of that revenue, so that, until the revenues of the country were increased, either by increase of taxation or by the development of its resources, Greece, if she paid, would derive but little revenue from the country. The principle that there should be compensation for the territory ceded to Greece, as in the case of the territory ceded to Servia and Montenegro, has been long recognized by the Powers, but this is the first time that the amount of such a compensation has actually come before the Powers. Is Turkey entitled to show from her books what she loses in revenue and to demand full compensation, or, if not, what is to be the standard of calculation ? Just because nothing has been done with respect to the Bulgarian tribute and the other cases of compensation, and because this case will form the first precedent, it is expected that Turkey will fight the point very hard, and it is not believed that the negotiations will be either short or easy.

The claim as to the free disposal of the Vakouf property, which has the character of corporation property, as it has been admitted in other cases, must be allowed here also. It is the same with State property, but as regards the latter the treaty provisions have hitherto in all cases remained a dead letter, though, as regards Bulgaria, the matter is of no small moment. So on this point also the agreement arrived at will form a precedent for the other cases at issue.

As regards the position of the Mahomedan population under Greek rule, the Turkish Government seems bent upon demanding more efficient guarantees than those afforded by the treaty. This end would be secured by placing them, for some time at least, in an exceptional position, and by establishing some kind of international contract to protect them until they can either realize their property and leave the country, or else, if they choose to do so, remain. Though but a small majority, the Mahomedan Agas represent there, more, perhaps, than in any other part of Turkey, the landed proprietors, a proud and brave class. Moreover, property in Thessaly has for a long time been regarded as a profitable investment, so that many influential persons in the Palace and in office have an interest in these matters. An active exchange of ideas respecting these demands has been opened among the Ambassadors. They are, it seems, not deemed admissible to their full extent, but it is hoped that some compromise will be found, satisfactory to all parties.

GERMANY.

BERLIN, May 6.

The Victoria Theatre this evening was again betimes invaded by the same brilliant and enthusiastic multitude as flocked together yesterday to hear the prologue to Richard Wagner's Trilogy of the Nibelung Ring, and as the weather was finer the heat was more intense. A pause, however, of 25 minutes was allowed after each act. This is the way in which the master seeks to disarm his opponents, who are legion, and which forcibly reminds one of what Frederick the Great once said on coming upon a bill-poster plastering up some libellous statement about himself :—"Place it up a little higher still, so that all my subjects can read and laugh at it," said the invincible King, giving the bill-poster a good thwack with his walking stick. There was plenty of time for refreshment and criticism in the lobbies, from which the spectators were summoned back to their seats, not by the usual ringing of an electric bell, but by a flourish of trumpets in the corridors themselves after the quaint manner of Bayreuth. For Richard Wagner is a man who impresses his individuality on customs wherever he goes. In like manner were the critical groups in the lobbies greatly amused this evening by noticing the following publication advertised among the works of the musician of the future on the covers of the Nibelung librettos. "A Wagner lexicon, or dictionary, of impoliteness, containing rude, mocking, hateful, and slanderous expressions, which have been used against the master, Richard Wagner, his works, and his adherents by enemies and scorners—for delectation of the mind in leisure hours."

The performance to-night lasted from half-past 6 till 11, and there is, therefore, only time for me to give you the merest outline of the work and its success. Unlike the "Rheingold" prologue of yesterday, which was divided into four sections, the "Walküre" to-night was divided into three longish acts. To understand the connexion of events it will be necessary to recall the chain of yesterday's plot, which ended with the retirement of Wotan and his divine companions by a rainbow bridge into their giant-built fortress of Walhalla, amid the lamentations of the Rhine daughters for the loss of their river gold. This the dwarfish Nibelung Alberich had stolen as compensation for the love of the scorning naiads and converted into a hoard of wealth and ring of wondrous power, which he was in turn, craftily deprived of by Wotan and the fire-god, Loge, who had persuaded the giants to substitute the treasure thus recovered for the goddess Freia—the original price of their huge work. One of the giants of covetous heart had then incontinently slain the other for sole possession of the omnipotent ring, to which the dwarf Alberich, its fashioner, had affixed a terrible curse, and thus arises the prospect of an eternal contest between love and the lust of power. Wotan now bitterly repents of not having justly restored the stolen gold to the Rhine sisters instead of employing it as a ransom for the hostage goddess Freia. In fact, the human weakness and indecision of the father of the gods is the cause of all the coming woe. Immured in Walhalla, he now bethinks him how the ring can be recovered from the surviving giant, so that it may not again come into the hands of the revengeful Alberich and his ferocious Nibelung, for in that case it were well-nigh all over with Walhalla and the gods. To wrench it, indeed, by main force from the possessing giant were surely within his power, but would be a breach of treaty from which his tender conscience shrinks ; so what he will not directly achieve by might he resolves to accomplish by sleight, and to train up among the sons of men some one who will come to make successful front against the ten-foot and ring-possessing man. The first act of the "Walküre," therefore, introduces us at once to the man who is to do this, Siegmund, who, flying from his foes, seeks rest and refuge in the sylvan dwelling of Hunding and Sieglinde. The result of this, to be brief, is that Siegmund and Sieglinde fall in love and decamp together, after having discovered that they are actually twin brother and sister. Hunding now very naturally falls into a desperate state of wrath and revenge at the elopement of the incestuous pair, and appeals for redress to the goddess Fricka, who, as guardian of the marriage tie, demands of Wotan to issue righteous judgment in default. A pretty dilemma this, to be sure, for poor Wotan, in whom there now arises a painful conflict between public duty and private desires, though the nobler motive at last prevails, and he commands Brünhilde, born to him by the goddess Erda, chief of his Walkyr maidens, who hover over battlefields and bear away heroes to Walhalla, to go and intimate his doom to Siegmund. The sight of his misery softens her heart, and in the combat between him and Hunding, Brünhilde tries to shield him from his adversary's rage. But now Wotan, the unseen spectator of the fray, angrily interposes his spear, on which the sword of Siegmund is shattered, and the chosen instrument of the god falls a victim to divine justice. Deeply enraged at the disobedience of Brünhilde, Wotan vows terrible vengeance on the criminal, and, mounting his fiery courser, scours away in quest of her, whom he finds (at the beginning of the third and last act) near his rocky mountain throne, surrounded by her sympathizing sisters. She had carried off Sieglinde with her from the spot fatal to her brother and lover, and comforts her by saying that she will yet be the mother by the incestuous Siegmund of a son whom she will call Siegfried, and who will patch up into a vengeful weapon the broken fragments of his father's sword. But to Brünhilde herself Wotan remains as relentless as the rocks, sending her into a deep sleep on the mountain until the first passer-by claims her. At last, however, the god is prevailed upon to commute this sentence into one more acceptable to her—namely, to lie dormant on the cliff surrounded by a ring of fire until a wooer "freer than the god himself" ventures to approach the place, and the piece thus closes with a theatrical realism which makes all present revert by a shuddering association of ideas to the late catastrophe at Nice and inquire of each other whether fire, escapes are attached to the chief theatres of the capital.

In "Siegfried," which is to be performed on Sunday night—to-morrow being a dies non—we shall probably hear of Siegmund's incestuous progeny and Brünhilde's revenge.

From a dramatic point of view the "Walküre" has many most effective parts, especially the first scene in the sylvan dwelling of Hunding, where the twins Siegmund and Sieglinde meet and discover each other, and nothing could be finer than the orchestration of this passage. Great applause, too, was elicited by Siegmund's (Herr Vogel) hymn to the spring. Nothing could be more imposing both from a dramatic and musical point of view than where Brünhilde, the female Mercury of the Teutonic Gods, appears to Siegmund, and bids him prepare to follow her to Walhalla. Sadly does Siegmund ask all about this warrior's heaven in a strain of deep poetical philosophy, and defiant he becomes on learning that his beloved Sieglinde cannot breathe the air with him up there. There is naturally a somewhat painful elevation of voice and instrument in the reconciliation scene between Wotan and Brünhilde, when the shrill cries of a despairing woman mingle with the bass profondissimo of an inexorable god of justice ; but on the whole the effect is deep and telling, and a storm of applause greeted the close. Nothing could be more perfect than the physique and get up of the various artists, and it was no wonder that they were summoned before the curtain half-a-dozen times at least. Loud was the demand for Wagner, but it was only when these cries reached a tumultuous pitch that the modest person thus challenged presented himself at one of the side boxes, and, bowing in a self-depreciatory kind of way to the cheering house, pointed to the singers, as if to say theirs was the chief merit in the masterly performance, and not his.

MAY 8.

Siegfried, the second part of the Nibelungen trilogy, was performed at the Victoria Theatre this evening, when Wagner again secured a triumph. There was no falling away of interest on the part of the densely-crowded house, which applauded as much as ever and paid to the composer the same personal honour as before. There were in to-night's performance some passages of exquisite sweetness, as, for instance, in the dialogue between Siegfried and the birds, and the closing scene with Siegfried and Brünhilde was full evidence of the intensity of passion which the master has succeeded in expressing. To-morrow will be given the concluding part—the Götterdämmerung, or Twilight of the Gods.

In yesterday's sitting of the Reichstag, which adjourned till the 16th inst. to allow of Committee work being done, the Wehrsteuer, or Military Service Exemption Tax Bill, of Prince Bismarck, was unanimously rejected on a second reading. On Friday, however, the House passed on a third reading, by a majority of nine votes, the Chancellor's Bill for limiting the municipal taxation of official residences to 15 per cent. of their occupants' salaries. But the main event of the Parliamentary week was the two days' debate on a second reading of the Government Bill for altering the Imperial Constitution to the extent of introducing biennial Budgets and quadrennial Parliaments, in the course of which Prince Bismarck and Herr von Bennigsen, the leader of the National Liberals, had an elaborate passage of arms. The Select Committee to which the measure had been referred for further consideration proposed an amendment to secure that the Reichstag should be summoned every year in October, and this was carried on Friday by 140 against 129 votes. The biennial Budget clause was rejected ; but, on the other hand, the House, by a small majority, declared itself in favour of quadrennial Parliaments, with the proviso that the proposed change should not apply to the present Legislature. The Government had expressed itself ready to accept four-year Parliaments without biennial Budgets. It remains to be seen how this amended measure will fare on a third reading, but the Budget question, at least, seems to be settled against the Government.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, May 7.

The Prince of Wales arrived here this morning at 7 o'clock. The Emperor and several of the Archdukes went to meet him at the station, where also Sir Henry Elliot and the members of the British Embassy were in waiting to receive the Prince.

The Treaty of Commerce between Servia and Austria was signed yesterday.

MAY 8.

Yesterday Schönbrunn was the centre of attraction, and both in the court before the palace and in the gardens the people were in crowds all day. It was the day of the reception and the visits of their Belgian Majesties, who left early in the morning to pay calls upon the Emperor and Empress and the members of the Imperial family. They met with the most hearty reception throughout their passage to the town and back. Soon after their return to Schönbrunn the reception began.

First of all came the members of the Imperial family, then the Diplomatic Body in full numbers, and after them the Presidents and Vice-Presidents of the Austrian and Hungarian Parliaments and the Burgomasters and Vice-Burgomasters of Vienna and Pesth. The Hungarian deputations, as guests, had the precedence. Nothing could exceed the friendliness and affability with which the deputations were received by their Majesties, both of whom spoke German, and conversed freely with the members of the deputation. To the deputation of the Austrian Parliament and of the town of Vienna they expressed their thanks for the enthusiastic reception they had met with since they crossed the frontier and upon their arrival at the capital. Hearty and warm, as only a spontaneous manifestation of popular feeling can be, it had deeply moved them. They assured the deputation that the Princess was enchanted with her new home, to which her heart belonged already, and that she would always endeavour to secure the sympathy of the population.

Equally princely was the reception of the Hungarian deputation. The Queen, a daughter of the late Archduke Joseph, was born and educated in Hungary, speaks Hungarian perfectly, and has repeatedly of late years been spending months in the country on visits to her brother, the Archduke Joseph, so she received the members of the Hungarian deputation quite as countrymen.

After the deputation had left, the Prince of Wales and Prince Wilhelm and Princess Victoria of Prussia called. At 4 p.m. there was a family dinner at the residence of the Archduke Karl Ludwig, which became an occasion for another ovation on the part of the population of the district of Wieden, in which the Archduke's palace stands, while at the arrival and at the departure thousands congregated along the line of passage and cheered heartily. During the dinner such a crowd had collected that the traffic was temporarily stopped, and only when it became known that the Princess would go by another road to the Burg did it become possible to resume it.

In the evening there was a Court ball. Not only were the State apartments in the Burg all thrown open, but likewise the two large halls of the Redoute, which are connected by passages with the State apartments. In spite of the restrictions that were imposed as to the invitation of the officers of the garrison, the number of those present must have been over 2,500. With the exception of the Rittersaal, used as the ballroom, the State apartments, which are in the other portion of the Burg, have more the character of a suite of fine private apartments than of spacious reception halls. They date from the time when only the few had access to the Court. Thousands were assembled there last night to await the entrance of their Majesties, who had been holding a smaller cercle previous to the ball. Shortly before 9 p.m. this was over, and His Majesty, with the Queen of the Belgians, led the way into the ballroom. The Empress, with the King of the Belgians, followed; then came the bridal couple, the Prince of Wales, the Prince and Princess of Prussia, almost all the Archdukes and Archduchesses present in Vienna, and the Court, fuller than it is often seen, and in a moment the Rittersaal was crowded. When the first rush was over, the crowd that had until then been massed on the line of the cortége, began to disperse more equally, and it was only then that the combination of the large reception halls with a number of fine private apartments of various sizes and proportions showed itself off to wonderful advantage. Of course the Rittersaal, a magnificent hall, with Corinthian columns, all white and gold, with a garden of blooming azaleas between them, remained the centre of attraction for a large portion of the guests, while the two halls of the Redoute, which had been arranged as refreshment and supper rooms, presented no small attraction to others. The apartments themselves assumed gradually the appearance of a number of drawing-rooms. A constant succession of visitors passed to and fro, and acquaintances could meet and sit down at the tea-tables. The decoration of the apartments is most simple, but the designs are so exquisite that every room may serve as a model for the modern decorator, and the walls are decked with a treasure of Gobelin tapestry such as is nowhere else in the world collected in such quantities and of such quality. Above all, the long passage leading from the State apartments to the Redoute-saal offered specimens which, both in beauty and preservation, could not easily be matched.

The dancing, as on all such occasions, was but nominal, and their Majesties soon began to hold the large cercle, speaking to those they knew and having presentations made to them. Among those presented were the deputation from Bosnia, which has come up for the occasion, composed of men of all classes. If they live in the same harmony at home as they showed last night, the difficult problem of reconciling old antagonisms seems by no means a desperate one. At 10 30 their Majesties withdrew.

This morning the Crown Prince, with his bride, received the various deputations in the Château of Schönbrunn in the two lofty halls which occupy the centre of the building and are connected with each other by a number of arched doorways. In the great gallery facing the garden, the deputations from the Austrian and Hungarian Parliaments, from the town of Buda-Pesth, from the Croatian Diet, the town of Fiume, and the military frontier district were ranged all round, while in the other gallery were the representatives of the city of Vienna and of the provincial capitals. The Hungarians, as guests, had again the precedence, and were placed close to where the Crown Prince, leading the Princess on his arm, entered. Cardinal Simon, the Primate of Hungary, made a short address, giving expression to the feelings of the deputation and to their joy in looking forward to seeing them soon in Hungary, and greeting the Princess, who was half a child of Hungary. The Crown Prince, in reply, assured the deputation that the Princess would be as much a Hungarian as he was himself, which caused a burst of cheering. The President of the Austrian Upper House was the spokesman of the Austrian Reichsrath. Most of the other deputations had brought a written address with them. The Princess looked at each of them, and, when looking over that of the town of Pesth, astonished and not a little delighted the Fathers of the City by addressing them in fluent Hungarian. In general, the impression produced by the Princess from the first moment of her appearance is becoming more and more strengthened.

The official reception of the bride only takes place to-morrow, but this afternoon the people of Vienna gave their reception. It was the day of the fête in the Prater, the so-called Praterstern. Its length may be about five English miles, passing first through some of the most populous suburbs, over a large portion of the Ring or circular boulevard, and then crossing the bridge over the Danube canal through another populous suburb. With few exceptions the road is a broad street or wide thoroughfare, flanked by large houses three or four stories high, containing each quite a small population. Almost all along this route the people of Vienna were ranged, so that in her drive the Princess was able, as it were, to receive the population of her future capital. The windows, balconies, and even housetops, were tenanted, and each district presented its own type of population, the suburbs towards Schönbrunn being full of artisans and tradespeople, the Ring and its environs presenting the bulk of the well-to-do and well-dressed promenaders, the Praterstrasse, again, forming a sort of conglomerate of all classes and districts. There was a popular fête in the Prater, arranged by the town, with popular games and entertainments, but no one seemed much to care for it, and all seemed simply bent on catching a sight of the cortége and of the bride. The large open space from which the alleys diverge became by degrees one compact mass of human beings, which the 500 or 600 Rangers had, even with the assistance of the police, some trouble in keeping within bounds. Vienna looked at its best, profusely adorned with flags, streamers, and emblems; the people dressed in their best, and seemingly in high spirits.

It had been calculated that the Imperial cortége would reach the entrance of the Prater about 5 30, but it was an hour later, as along the greater part of the route the carriages could only be drawn at a foot pace. There were some 30 of them, the Emperor with the King of the Belgians, the bridal couple, the Empress and the Queen of the Belgians, and so on. The German "hoch!" is not equal to cheering; it is too short and guttural and does not allow that sustained strain of the voice which an English hurrah or a Hungarian cheer admits of, but certainly the goodwill was there to make the most of it, and so much the more vigorous, however, was the waving of handkerchiefs and hats, gentlemen making up thus for the shortcomings of the voice. One saw that it all came from the heart, and the young Princess, who was evidently much pleased, may have thought that they are not bad people with whom she has cast in her lot.

SWITZERLAND.

GENEVA, MAY 8.

An incident has just occurred at Zurich which strikingly shows how little hold Socialism has in Switzerland, notwithstanding the presence in the country of so many foreign Socialists, and goes far to prove that the best antidotes for subversiv doctrines are free institutions and complete liberty of the Press. Zurich, being a manufacturing centre, is supposed to be more prone to Socialism than any other part of the Confederation, and at the cantonal election on Sunday the Social Democratic party ran a candidate in every district. They boasted that they would show how strong they were, but they did not return a single candidate. They received less than 3,000 votes, while nearly 60,000 were recorded for their opponents. Their supporters were found exclusively in the towns of Zurich and Winterthur, the country districts not having given them a single vote, a circumstance easily accounted for when it is remembered that in rural Switzerland nearly every head of a family is a yeoman.

THE UNITED STATES.

(BY ANGLO AMERICAN CABLES.)

PHILADELPHIA, MAY 7.

The Senate has adjourned till Monday the moving of a report to convene a Republican caucus to endeavour to arrange the Garfield-Conkling dispute.

The Duke of Sutherland is visiting Boston.

The American production of rails in 1880 is reported to amount to 1,461,837 tons, including 954,460 tons of Bessemer rails, and 493,762 tons of iron rails. The increase over the previous year is 31 per cent., and 46 per cent. of the total was made in Pennsylvania.

The Court of Common Pleas at Philadelphia has to-day declined to hear further argument or to receive a supplemental bill from the Messrs. M'Calmont's counsel in the Reading Railroad election case till the Pennsylvania Supreme Court hears the pending appeal case. This course was indicated by the Judges to prevent legal complications, by agreement of counsel. The Supreme Court will be asked on Tuesday to consider the appeal case.

We have received the following telegrams through Reuter's Agency:—

SOUTH AFRICA.

CAPE TOWN, MAY 8.

A new Ministry has been formed, composed as follows:—

Mr. Molteno—Colonial Secretary.
Mr. Hutton—Treasurer-General.
Mr. Scanlen—Attorney-General and Premier.
Mr. Merriman—Commissioner of Crown Lands and Public Works.
Mr. Sauer—Secretary for Native Affairs.
Mr. Hoffmeyer will enter the Cabinet without portfolio.

THE TUNISIAN QUESTION.

TUNIS, MAY 7.

The Government of the Bey yesterday received an important telegr m from the Sultan, which leaves no doubt that the Tunisian question is very seriously occupying the attention of the Powers at the present time, and that France has given very explicit assurances as to the limitation of the operations of the French troops in Tunis, especially concerning the occupation of Biserta. It is considered now almost impossible for the Bey to accept a French protectorate. Very heavy rains continue.

The French column under General Brem has arrived at Souk-el-Arba from Ghardimaou, with a battery of artillery from Udamoun.

General Logerot's column has reached Ferranainto, in the Mersale district, where another battalion has also arrived as a reinforcement. The general in command of the troops landed at Biserta, which amount altogether to about 8,000 men, has forbidden all exportation from that town.

TUNIS.

TUNIS, MAY 6.

The news of the revolt of five powerful native tribes is confirmed. They refuse submission either to the Bey or to the French. The immediate cause of the revolt is the fact of Si Ali Bey having neglected the appeals of their sheikhs to the Bey. The excesses alleged to have been committed by the French troops after the engagement of the 30th of April are also said to have led in a measure to the insurrection. The Bey is endeavouring by every possible means to regain his authority over the revolted tribes.

MAY 8.

General Logerot has succeeded in visiting the camp of General Forgemol. From this fact it is considered that the former can have encountered only a trifling resistance during his advance.

FRANCE AND TUNIS.

PARIS, MAY 7.

Intelligence from Roum-el-Souk of yesterday's date says rain continues to fall, and military operations are thereby impeded.

MAY 8.

The Temps and the France, basing their argument on the news telegraphed by their correspondents in Tunis, to the effect that the Bey persists in his attitude of passive resistance to the French, express the opinion that no final arrangement can be concluded on satisfactory terms until the French troops occupy the town of Tunis and mount guard in front of the Bardo Palace.

News from Biserta reports that the population in the Porto Farina district is in a very excited state.

ITALY AND TUNIS.

ROME, MAY 7.

The Opinione to-day publishes a letter from the proprietor of the Mastokel, in which the writer denies ever having had any relations with the Italian Consul at Tunis or receiving any subsidy from the Italian Government or encouragement from Italian functionaries. He declares that there is no ground for the charge that he had sought to excite the Algerian Arabs against the French, and concludes by announcing that the Mostakel will reappear shortly.

In to-day's sitting of the Chamber of Deputies Signor Guiccioli brought forward an interpellation with regard to the rumoured recall of Signor Maccio, the Italian Consul in Tunis. According to reliable information, the rumour in question is without foundation.

TURKEY AND GREECE.

CONSTANTINOPLE, MAY 6.

In consequence of semi-official observations made by the Ambassadors upon the points which Turkey desires to add to the Turco-Greek Frontier Convention, the Porte has entered upon a reconsideration of these points. In any case, however, it will insist that the portion of the Turkish debt to be taken over by Greece shall be calculated on the basis of the average revenue of the last ten years, of which 10 per cent. converted into a capital sum would represent the debt to be assumed. The settlement of the final details of the Greek Question is believed to be surrounded with difficulties. The Greeks who take possession of Thessaly will find numerous sources of public revenue sold, among others the tithes and immense tracts of pasture land leased at low rentals for long periods to Albanians. The Turkish army is said to be greatly exasperated on account of the pacific surrender of the ceded territory. The Porte nevertheless continues its military preparations. Edhem, Sachri, and Nedjib Pashas, accompanied by their staff and a number of troops, have arrived at Volo with a quantity of munitions of war. The Turkish army in Thessaly numbers 20,229 Nizams, 20,290 Redifs, 2,117 Cavalry, 22 batteries of Field and 11 of Mountain Artillery. Dervisch Pasha, the commander of the Turkish army in Albania, is endeavouring to conciliate the Albanians, to whom he has promised that they shall continue to enjoy the same immunities as at present. The Albanian soldiers will remain in their native country, and all grades in the Army up to that of Colonel will be conferred on Albanian officers.

TURKEY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, MAY 6.

The Porte has decided not to recognize the arrangement respecting the Wranya Railway adopted by Servia, Bulgaria, and Austria, on the ground that it is contrary to the stipulations of the Treaty of Berlin, which require the Porte's sanction before the line can be constructed. Councils are being held by the Ulemas conjointly with the Ministers to deliberate upon the inquiry into the alleged assassination of the Sultan Abdul Aziz, and to consider whether the deposition of the latter should form one of the counts of the charge against the persons accused of causing his death, because in that case one of the ex-Ministers of the Sultan Murad would be compromised. Said Pasha is believed to be opposed to the inquiry being prosecuted.

The position of the Grand Vizier is considered to be shaken.

According to intelligence from Damascus, Fezi Pasha is surrounding the Druses in the Hauran district, from whom he has demanded an indemnity of £40,000 as compensation for the pillage of Turkish villages and the massacre of the inhabitants. The Druses, however, refuse to comply with his demands.

The Porte fears lest the Hauran Druses should effect a union with those of the Lebanon.

Intelligence received from Mecca states that some Arab tribes have entered and pillaged the Holy City and cut off the postal communications. A caravan of Mussulman pilgrims from India has also been pillaged by Arabs.

MAY 7.

Nazi Pasha has been appointed Governor of Tripoli, and has been decorated with the order of the Medjidie of the first class. He has left for Tripoli with special instructions.

The Commission on the Tobacco Monopoly has made a report in favour of the project with certain modifications.

M. Condouriotis, the Hellenic Minister, has visited the Porte and the Ambassadors of the Powers. He is furnished with instructions to represent Greece at the pourparlers for the conclusion of the Convention relative to the ceded territory, but will not take any personal part in the deliberations.

The Ambassadors of the Powers have been instructed by their Governments to hasten the conclusion of the Convention, and are empowered to decide absolutely upon any difficulties that may arise, so that a peaceful solution may be arrived at. The subject of the assumption by Greece of a certain portion of the Ottoman Debt will be mentioned in the Convention, but the exact sum is to be settled by future negotiations.

The Porte has to-day dispatched a Note to the Powers, stating its views with regard to the Tunisian affair.

GREECE.

ATHENS, MAY 8.

M. Gennadius arrived here to-day. Having accomplished the object of his mission to Constantinople he has been promoted to the post of chief of a department in the Ministry for Foreign Affairs and in the meantime has been appointed to take charge of the Hellenic Legation in Vienna until the return of the Greek Minister, Prince Ypsilanti, who is at present at Nice.

M. Gennadius states that a belief prevails in diplomatic circles at Constantinople that the Porte is sincerely desirous of surrendering the ceded territory to Greece without further delay.

ROUMANIA.

BUCHAREST, MAY 8.

The Opposition newspapers to-day strongly urge the necessity of the immediate dissolution of Parliament and the convocation of a Constituent Assembly in view of the altered position of the State.

Sixty-four Bills will be submitted to the Chamber when it reopens to-morrow.

FRANCE AND TURKEY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, MAY 8.

M. Tissot, the French Ambassador, went yesterday to the Porte and stated that the French Government having been apprised of the departure of some Ottoman ironclads for the Mediterranean, protested against their going to Tunis. His Excellency is reported to have added that the French would fire upon the Turkish vessels if they attempted to put into Tunis. The Porte is preparing a Circular to the Powers, informing them of the threatening attitude adopted by France, and reminding them that, although the French Government announced their intention of sending troops against the Kroumirs, they have nevertheless landed troops at Biserta, a point which is remote from the Kroumir country.

FRANCE AND THE TREATIES OF COMMERCE.

PARIS, MAY 7.

Mr. Kennedy, who came here to obtain information for the British Government on the subject of the new French tariff and the treaty of commerce, left to-day on his return to London. During his stay here he has had a series of conferences with high officials of the Foreign Office. The negotiations will be continued in London as soon as the general tariff has been promulgated. Several foreign Governments have notified their intention of sending delegates to Paris to negotiate new commercial treaties, but the Temps of this evening, writing on the subject, says it believes it will not be possible to treat with any country until the negotiations with England are concluded.

THE AUSTRIAN IMPERIAL MARRIAGE.

VIENNA, MAY 7.

An Imperial letter is published to-day conferring the Grand Cross of the Leopold Order upon Count Chotek, the Austrian Minister to Belgium.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, MAY 8.

The Prince of Wales will leave Vienna for Pesth on Thursday next.

GERMANY.

BERLIN, MAY 7.

Dr. Versmann, a Hamburg Senator, is expected here next week, presumably to continue the negotiations respecting the incorporation of that city in the Customs Union.

RUSSIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, MAY 7.

Direct telegraphic communication has been established with Geok Tepe.

The Golos of to-day states that the Grand Duke Michael will shortly go to Tiflis to give up his post of Lieutenant-Governor of the Caucasus. He will afterwards return to St. Petersburg and permanently take up his residence in the capital, but will go in the summer with his family to Ems and Carlsbad to take the waters. General Loris Melikoff and M. Milutine are each spoken of as his probable successor.

ST. PETERSBURG, MAY 8.

The Golos to-day states that while a procession was carrying a holy picture into the monastery at Charkoff, on the 4th inst, two youths were arrested for distributing revolutionary proclamations.

The terror of the Jews at Ekaterinoslav is so great that on Wednesday last the authorities forbade the use of the boulevards as public promenades, and took other precautionary measures.

The trial of 25 private soldiers for disobedience and resistance to the authorities in time of war was concluded at Odessa yesterday. Three of the prisoners were condemned ot 12 years' hard labour in the mines, three others to exile to Siberia, and the remainder to various terms of imprisonment.

The Helsingfors journals state that the Emperor has ordered the Finnish Senate to draw up a Bill, according to which the Imperial sanction would in future only be required for measures passed by that body which relate to exceptionally important matters.

The Novoe Vremya of to-day publishes intelligence from Krasnovodsk, dated the 25th April, according to which General Scobeleff had returned with his Staff to that town and had met with a most enthusiastic reception. The General left on April 24 for Astrachan, whence he would proceed to St. Petersburg to present a report to the Emperor regarding the expedition against the Tekke Turcomans.

Tikma Sirdar, the principal leader of the Turcomans, will, it is added, leave Krasnovodsk shortly for St. Petersburg.

The Council of the Empire will meet again to-morrow.

THE RUSSIANS IN ASIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, MAY 6.

The Turkestan Gazette publishes news from the town of Tchugutchak, which says that an announcement has been made by the Chinese Central Government to the effect that Russian merchants are free to trade and send caravans to Tchugutchak and all towns in Western China, and that the robbery of their caravans or interference with the traders will be punished with death. Later advices from Shikho and other frontier towns lead to the belief that this announcement was not known there.

Khudayar, the former Khan of Khokand, has written to Count Heyden, from Bombay, requesting the forgiveness of the Czar for quitting Russia in 1876 without leave from the Imperial Government. After leaving Afghanistan, the Khan started to go to Mecca, but fell ill at Bombay, whence he now wishes to return to Russian territory.

RUSSIA AND THE VATICAN.

ST. PETERSBURG, MAY 8.

Referring to the announcement recently published by the Moscow Gazette, according to which the negotiations now proceeding between Russia and the Vatican had for their object the creation of a Papal Legation in the Russian capital, the Journal de St. Pètersbourg to-day gives a categorical denial to the statement, declaring that neither party had ever entertained any idea of this nature. Nor, adds the journal, is there apparently any probability of such a proposal being made.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.

ST. PETERSBURG, MAY 8.

Reouf Pasha, the Ottoman Ambassador Extraordinary, despatched by the Sultan to St. Petersburg to congratulate the Czar on his accession to the throne, was received in solemn audience by the Emperor at Gatchina yesterday.

RUSSIA AND MONTENEGRO.

CETTINJE, MAY 8.

A deputation of 10 officers, headed by the Voivodes Bozo, Petrovich, and Wetar Vukovich, left here to-day for St. Petersburg, to congratulate the Emperor, in the name of Prince Nicholas, on his accession to the throne.

THE MONETARY CONFERENCE.

PARIS, MAY 7.

At to-day's sitting of the Monetary Conference, M. Cernuschi and Mr. Dana Horton proposed that the representatives of each State should furnish statistical returns either of the gold or silver coined in their respective countries. This proposition was agreed to. M. Pierson, one of the Netherlands delegates, made a speech in favour of bimetallism, which was listened to with great attention. The Belgian representative, M. Pirmez, in reply, maintained that it was necessary to have a single gold standard in all countries. He argued in favour of maintaining the status quo. M. Pirmez having said that for States which were subject to a forced paper currency, bimetallism was a question of national finance, because they sought to extricate themselves from their position by means of a depreciated white metal, Signor Seismit Doda, the Italian delegate, asked permission to speak, and declared in the name of his Government that Italy had no idea of making a stroke of business by sending representatives to the conference, but only of furnishing the results, whatever might be their value, of her experience, her study, and her views of a question which interested the whole world, and which was not limited to the facts of the moment, but concerned the future of a well-organized international currency accepted by all States. He proceeded to defend the convention of the Latin Union, which he had signed when a Minister, and to which M. Pirmez had made allusion in speaking of silver having emigrated from Italy. In that convention Italy had given proof of her good faith towards allied countries. The next sitting is fixed for Tuesday.

In conformity with a desire expressed by the members of the Conference, they will be received in audience on Monday by M. Grévy. They will pay a visit on the same day to the Bank of France.

HUNGARIAN FINANCE.

PESTH, MAY 7.

The Hungarian revenue returns for the first quarter of 1880 show an improvement of 4,500,000 florins as compared with the same period of the previous year. The expenditure, however, shows an increase of 7,400,000 florins, leaving an unfavourable balance of 2,900,000 florins. This result is in part due to decreased receipts from tobacco, which, however, will be made good in the course of the year, partly also to an expenditure of a transitory character, and partly to useful investments. Consequently an improvement is shown, not only by a considerable increase of some of the receipts, but also in the entire returns.

DENMARK.

COPENHAGEN, MAY 7.

The Folkething has been dissolved in consequence of no agreement being arrived at on the Financial Law.

The general elections are fixed for the 24th inst. and the new Folkething will meet on the 27th.

THE UNITED STATES.

WASHINGTON, MAY 7.

The Treasury has up to the present received $87,000,000 of Six per Cent. Bonds for extension, including $12,000,000 received yesterday.

Five persons were arrested at Philadelphia yesterday by order of the Government, charged with executing fraudulent bonds for the performance of Star Route Mail contracts. Warrants have also been issued for the arrest of two other persons on the same charge.

CANADA.

MONTREAL, MAY 6.

The strike of workmen on the Grand Trunk Railway has now terminated.

THE ARGENTINE CONFEDERATION.

BUENOS AYRES, APRIL 11.

A petition has been addressed to the Government for a grant of territory for the establishment of a Scotch colony near Chubut. The President, in reply, has promised the land gratis. To-morrow an Argentine steamer will take 40 Welsh colonists to Chubut.

The Governor of Carrientes intends making a grant of land for an English company to start a sugar plantation with mills.

CUBA.

NEW YORK, MAY 7.

Intelligence received here from Havannah states that the extension of the Spanish Constitution to Cuba was formally promulgated on the 1st inst., amid salvoes of artillery. Great festivities were also held in celebration of the event.

The official Cuban Gazette published a Royal order stating that the new Constitution would in no way be permitted to prejudice the execution of the law of 1880 for the emancipation of the slaves in the island.

FRANCE AND TUNIS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES.

Sir,—In answer to a question which I put to Sir Charles Dilke in the House of Commons on Tuesday last as to the importance of Biserta, he stated that "the Government were quite alive to the importance of that position," but he added that "it was doubtful whether a large expenditure on the dredging of the lake would make it available as a harbour." It is not astonishing that this answer should have caused that "intense surprise among the British colony at Tunis," which was announced in yesterday's telegrams, or that that colony should think that it showed "an ignorance of the vast practical value of that port and position even in its present state." I am bound to say that Sir Charles Dilke's answer had something of the same effect on my mind.

In the journal of the Geographical Society of 1846 will be found a description of the lake of Biserta, founded on a survey made in May, 1845, by that distinguished officer Admiral Spratt, when lieutenant on board Her Majesty's ship Beacon, which will be read at this time with much interest and advantage. By referring to it it will be seen that the question of dredging the lake of Biserta would never arise. Admiral Spratt puts its average depth at five to six fathoms, or from 30ft. to 36ft., and as the draught of our biggest men-of-war does not, I believe, exceed 27ft., there would be at all times ample accommodation for the largest class of ironclads in the lake. The obstruction alluded to by Sir Charles Dilke exists in the channel leading to the lake. It is, as the Admiral describes it, "in the intricate part between the fishery and the bar at the mouth of the canal, which in its windings is nearly a mile in length and which is 2ft. to 10ft. deep only;" but he further says "that there is no alluvial encroachment or filling up of the mouth of the canal, as the matter brought down from the upper lake is deposited before it reaches the narrow outlet near the town;" and he mentions this "as an important fact in respect of any future attempt to deepen the channel and open the lake as a harbour," evidently looking forward to the day when in the march of events and through the facilities afforded by an increased knowledge in scientific operations, the conversion of Biserta into a harbour would take place.

Whatever the sum required for the removal of these obstructions may be, there can be no doubt that France would willingly expend it to obtain the advantages held out to her by the possession of so invaluable a position. She would thus obtain a harbour perfectly unassailable, where she would have every facility for establishing an admirable dockyard and arsenal, thus enabling her to control the whole of the Mediterranean traffic going to the East of Sicily, which passes through a narrow channel only 80 miles in width from coast to coast, and to reduce Malta to a position of comparative unimportance.

Is it to be wondered at that Italy objects to so formidable a neighbour taking up such a position? What is the apathy that afflicts this country and prevents her from realizing the importance of the fact that France, having carried out a long intended and carefully prepared scheme, through the pretence of punishing the Kroumir tribes has at last obtained that which she has so long coveted—the harbour of Biserta? She may assure British and other statesmen that she has no intention of annexing territory; but guarantees will have to be given by the Bey before she retires, and the guarantees asked for will doubtless be of such a nature as to have the effect of establishing her permanently at Biserta.

Has England no interest in all these proceedings? Is the absorption of the whole of the trade and the monopoly of all the markets in North Africa nothing to this country? Have we so large a field for our mercantile operations that we can afford to allow France to close to us the whole of the trade of North Africa, while that of Western Asia threatens to pass from our hands? Or is it nothing that she is to be a standing menace to us at Malta?

Sir Charles Dilke stated that Her Majesty's Government are aware of the importance of the position occupied by France. I hope that it is so and that they are prepared to make to her, with Italy, such representations as may induce her to withdraw from it.

The great importance of this subject and the impossibility of finding an opportunity of discussing it fully in the House of Commons must be my excuse for addressing you at this length. I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

3, Savile-row, May 7. MONTAGUE GUEST.

THE EDDYSTONE LIGHTHOUSE.—The last section of the granite for the Eddystone Lighthouse has just been fitted and despatched from the De Lank granite quarries, near Bodmin, and it is expected the tower will be completely set on the rock before a month is over—fully six months before the contract time.

NEW SYNAGOGUE.—The Council of the United Jewish Synagogue has given authority for the erection of a permanent synagogue in substitution of the present iron structure at St. John's-wood. The entire cost of the building is not to exceed £8,000, and towards that amount the United Synagogue has contributed £3,000. Among the trustees in whom the site and building of the St. John's-wood Synagogue have been vested by the United Synagogue are Sir N. M. de Rothschild, M.P., and Baron Henry de Worms, M.P.

PARIS OMNIBUS COMPANY.—The published accounts of this company for the year 1880 show that the working of their 635 omnibuses resulted in a loss of 1,753,287 francs, but the profit made upon the tramway lines owned and worked by them was sufficient to cover that loss and leave a balance of profit amounting to 1,415,051 francs.

THE CENSUS.—The last returns show that the population of St. Marylebone is 155,004; since 1871 a decrease of 4,165; Islington has 282,620, or 68,842 more than in 1871; St. Pancras, 236,208, increase 14,743; Hastings, 42,256, or 12,967 more than in 1871; Reading, 42,050, or 9,737 more than in 1871; Hackney, 163,609, increase 48,542; Oldham, 111,343, increase 28,714; Bolton, 105,450, increase 22,596; Blackburn, 104,012, increase 27,675; Preston, 96,525, increase 11,098; Rochdale, 68,865, increase 24,309; Burnley, 63,502, increase 19,662; Wigan, 48,196, increase 9,101; Barrow, 47,097, increase 28,752; Warrington, 37,482, increase 5,338; Aston-under-Lyne, 37,049, increase 5,064; Southport, 32,164, increase 14,080; Norwich, 87,841, increase 7,459; Warminster, 13,840, decrease 1,320; Jersey, 51,020, decrease, 5,600.

IRELAND.

THE LAND AGITATION.

DUBLIN, MAY 7.

The rupture in the Irish Parliamentary party, or, rather, in the section of it which acknowledges Mr. Parnell as its leader, has caused much anxiety and regret among its supporters at this side of the Channel. They express a fear that the loss of the votes of the majority of those present at the recent meeting may endanger the safety of the Bill, and they deplore the existence of disunion in the ranks at a time when the details of the measure will have to be fought out in Committee. When it is remembered that the majority number altogether only 17 votes and that the whole party if they voted solid could only add 32 to the majority for the second reading, it must appear strange that any apprehension should be felt as to any effect which the action or inaction of Mr. Parnell's followers can have upon the fate of the Bill. Its promoters are doubtless reassured by the thought that if every member who sits on the Opposition bench, including the disunited sections of the Irish Parliamentary party, were to combine and vote against it, the Government, if they take measures to bring up all their forces, can outnumber them by a large majority, even after making allowances for possible defections upon the question. Efforts have, it seems, been made, without success, to reconcile the two parties, and the minority are, it is said, determined to act upon their own convictions, notwithstanding the pledge which they took, many of them very reluctantly, at the conference in Dublin, to yield to the decision of the majority. Had the hostile movement against the Bill been made on grounds of principle and a direct issue instead of as a measure of retaliation upon a collateral proceeding, and, to a large extent, from personal feeling, it is probable that the minority would have felt under a greater difficulty in declining to obey the arbitrary resolution of the conference, which was passed upon it by an extreme and tyrannical section. The opponents of the Bill and of the Irish Parliamentary party look on complacently at the quarrel, and ridicule the assumption of the party to represent the Irish nation, although they number only one half of the whole body of Liberal and Home Rule members. Mr. Shaw and his followers, as well as the four Liberals of the north, who do not sympathize with the policy of the party, are altogether ignored. Mr. Dillon's arrest, which Mr. Parnell and his devoted band are so eager to resent, has not produced in Ireland an amount of excitement and indignation at all commensurate with the intensity of their passion. The local leagues and boards of guardians in numerous places are passing resolutions protesting against the conduct of the British Government; but compared with the demonstrations which have taken place when the heart of the people was really stirred, such expressions of vexation appear very faint and feeble. The course which Mr. Parnell's party have resolved to take does not meet with the unqualified approval of even the most ardent and advanced of their supporters here. Archbishop Croke, who is in the van of the movement, in full accord with the foremost leaders, writes a long letter to-day on the subject, in which he expresses his dissent from their policy. He says that as regards Mr. Dillon, he yields to no man in Ireland in respect for him or in the amplest appreciation of his noble nature. He admires him as a hero, and believes in him as a politician. He thinks he is thoroughly acquainted with the wants and woes as well as the virtues of the people, and that he would unhesitatingly lay down his life for his country's good. "It is kind for him," observes his Grace, "to be an Irish nationalist. His father before him had to fly for his life with a felon's price upon his head, and had

"To run the outlaw's brief career

but his Grace endorses the opinion that after all the "fact that the Government, by arresting Mr. Dillon has done a wrong and spiteful thing, is not a sufficient reason why the Irish party in Parliament should do a foolish or even imprudent thing to avenge it." His Grace is prepared to take his share "in any movement within the law which the friends of Mr. Dillon may suggest, whether as regards the action of the Government in his case, or as a testimony of the truth, high principle, chivalry, and dauntless patriotism of Tipperary's imprisoned member." At the same time he cannot approve of the especial means which the Irish Parliamentary party are said to contemplate with a view to exhibit their sense of loyalty towards their colleague. With respect to the Land Bill, he holds to the pronouncement of the hierarchy, and while commending the fidelity and expressing admiration of the "pluck and perseverance" of the advanced Irish party in Parliament, he takes the liberty of saying to them "that with great respect for their judgment, the vast and overwhelming majority of the Irish people, including, of course, Irish ecclesiastics of all grades, are in my humble opinion in favour of giving the Government a fair chance of passing the Bill, in case the amendments suggested by the bishops, as well as in the Land League manifesto and convention, will have been substantially incorporated with it." Any how this does not appear to him to be a fitting hour to oppose the measure. Let it have a second reading, he says, and then let it be discussed and dissected, and fought over, if necessary in Committee, and if it cannot be brought into such shape as would commend it to the good sense of the country, let it then in God's name, he says, be rejected by all means as inadequate to do what it pretends to do.

Whatever may be thought of Mr. Dillon's arrest by his friends and admirers, there can be little doubt that it has given a check to lawlessness in the country. Although the accounts from different places still show that the people are in a state of reckless excitement, and disposed to follow the advice of their leaders in defeating and resisting the law, the number of outrages has decreased during the last week. Some further arrests of local agitators have been made in the west and south, and the disaffected classes are thus reminded of the power of the authorities to put down disorder with a strong hand. The persons arrested are of a humble rank in life, but possess an amount of local influence which makes them dangerous to the public peace.

MAY 8.

Mr. Dillon, M.P., is now in the infirmary, and is under the care of Dr. Kenny, who is specially appointed by the Land League to look after him. He is not suffering from any actual ailment, but is of a delicate constitution. On his first entry into the exercise yard there was a noisy demonstration by the other prisoners, which was at once suppressed, the whole party being remitted to their cells. The Government are doing all they can to make the imprisonment as little irksome as possible to the prisoners. Every reasonable concession which they ask for is freely granted, and the only question which may arise is, not whether the discipline is too strict, but whether it is not becoming too lax. Even the more liberal rules which have been made especially for their advantage are not strictly enforced. In consequence of complaints made about "the cage" in which the inmates receive visitors, the prison authorities have ordered that the construction shall be modified. It now extends in height to the ceiling, and it is to be reduced to the level of the prisoner's head. A waiting-room is also to be fitted up in the Court-house adjoining the gaol for the accommodation of visitors. Another arrest to which importance is attached was made yesterday under the Protection Act. Mr. John Leaney, of Richmond-hill, Kilmainham, was lodged in gaol yesterday morning under the Lord-Lieutenant's warrant. He is manager to Messrs. Connor, Dunne, and Kelly, tanners and parchment manufacturers, Watling-street. He states that he does not know why he is incarcerated. It is understood that the arrest is connected with the Fenian outrage. Since the outrage the owner of the house in which the rifles were found, who gave them up to the police, has received threatening letters. The resident magistrate and the Crown solicitor attended at Galway Prison yesterday to take informations against Mr. Gordon, who was one of the traversers in the State prosecutions, for an alleged seditious speech delivered after his arrest under the Coercion Act.

At the Monasterevan petty sessions, on Friday, a young man, named Mooney, a fellow of great muscular strength, was charged with violently assaulting a bailiff in the street of the town in October last by striking him in the face with such force as to fell him senseless to the ground and cut him. The assault was witnessed by several persons, but no efforts were made to arrest him. He afterwards absconded, but the police kept a look out, and on his return recently arrested him. The assault was proved by two witnesses, and the magistrates sentenced him to 14 days' imprisonment, with hard labour.

The first prosecution under the Arms Act took place yesterday at Ballinasloe, where a man was charged with having percussion caps in his possession without a licence. He was taken up for being drunk and disorderly, and, on being searched, the caps were found in his pocket. He alleged that he expected to get a licence, and was let off with a caution.

A number of cruel injuries to cattle have been committed near Boyle, in the county Roscommon. On Friday night the tails were cut off and the teeth knocked out of several cattle grazing on large farms. The farmers had been threatened with death if they sent cattle in upon the lands, and disregarded the warning; hence the revenge which was taken. A landowner lately advertised some grazing lands in the neighbourhood to be let. Notices were immediately put up cautioning the farmers against sending in any cattle upon them; but about a dozen farmers paid no attention to the publication. On Friday morning each of them received a letter with the usual embellishment—a coffin—threatening them with immediate death if they did not remove the cattle from the "forbidden farms."

On Thursday night an armed party called at the house of a farmer who had sent cattle to graze and warned him to take them away before the next night, or they would soon come again and cut his ears off. On Friday a countryman was coming into Boyle Market when a stranger rudely accosted him and demanded to know whether he was a member of the Land League. He replied that he was, and the man asked to see his card, which he declined to produce. The fellow then assaulted him violently, and he was only saved from some serious injury by the arrival of some persons.

The investigation in Galway Gaol yesterday into the charge preferred against P. J. Gordon, one of the State traversers, who was recently arrested under the Protection Act, lasted over four hours. The charge was that of inciting to murder Mr. Walter Burke, of Carraghlea, and Mr. Hubert Davis, of Ballyhaunis, both landed proprietors. The words complained of were used in a speech made at the railway station after his last arrest. He was committed to take his trial at the next Castlebar Assizes.

The charge stated in the warrant under which John Leahy was yesterday committed to Kilmainham Gaol was that of being accessory to shooting. There is no doubt the arrest is connected with the attempted assassination in Cumberland-street last Sunday.

A violent assault was made on Saturday upon Captain Wilson, the Governor of Derry Gaol, by a prisoner named Mitchell, who had been discharged from the Army for bad conduct. He was undergoing a sentence of imprisonment for assaulting a warder. He complained of the dietary and asked to see the governor. Captain Wilson, when making his rounds, went to the cell, and the moment the door was opened Mitchell sprang upon him and struck him a violent blow on the neck with some sharp instrument. The cell was searched, but no knife or other weapon was found. A piece of wood was found with an iron nail of the prisoner's clog inserted, which no doubt was used to inflict the injury. Informations were taken against the prisoner, and he was remanded.

CORK, MARCH 8.

The first meeting of the Land League in Cork since the proclamation of the city under the Coercion Act took place yesterday. The chairman, adverting to the fact, said the city had not been so peaceable for 17 years as it was at present, and he thought the only effect of this threat of coercion would be to stimulate them to work, and help to settle any differences that existed. A resolution was submitted to the League stigmatizing the arrest of Mr. Dillon as a deliberate insult to the Irish people, and offering him the sympathy of the League in his prison cell. The proposer, Mr. C. P. O'Sullivan, regarded the arrest as a piece of vindictiveness on the part of the Government. It only showed that the Irish people could not hope for anything from constitutional action in this country. The time had almost come for the people to consider whether it would not be right not to pay a single shilling of rent until such men as Davitt and Dillon were released. If they decided not to pay rent no Government could compel them to do so, and if they all united and did not go behind one another's backs to pay their rent they would meet the Government effectually. Mr. Heffernan, in supporting the resolution, did not agree in the advice that the people should pay no rents. They ought to pay fair rents; but, having regard to American competition, it would be a question hereafter whether they would be able to do so. The resolution was passed.

A serious riot occurred yesterday at Currans, a small village within six miles of Tralee. The annual fair was being held there, and a large force of police had been drafted into the place. In the evening a man was arrested for drunkenness, and his friends attempted to rescue him. This led to a general mêlée, in the course of which sticks and stones were vigorously used against the police, the sub-inspector receiving two severe blows. The whole police force of 50 was concentrated in the road, and the crowd having continued the attack, Mr. Arthur Herbert, J.P., read the Riot Act. The police then proceeded to load. The people, seeing this, fell back; but they re formed, and were preparing to assail the police from two points. Prominent members of the Land League, however, interfered, and after considerable difficulty succeeded in preventing a collision, which must have resulted disastrously to the civilian mob.

Yesterday morning a civil bill officer and a law messenger from Mallow proceeded to the counties of Limerick and Tipperary to serve ejectments on four of the tenants of Mr. Brooke Brasier, of Balligellis. They succeeded in serving some of the ejectments, but the object of their visit having become known, a mob was summoned by means of horns sounded in the adjacent hills, and the law officers had to run for their lives to a small police station at Kilross, in the county of Tipperary. The constable of the station, apprehending an attack, sent to Tipperary for a reinforcement. In the meantime a great crowd of people surrounded the station, and demanded the surrender of the bailiffs. Stones were thrown, and the windows of the house were wrecked. When a reinforcement of six men arrived from Tipperary an attempt was made to intercept their progress and prevent them from reaching the station. Three of them were struck with stones, but by charging the people and threatening to fire they eventually succeeded in joining their besieged companions. By this time nearly three thousand men and women had assembled. They clamoured for the bailiffs, and shouted and yelled in a fierce manner. Stones were also flung on the roof of the station and against the windows and doors. Amid this scene of violence four priests arrived and endeavoured in vain to induce the people to desist. Soon afterwards a large force of constabulary, with 100 men of the 48th Regiment, arrived, and Mr. M'Carthy, R.M., ordered the people to disperse. They refused, and commenced stone-throwing at the police and military, some of whom were struck. Mr. M'Carthy ordered the police to arrest the ringleaders, and a dash was made among the crowd, 22 of whom were arrested. The police and military were ordered to load their rifles, and the mob, having become overawed, subsequently dispersed. The bailiffs were rescued, and the military did not reach Tipperary till 3 o'clock on the following morning with their prisoners. One of the policemen had his teeth knocked out by a blow from a stone, and a man who levelled a stone at a soldier was in turn struck with the butt-end of a rifle and knocked down.

CARDINAL MANNING AND THE LAND LEAGUE.—Cardinal Manning has forbidden the use of any of the halls of the Catholic Clubs or the assembly rooms of the Total Abstinence Society of the League of the Cross for meetings of branches of the Land League. The announcement has caused considerable excitement and comment.

IBERIAN ORNAMENTAL ART.—A meeting of the Committee for promoting the Special Loan Exhibition of Spanish and Portugese Ornamental Art was held at the South Kensington Museum on Friday, the 6th inst. Prince Leopold, K.G. presided. There were also present the Marquis de Casa Laiglesia, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary for Spain; Sir A. H. Layard, Sir W. H. Gregory, K.C.M.G., Mr. Francis Cook (Vizconde di Montserrat in Portugal), Mr. Augustus W. Franks, F.R.S., F.S.A., Rear Admiral de Kantzow, Mr. Adriano de Murrieta, Mr. E. J. Poynter, R.A., Mr. J. C. Robinson, F.S.A., Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild, Mr. C. Schreiber, M.P., Mr. Richard A. Thompson, and the hon. secretary, Mr. A. C. King, F.S.A. The Director of the Museum, Sir P. Cunliffe Owen, K.C.M.G. also attended the meeting. Promises were reported of important contributions on loan from the Royal and national collections in Spain and Portugal and from numerous private collections in those countries, in France, and in England. Application has already been made to owners of well-known art treasures of Peninsular origin in this country; but it is possible that many half-forgotten specimens of goldsmith's work are hidden in the plate closets of old families. The committee trust that owners of such pieces and of other suitable examples of the industrial arts of Spain and Portugal will be good enough to place them at their disposal. Paintings are not included in the scheme. The exhibition will probably be opened early in June.

A RAILWAY CONCERT.—The annual "railway concert" in support of the London Hospital will be given to-morrow at St. James's-hall, under the patronage of the Marquis of Salisbury, and directed by Mr. W. Ganz. The great London terminus of the Great Eastern Railway in Liverpool-street, the stations and shunting yards of the London, Tilbury, and Southend Railway and of the North London Railway are within the district of the hospital, and railway men have unfortunately to be often treated within its walls. In return they promote (and attend in large numbers) this annual benefit concert, by which last year £158 was collected for the charity, making a total of £1,012 realized for the hospital in a series of years.

STEAM ON STREET TRAMWAYS.—At the meeting of the Liverpool Health Committee on Thursday an important proposal affecting street locomotion came under notice. Preparatory to an application to the Board of Trade, the Liverpool Tramways Company sought the consent of the Corporation to the use of steam in connexion with the tramcars running on the city roads. It was resolved:—"That permission be granted for the use for one month of steam in this instance as an experiment only, on the company undertaking to indemnify the corporation for any loss or damage, and that the experiment shall be tried at their entire risk, and that the Town Clerk intimate to the company that in the event of the experiment being successful the terms on which steam will be permitted to be used will have to be considered by the Council."

DISCLAIMER.—Messrs. Edmund and John Gardner, lamp manufacturers, of 453, 454, Strand, 3 and 4, Duncannon-street, and 112, St. Martin's-lane, W.C., desire us to state that John Gilbert Gardner, bankrupt, described as of 449, Strand, is not, nor ever has been, in any way, directly or indirectly, connected with, or related to, any member of their firm.

A GALLANT RESCUE.—Friday's Gazette contains a notice that Her Majesty the Queen has been graciously pleased to confer the "Albert Medal of the Second Class" on George Williams, boatman, Uzon Station, of the Coastguard. The following is an account of the services in respect of which the decoration has been conferred:—On Sunday morning, the 6th of March last, during a heavy gale, accompanied by blinding snow and sleet, the Norwegian brig Ranger, of Fredrikshald, was wrecked at Marywells, on the Uzon Guards, when Williams, by his gallant conduct, was the means of saving the four survivors of the crew, the master and mate having been washed overboard when the vessel struck on the rocks. Communication with the wrecked vessel was obtained by means of the rocket apparatus, but the crew did not seem to understand how to use it, so Williams got into the breeches buoy and hauled himself out hand over hand. On getting within about 20 yards of the wreck, and finding he was making no headway, he dropped from the buoy on to the rocks, and made his way over them and through the wreckage to the wreck, on reaching which he found the crew quite helpless. By dint of great exertions he managed to get on board and secure the hawser, but the whip (the endless rope by which the breeches buoy is hauled backwards and forwards by the party on shore) was foul among the wreckage. In endeavouring to clear it the whip carried away, leaving one end on board, the other on shore. Williams then sent one man on shore, but in hauling off the whip again got foul of the wreckage, and was cleared with great difficulty. Then two more men were landed. One man was then left, with whom Williams himself intended going ashore, but before he could get into the buoy it was hauled away from him. The lines again got foul, and the man was in great danger of being drowned in the breakers, when Williams jumped from the wreck, swam to the breeches buoy, and cleared it. They were then both hauled ashore, much exhausted. Williams's hands were greatly lacerated, and his back severely bruised, and he has since suffered severely from the effects of the exposure and the shock to the system.

PASSPORTS IN ROUMANIA.—Friday's Gazette contains a notice that the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs has received from Her Majesty's Minister at Bucharest a despatch, dated the 20th of April, 1881, relating to passports, of which the following is an extract:—"The law respecting aliens has revived previously existing regulations with regard to tickets of residence (permis de séjour) with additional stringency in Roumania. I consider it my duty to point out to your Lordship the necessity for all British subjects coming to Roumania to be provided with a passport, without which no foreigner is to be allowed to remain in this country in future."

THE GENERAL COUNCIL OF MEDICAL EDUCATION.—Friday's Gazette contains an Order in Council renewing for the term of five years, dating from the 23d inst., the appointment of Mr. John Simon, C.B., F.R.S., and Mr. Thomas Pridgin Teale, F.R.C.S., as members of the General Council of Medical Education and Registration of the United Kingdom.

MONEY-MARKET and CITY INTELLIGENCE.

PRINTING-HOUSE-SQUARE, Saturday Evening.

The Money-Market continues very quiet, and rates are a shade weaker at 1⅞ to 2 per cent. for the discount of three months' bank bills and 1¾ for loans.

The weekly return of the New York Associated Banks shows another large increase, amounting to nearly £1,000,000, in the specie.

The Stock Markets still exhibit a strong upward tendency, the causes which we have noticed lately, such as the quiet in politics, the cheapness of money and the settled aspect of the Money-Market, the fine weather, and the scarcity of securities, continuing to operate. The advance in Consols, which has made further progress to-day, appears to give a stimulus to the whole market, especially as the difficulty of exchanging from Government securities into other high-class investment stocks is found very serious. To-day the rise in Consols for money has been ¼ to 102⅝ to 102¾ and 5-16 for the account to 102¾. New Threes and Reduced are also ½ higher at 101⅛ to 101¼. Board of Works Three per Cent. Stocks are ¼ better, and Colonial Bonds generally are firmer.

In the English Railway Market, although the actual operations have been limited, as usual on a Saturday, the tone has been very good. Prices, after opening higher, further advanced during the day. Great Northern "A" Stock has been favourably affected by the closing of a speculative account for the fall, and has risen 1¾ per cent. The other changes include a rise of ½ in Brighton Deferred and London and South-Western, ⅜ in Midland, South-Eastern Deferred, and Great Western, and ¼ each in London and North-Western and Chatham Ordinary Stocks. There has been a recovery in Grand Trunk Railway stocks on the contradiction of yesterday's telegram regarding the strike. Toronto, Grey, and Bruce bonds rose 1, but the last prices were not quite the best. In American Railways, excepting Illinois shares, which are ½ lower, the rise is general, Erie Preference shares being 1½ higher. Anglo-American Telegraph and the Deferred stocks have recovered ½ of their late depression, although it is now stated that there is no prospect of an arrangement among the competing companies, and that the only prospect is of a tariff reduction to 1s. per word, without an arrangement.

With the exception of Mexican and Peruvian Stocks, which have been dull, the Foreign Market has been very firm as a whole. Egyptian Stocks have been bought both on home and foreign account, and are ¼ to ½ higher. Russian 1873 Bonds show a further recovery of ⅜, and all Turkish descriptions are better. The continued advance in Consols specially stimulates buying in certain Foreign Stocks, which by comparison look cheap. Thus French Three per Cents., at 85⅛, attract more attention, as well as the new scrip at 3 prem. In these a considerable investment business is going on. Complaints are heard on all sides from investment brokers in this market that orders to buy cannot be executed owing to the scarcity of stock.

There were no reported bullion transactions at the Bank.

The position of the silver market and the Eastern exchanges has undergone no change, there having been scarcely any business in the former, but there seems to have been more demand for Rupee Paper, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. having risen to 91⅛ to 91½, and the Four per Cents. to 84⅝.

The Board of Trade returns for April were issued to-day. As we anticipated when the March returns were issued, they show a decided falling-off both in imports and exports as compared with the corresponding month of last year. As regards imports, the amount for the month is £35,232,000, which is a decrease of £5,380,000, and 13 per cent., as compared with the corresponding month of last year. The decrease is very largely in articles of food, but wool and other raw materials also show a decrease, raw cotton, exceptionally, showing none. For the four months of the current year now elapsed, the total importations have been £135,464,000, which is a decrease of £7,406,000, and 5 per cent., as compared with the corresponding period of last year. As compared with 1879, however, the figures of the imports, both for the month and four months, show an increase. As regards the exports, the amount for the month is £18,130,000, which is a decrease of £1,493,000, and 7½ per cent., as compared with April, 1880. The chief diminution is in the exports of iron and steel, where the falling-off amounts to £866,000. In cotton piece goods there is a slight diminution, but in cotton yarn and manufactures of all kinds together there is a slight increase. For the four months of the current year the amount of the exports has been £71,415,000, which is a decrease of £477,000, and nearly ¾ per cent., as compared with the corresponding period of last year. As compared with 1879, however, the exports, both for the month and four months, show a large increase. These figures of the foreign trade are very much in accordance with what has been reported lately of the dulness of trade throughout the country. There is a slight pause in the progress of the trade revival, the check in the iron trade being more specially marked. But the comparison is with very large and suddenly increased totals last year, and, allowing for the special character of the decrease in some articles, it cannot be said that they indicate anything more than a pause in the progress of the movement which began about two years ago. Equally, however, there is no sign as yet of a renewed start upwards, and the indications of the returns for the next few months must accordingly be the more carefully watched. The entries and clearances of shipping in the foreign trade, it may be added, also show a considerable decrease both for the month and four months. From the account now made up for the first quarter of the year showing the trade with particular countries, it appears that there is an increase of £5,000,000 in the imports from the United States in the quarter, and a decrease of about £2,500,000 in the exports thereto. We subjoin our usual detailed analysis of the articles of import and export in the past month :—

* Increase. † Decrease.

With regard to the pig iron trade, which is now the subject of so much general interest, the correspondent whom we quoted a week ago writes that there has been no change during the week, either on the Clyde or in the north of England. Prices in both districts have, it is true, receded 6d. per ton; but this is more to be traced to the lack of any improvement than to any change for the worse. All that can be said is that from no quarter is there any improved demand, and this want of improvement, combined with the still increasing stocks and heavy production, has disheartened a few holders and caused them to realize, which is the reason for the week's drop in prices. The closing price of the week for Scotch warrants is 47s. 2d. rather sellers, and for No. 3 Middlesbrough 37s. 6d. to 37s. 9d. per ton f.o.b. Tees. The Scotch shipments of last week were 13,147 tons, against 17,749 tons in the corresponding week last year, and the exports for the week ended to-day are estimated at about 12,000 tons. The returns for the Cleveland iron district for April show an increase of stock of 5,624 tons for that month; but, considering the large production of the district (233,000 tons in April) the increase in stock is trifling. On the Clyde 122 furnaces are now blowing, against 121 last week and 116 in the corresponding week of last year; and in the Cleveland district there are 119 furnaces in blast, as compared with 120 at the end of last week and 111 at the end of April 1880. So far our correspondent, whose account still shows the trade in the condition of last week—that is, with a large consumption in progress, but with a production larger than that of last year, and somewhat in excess of the consumption, and without any visible demand at present likely to absorb that excess. The main fact is that stocks are rather increasing at a period of the year when they ought to be diminishing. The accounts from the finished iron districts, we observe, seem generally to be becoming more favourable, but the improvement has evidently not yet gone far enough to be felt in the manufacture of pig iron.

The subjoined on the business of the past week is taken from the Mining Journal :—

The Mining Share Market has been quiet and rather dull this week; prices, generally speaking, have had a downward tendency, and our quotations are, for the most part, merely nominal. The chief demand has been for West Crebor at an advance, Prince of Wales, West Kitty, Roman Gravels, Wheal Crebor, East Blue Hills, Vans, West Frances, East Pool, Wheal Agar, Bassett, and a few others. Carn Brea, 22 to 23; Cook's Kitchen, 12 12½; Dolcoath, 56½ to 58½; East Lovell, 2 to 2½; East Pool, 38 to 40; North Penstruthal, 25s. to 30s.; Phœnix United, 3½ to 4; Polrose, ⅜ to 1; South Condurrow, 9 to 9½; South Frances, 10½ to 11; Tincroft, 18 to 19; West Basset, 14 to 14½; West Frances, 11½ to 12½; West Kitty, 3¾ to 4¼; West Peevor, 15½ to 16½; West Phœnix, 1⅝ to 1⅞; Wheal Basset, 6 to 6½; Wheal Grenville, 8 to 8½; Wheal Jane, ⅜ to ⅝; Wheal Peevor, 17½ to 18½; Wheal Uny, 2 to 2½; South Crofty, 9 to 9½; Wheal Kitty (St. Agnes), 2 to 2½; Wheal Agar, 11½ to 12; Blue Hills, 3½ to 3¾; East Blue Hills, 10s. to 15s.; New Kitty, 1⅜ to 1⅝; Polbreen, 1¼; Wheal Coates, 1⅜ to 1⅞; Bedford United, 1¾ to 2⅛; Carnarvon Copper, 1 to 1¼; Devon Great Consols, 11½ to 12½; East Caradon, 1 to 1¼; East Crebor, 7s. 6d. to 10s.; Gunnislake (Clitters), 3½ to 4; Hingston Down, 1 to 1¼; Morfa Du, ⅜ to 1; New West Caradon, 8s. to 10s.; Marke Valley, 1⅝ to 2; Wheal Crebor, 3¾ to 4¼; West Tolgus, 30 to 35; West Seton, 20 to 22; Mellanear, 4⅝ to 5; Mona, 12 to 13; Devon Friendship, 1 to 1¼; Sortridge Copper, ¼ to ½ prem.; South Devon Consols, 1⅞ to 2⅛; New Cook's Kitchen, 6 to 6½; Pary's Copper, 15s. to 17s. 6d.; Prince of Wales, ⅞ to 1; West Caradon, 15s. to 20s.; West Crebors, 11s. to 13s.; Great Laxey, 17 to 18; Roman Gravels, 12½ to 13½; East Roman Gravels, 15s. to 20s.; Tankerville Consols, 12s. 6d. to 15s.; Pandora, 17s. 6d. to 22s. 6d.; Bwlch United, 2⅝ to 3⅛; West Lisburne, 1⅜ to 1⅝; Glenroy, ⅜ to ⅝; North D'Eresby, 1⅛ to 1¼; Pen-y-Orsedd, 1 to 1¼; Kirk Michael, 1 to 1¼; Great West Chiverton, ¼ to ⅜; Frongoch, 3⅝ to 4⅛; Crosswood, ⅞ to 1⅛; Grogwinion, 2 to 3; Red Rock, 1½ to 2; New Wye Valley, 1 to 1¼; Ystwith, 1 to 1¼; Gwern-y-Mynydd, 1⅝ to 2; Coed-y-Fedw, 1 to 1¼; Goodeve, 1½ to 1⅝; Gorsedd and Merllyn, 3 to 3½; Great Holway, 5 to 5½; South Darren, 1½ to 1⅝; East Van, 1 to 1½; West Holway, 35s. to 40s. THE CATTLE TRADE.

BERWICK, May 7.—Large show of stock. A small attendance, however, and a dull trade. Calves made up to £5 and stirks from £7 to £11.

CORNWALL, 7th.—There was a plentiful supply of all kinds of cattle and sheep, but business was generally flat and prices stationary. Prime fat bullocks, £3 3s. to £3 5s.; middling, £2 18s. to £3; store steers, £2 to £2 7s.; cows and calves, £3 to £3 10s. per cwt. Fat wether sheep, 9½d. to 10d.; heavy ewes, 8½d. to 9d.; lamb, 11d. to 1s. per lb. Ewes and lambs, £2 10s. to £3 10s. per couple.

DONCASTER, 7th.—Supplies of beasts and sheep alike good, much of it lean stock well forward in condition. Buyers, however, were not so numerous, and trade ruled much quieter. Prices, however, remained fully equal to those last quoted, and a fair number of lots changed hands. Milch beasts and in-calvers, £16 to £20 and £24; heifers, £14 to £18; barren stock, £9 to £15; yearling calves, £6 to £9; sucking ditto, 35s. to 45s. a head. Sheep in large supply, but demand not particularly active at late prices. Hogs, 40s. to 52s.; ewes and lambs, 64s. to 72s.

DORCHESTER, 7th.—Large supply of cattle and sheep, and a better trade for all store stock. Cows and calves, £14 10s. to £20; barreners, £28 to £36 per pair; fat bulls, £18 to £23; fat ewes, 8d. to 9d. per lb.; wethers, 10d.; fat lamb, 8d. to 1s. Everything sold.

EXETER, 6th.—Average supply of stock. Trade sluggish, late prices prevailing. Fat beef, 12s. to 12s. 6d. per score; barreners, 8s. to 10s.; cows and calves, £16 to £24 each; ewes in wool, 8½d. to 9d. per lb.; wethers, 9½d. to 10d.; ewes out of wool, 7½d. to 8d. wethers ditto, 8½d. to 9d.

GLOUCESTER, 7th.—Trade continues dull, and prices low. Beef averages about 7d. per lb.; choice animals fetch 7½d. or 8d., but inferior not more than 6½d. Mutton in the wool fetches about 10d. per lb.; out of the wool, 9d.

LEICESTER, 7th.—Large delivery of beasts in excellent condition. Stock moved off freely; milch cows made £21 to £26 per head; home-bred bullocks, £17 to £19 each; Irish bullocks, £18 to £20 for best, and £16 10s. to £17s. 10s. for secondary; Welsh bullocks, £14 to £16 10s.; and runts, £9 to £11 per head. Small show of sheep, which sold slowly at irregular prices.

MALTON, 7th.—Good show of stock, but the high prices asked by the dealers checked business. Quotations about the same as last week, ruling from £5 to £7 for young stock, and up to £15 for stronger bullocks.

NORWICH, 7th.—Fair show of store cattle. Trade dull at about late rates, shorthorns making £8 to £22 per head; fat beasts, 8s. to 8s. 6d. and 9s. per stone. Fat sheep, 10s. to 10s. 6d. and 11s. per stone.

NOTTINGHAM, 7th.—The store stock-market was fairly supplied with horned beasts. Slow demand for milch cows, and prices may be quoted about £1 per head lower than heretofore, the range being from £16 to £23 per head. For barren beasts, however, a good inquiry prevailed, and rates were as high as those previously current—£11 to £16 per head. The supply of calves was an average one and the trade was brisk, late rates being maintained; suckers made 20s. to 30s. each. In sheep there was very little doing.

SOUTHAMPTON, 8th.—With an average supply the trade was good for stock of the best quality, but indifferent lots did not change hands. Prices on the whole were a trifle lower. Beasts sold at 13s. to 13s. 6d. per score, and wethers at 6s. 4d. to 6s. 8d. per stone.

WORCESTER, 7th.—The fair this week exhibited some dulness, but no appreciable decline in prices. In fact, mutton especially sustains its high price, 10d. to 11d. per lb., and lamb 1s.; beef, 7½d. to 8½d.

WHITECHAPEL HAY and STRAW MARKET, May 7.—Clover, first quality, 100s. to 124s.; inferior ditto, 60s. to 90s.; hay, first quality, 80s. to 112s.; inferior ditto, 30s. to 75s.; straw, 30s. to 45s. per load. Supplies large and trade dull, but without alteration in prices.

FOREIGN COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

PARIS, May 8, 4 p.m.—Business was done on the Petite Bourse to-day as follows :—Five per Cent. Rente, for account, 120f. 40c.; Five per Cent. Italian, 91f. 50c.; Egyptian Unified, 394f.; Five per Cent. Turkish, 17f. 40c.; Imperial Ottoman Bank, 685f.; Six per Cent. Hungarian Gold Rente, 103½c.

THE BERLIN BOURSE, May 7.—Austrian Paper and Silver Rentes were slightly lower, but the Hungarian Gold Rente was firm. Credit shares improved but Lombards were flat. Russians advanced. Exchange on St. Petersburgh was higher, at 205m.

THE VIENNA BOURSE, May 7.—There was very little doing to-day on the Bourse. The only alteration in Government securities was a slight fall in the Hungarian Gold Rente. Anglo-Austrian Bank shares exhibited a considerable improvement. Exchange on London and gold coin unaltered.

HONGKONG, May 6.—Manchester goods quiet, small business at unchanged rates; 8¼lb. shirtings, $2·30; 16-24's water twist, $93. Exchange on London, four months' bank bills, 3s. 9¼d.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Money easy. Stock market firm but quieter. Cotton quiet. Petroleum and coffee steady. Lard active, but drooping. Wheat weaker, and less doing. Flour shall shipments to Europe. Corn and sugar firm. Iron dull. Call money—United States' Government Bonds, 2 per cent.; ditto, other securities, 3 per cent. Exchange on London, 60 days' sight, $4 84½c.; cable transfers, $4 87½c.; exchange on Paris, 5f. 18⅜c.; ditto, Berlin, 94⅝. Five per Cent. The weekly return of the New York Associated Banks shows the following aggregate averages :—Loans and discounts, $310,800,000; specie, $73,300,000; circulation, $18,700,000; net deposits, $305,000,000; legal tenders, $16,000,000. The changes, compared with the previous return, are as follows :—Increase.—Loans and discounts, $6,400,000; specie, $4,000,000; circulation, $100,000; net deposits, $10,500,000; legal tenders, $200,000. The shipments of specie to Europe during the week amounted to $130,000 silver.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—Pennsylvania Railroad shares, 65⅝; petroleum, standard white, 7⅞c.

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—Cotton, middling, 10½c.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

HOPS.

CANTERBURY, May 7.—Although the past winter was severe and prolonged, it has had no deteriorating effect upon the hop plantations. The shoots of the plants are now to be observed in nearly all the gardens, and they present for the most part a healthy appearance. It is a noticeable feature, however, that no considerable outlay has been incurred by planters in respect to the cultivation of this particular produce, high manuring and a free use of new poles being rather the exception than the rule. On the light soils warm showers would do much good.

STATE OF TRADE.

BARNSLEY, 7TH.—The iron trade is quiet and two more furnaces have been blown out. The rolling mills are but partially employed, and the foundries are kept but moderately going. The Bessemer steel department continues active, more especially in rails. House coal is getting into less request, and prices are by no means firm.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS, 7TH.—A very fair trade is being done in all descriptions of Bessemer and foundry qualities of hematite pig-iron. The output of the furnaces is likely to be reduced, as the tendency of the market is in the direction of lower prices. The inquiry from America and the Continent is very strong, and on home account there is a large request. Prices range from 56s. to 60s. per ton at works. Steel makers are very busily employed, and in some instances are refusing new orders. Iron shipbuilders are doing a very steady trade.

BERMONDSEY, 7TH.—There has been little animation in the leather trade—only a continuance of the hand-to-mouth business which has so long prevailed. Common sole leather, offal and shoulders are still placed readily at late rates; light butts of better tannages also sell fairly. For medium and heavier weights the demand is more limited. Light dressing and shaved hides are moved freely. Market hides are without alteration in value.

BIRMINGHAM, 7TH.—The recovery of trade in the hardware branches proceeds very slowly. Contracts for constructive ironwork, bridges and girders, iron tubes, and wagon work on a somewhat extensive scale, have lately been placed with local manufacturers, but the terms in most cases are very low. It is only in birding guns and machinery that there is any real vitality in trade. Some descriptions of cheap jewellery are in improving request for seaside places, which are becoming fairly good customers also for metallic bedsteads, oil lamps, cooking stoves, and bath and toilet ware, and certain manufacturers in the wrought hollow ware and tinplate ware branches are fairly well employed for the moment on Government contracts. In other respects the home trade must be reported very dull. Money is evidently scarce still with the agricultural and landowning classes, and stocks are heavy. In the building trade there is a little more movement, though it is to a great extent of a speculative character, and the hinge and cut-nail makers and builders, iron and brass founders are experiencing an improved demand for their products. Bicycles are selling fairly well, and ironmongers are replenishing their stocks of travelling trunks in anticipation of the requirements of the tourist season.

BRADFORD, 7TH.—The wool market is without animation. The transactions in wool are very meagre, and just to cover urgent wants. Holders of wool endeavour to maintain prices, but the buyer has frequently an advantage. The yarn market is without material alteration. The business doing for export is of a very insignificant character. The offers made are usually at such low limits that they cannot be accepted. The quotations of spinners are reduced to the lowest point known for a long time past, and they find themselves unable to descend further. The piece market is very quiet. There is rather more activity on home account. The demand for the Continent is very restricted. Some manufacturers continue well engaged for the Eastern trade.

CANTERBURY, 7TH.—The wool trade has been less active this week in consequence of staplers awaiting the income of the new clip, which is fast being secured, and so far is represented to be of good quality. The quotations on the Exchange here to-day were :—Kent fleeces (old), 11d. to 12d.; lamb's ditto, 7d. to 8d. per lb.

CORK, 7TH.—Butter.—Firsts, 128s.; seconds, 99s.; thirds, 78s.; fourths, 56s.; mild, 111. Firkins in market, 1,294.

CORNWALL, 7TH.—A moderate business has been done in mine shares during the week, but prices remain as last reported. There is extraordinary activity in the promotion of new mines, or, rather, the reworking of abandoned sets by new companies on the limited liability principle. At Wheal Kitty (St. Agnes) meeting on Thursday a loss was shown on the four months working of £144; it was deemed necessary to make a call. Blue Hills shows a favourable balance of £331, and a dividend of 2s. per share was declared. Penhalls has a loss on four months' working of £441, and a debit balance of £386 which was carried forward. At the copper ore ticketing at Redruth on Thursday 1,024 tons of copper ore realized £3,759 3s. 6d., being an average of £3 13s. 6d. per ton. The average produce was 7½, the quantity of fine copper 74 tons 6cwt., and the average standard £88 10s.

DARLINGTON, 7TH.—The pig-iron trade has been very dull, with lower prices on the week. No. 3 is 37s. 6d. to 37s. 9d., with 9d. to 1s. per ton less for forge iron as quoted by merchants. Makers ask about 6d. per ton more in the general way. Very little business is done, however, either for present or future delivery. Shipments of pig iron from the Tees have been rather less. The tone of the manufactured iron trade continues to improve, and prices are firm. Bars and angles are £5. 10s., ship plates £6 to £6 5s., less 2½ per cent. commission. Puddled bars are more inquired after, and stand at £3 12s. 6d. to £3 15s. net. The household coal trade has been quiet, but there has been a steady trade reported from the Durham collieries.

DUNDEE, 6TH.—Flax and tow are in slow request, and prices a shade lower. Some sales of jute from ship's side have been made at a reduction on previous prices, but there is little changing hands in warehouse. Flax and tow yarns remain very dull, and rather cheaper; jute sorts are in good request, and heavy sizes are firmer. No change in the demand for or value of linens or sailcloth can be reported. The inquiry for jute fabrics is keeping up well, large quantities being sent to Odessa in anticipation of a rise in the Russian tariff on jute cloth.

GLASGOW, 6TH.—Transactions in sugar amount to 4,800 tons. Austrian beet in second hands brought 22s. 6d. to 22s. 9d. f.o.b., basis 88 per cent. analysis, and German after products brought 19s. to 19s. 6d. f.o.b., 75 per cent. analysis, for immediate shipment. There has been a firm market and the business done has been at full prices: good dry brown qualities of B. P. West India being well worth 22s. 3d. and 23s. in warehouse. The sales afloat have been at 21s. 9d. for Maceio, and at 23s. 9d. for fair to good refining Cuba muscovado, on floating terms. There has been an active demand for crushed, and a large business has been done at an advance of 3d. to 6d. in all descriptions, the market closing with a strong tone. The iron warrant market has been dull and drooping, and only a limited business has been done. Monday being a bank holiday the market was closed. Transactions took place on Tuesday from 47s. 6d. to 47s. 7½d.; Wednesday, 47s. 7½d. to 47s. 6½d.; Thursday, 47s. 7d. to 47s. 5d.; Friday, 47s. 6d. to 47s. 2d. The total shipments of Scotch pig iron last week were 13,147 tons against 17,749 tons for the corresponding week last year, being a decrease of 4,602 tons; making the decrease this year till date 103,767 tons. The stock in Messrs. Connal and Co.'s stores has been increased 2,995 tons this week, and now stands at 552,746 tons.

HALIFAX, 7TH.—English wool is a trifle easier in price, but there is so little of it selling that it is almost impossible to give a practical illustration that such is the case. The consumption is at a very low ebb, but if the improvement reported to day in price is a reality, and should be maintained, we may soon have a different state of things. Still, it is the Continental trade on which so much of our industry depends, and it must be confessed that in that direction the outlook is not at all bright.

HARTLEPOOLS (THE), 7TH.—Both arrivals and sailings have been a trifle more numerous than was the case in the preceding week, and not only are the imports of timber beginning to show signs of improvement, but those of general merchandise, especially from Hamburg and America, are decidedly better. Coal is being rather more extensively shipped, but its value is much the same.

HUDDERSFIELD, 7TH.—We have a better demand for better class worsteds and cheap suitings. Some of the mills where the former are made are, however, getting slack of work. There are some appearances of animation as regards plain unions and superfines. Stocks of these are not nearly so bulky as might have been expected after such a long depression in this branch. Merchants' advices from travellers are not of a very reassuring character. A few Canadian and Continental buyers are looking round mills and warehouses for anything cheap.

HULL, 7TH.—The outward tonnage has been greater this week than for many months past. The inward tonnage was slightly below that of the previous week. In the outward tonnage there was an increase to the extent of 11,115 tons, the total being 35,600 tons, against 24,485 tons in the previous week and 28,215 tons in the corresponding week of 1880. The grain imports were rather below the late average, but in many other articles there were large increases. In the export trade the most noticeable feature was the increase in the shipments of iron and steel. There was also a great increase in the export of coal, 33 ships having left during the week wholly or partially coal laden. The shipments included 5,385 tons to San Francisco.

KIDDERMINSTER, 7TH.—Rather more inquiry in the carpet trade and some orders have been coming in, not, however, to an extent to alter the general position of things. The tone of business has been quiet for several weeks, and there is no sign of any material change for the present. The weavers have rescinded the resolution they passed in the previous week regarding the wage scale for tapestry weaving and have offered to agree to larger concessions than at first. The tapestry manufacturers still adhered to their original proposals, and have been carrying on negotiations which, if completed, will lead to the removal of their looms to Worcester.

LEEDS, 7TH.—Business in woollen cloths is really brisker than has for a long time past been the case so late in the season. It is new patterns of goods adapted for autumn that are attracting most attention just now. Meanwhile considerable assortments of fancy coatings and suitings are required, and buyers are so much in earnest that objections as to prices are less frequently heard than formerly. It is not anticipated that there will occur much change in the prices of colonial wool at the sales which begin on Tuesday, and yet firms who stand in need of large parcels are buying at once rather than run the risk of cloths becoming dearer. Large quantities—as large as ever—of low-priced cheviots, tweeds, serges, and so on, continue to be made and sold. Prices in these instances are low, but it is the immensity of the turnover which pays. Strange to say, there is a chance of all-wool superfines coming into vogue again.

LIVERPOOL, 7TH.—The cotton market is not more than steady, though on the spot a fair business has been done. American cotton is freely offered. The sales are 8,000 bales, comprising 7,060 American, 140 Brazil, 400 Egyptian, and 400 Surat, and including 1,000 on speculation and for export. Futures are dull at a decline of 1-32d., owing to the probable continuance of heavy receipts at the American ports. The quotations are 5 25-32d. for May and May-June delivery, 5⅞d. for June-July, 5 31-32d. for July-August, 6 1-32d. for August-September, 5 29-32d. for September-October, and 5 25-32d. for October-November delivery. The sugar market is very firm with a good business at hardening prices. The sales include 4,500 bags Mauritius, at 21s. 9d. floating landing within 6d. of sample; 1,000 bags Bahia, at 22s. 6d. ex quay; 1,250 bags Peruvian, at 21s. 6d. to 22s. for syrups, and 26s. 6d. for grainy; and 25 tierces Belize concrete, at 20s. 6d. ex quay. Nothing done in rice.

MANCHESTER, 7TH.—Prices have continued generally steady for staple goods since last week, though the indisposition of buyers to operate without some reduction seems to be stronger. There is little fresh inquiry for India or China, except at rates quite unacceptable, and the attenuation of demand still tends towards weakness in the position of most descriptions of cloth, so that their quotations become more and more dependent on the length of forward engagements. Shirtings, dhooties, and jacconets are alike inactive, but there is no apparent pressure to sell. Mexicans and T-cloths are dull and stationary. A small business in printing cloths is reported at steady prices. There are again signs of rather more business in home trade goods. Yarns have been rather more yielding than cloth during the week, but the downward tendency is again checked, without much buying.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, 7TH.—The shipments of coal from the Tyne have again been large. The business from Russia has been coming forward somewhat more freely this week. Contractors are sending gas coals out to the Baltic. The importations of Danish and Swedish produce and cattle are large. The chemical trade is very depressed.

SHEFFIELD, 7TH.—The price of iron is very low, and hematite billets are quoted at a reduced figure, being obtainable at £6 10s. per ton. The profits in the rail trade are so narrow that one company here have stopped the mill in that department, but there is considerable activity in the armour-plate mills. For railway material, tires, and axles, as well as steel rails, there is a steady demand; and some of the engineering branches are busier. In the edge-tool trade there is a little improvement, and some good orders have recently been received for cutlery. Business with the United States, both in steel and cutlery, is quieter, but the Continental markets are yielding better orders.

NOTTINGHAM, 7TH.—There is a slight improvement in the home branch of the lace trade, and the demand for goods for Germany and France is well maintained. A few repeat orders have come to hand from the United States, and orders for staple goods for the autumn season are also being given out from the same market. Although a great many machines are now employed in making Spanish silk laces and streamers, the supply is still wholly inadequate to the demand. Plain nets, Brussels, and mosquito nets, &c. are unaltered in price, with a moderate inquiry. A little more is being done for Australia and other colonies. A fair business doing in plain silk nets, silk Brussels, Cambray, and Malines nets. The hosiery trade is still in a rather unsatisfactory condition. Some manufacturers are pretty well employed, but the total amount of business doing is still below the average for the time of the year.

SUNDERLAND, 7TH.—There is considerably more activity to report in the shipping trade this week, the Baltic ports, after a very protracted winter, being now open. The imports thence include 25 large cargoes of timber, most of it being for pit purposes. Other imports—1,570 tons iron ore, from Spain, about 1,500 tons pig iron and 1,000qrs. of wheat from America in bags. Demand for both gas and household coal active, though prices almost stationary. Exports, which are largely in excess of the corresponding week of last year, about 26,000 tons coal and 600 tons coke foreign; and 35,600 tons coal coastwise. Shipbuilding active.

WOLVERHAMPTON, 7TH.—The output of the week has been up to the average, and the medium houses have taken a good quantity of work. There are fair inquiries for bars, sheets, hoops, and girder plates. Prices rule steady at £7 for marked bars. Very few sales are beyond those for early wants. The pig makers are doing a very quiet business. Foundry metal is in more demand than forge iron. Coal contracts are scarce and only for small quantities.

THE CORN TRADE.

R. GIFFEN, Controller of Corn Returns.
Statistical and Corn Department, Board of Trade,
May 7.

AYLESBURY, May 7.—About an average attendance, with fair supply of wheat, but trade ruled dull at barely the prices of this day week. Barley in small supply and fully as dear. Oats quiet, but firm. Other articles unchanged. Wheat, 40s. to 52s.; barley, 28s. to 36s.; oats, 23s. to 34s. per imperial qr.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS, 7th.—Wheat sold at easier prices. Oats dearer. Barley easier. Other articles steady.

BATH, 7th.—Scanty supply of English wheat; late rates made for good qualities. Foreign slow sale at barely last week's prices.

BEDFORD, 7th.—Small attendance. Trade slow in wheat, and last week's prices were barely obtained except for high class qualities. Red wheat ranged from 41s. to 47s.; barley, 26s. to 34s., but little showing and demand limited. Oats without change.

BERWICK, 7th.—Wheat met a slow sale at about late prices. Barley neglected, while oats still keep firm and in demand. Red wheat, 41s. to 44s.; white ditto, 43s. to 45s.; grinding barley, 30s. to 33s.; malting ditto, 34s. to 38s.; oats, 22s. to 27s.

CAMBRIDGE, 7th.—A fair show of wheat, and to effect sales holders had to take 1s. per qr. less money than last week, and even then trade was slow. The few samples of malting barley on offer sold readily at late rates. Oats in very small supply, and the high prices asked quite checked the trade.

CARLISLE, 7th.—Small supply of both wheat and oats. The former sold quickly at last week's rates. Oats slow and against sellers. White wheat, 49s. 4d. to 54s. 8d.; red wheat, 42s. 8d. to 48s.; oats, 21s. 4d. to 25s. 8d. per qr.

CHESTER, 7th.—The little business doing in English grain was without change in prices—white quoted at 7s. 2d. to 7s. 3d.; and red at 7s. per 75lb.

CORK, 7th.—Wheat continues very quiet. Only a moderate business passing for the immediate wants of millers. The quotations were :—Red winter, 28s. per brl.; ghirka, 27s.

CORNWALL, 7th.—So little home-grown corn as now on offer is not remembered in the trade; the stock seems to be almost exhausted. Prices remain as last quoted. Wheat 9s. 6d. to 9s. 9d. barley, 6s. 1d. to 6s. 5d.; oats, 7s. 7d. to 8s. per cental.

DONCASTER, 7th.—Trade much quieter. English white wheat 3d. and foreign 6d. per qr. lower. Nothing doing in barley except a retail trade for grinding stuffs. Oats harden in value, new runs making up to 30s. and 32s. per qr., while old ones are about last quoted, say, 35s. and 38s. per qr.

DORCHESTER, 7th.—Small attendance. More plentiful supply of wheat, and last week's rates barely supported for best qualities. Nothing done in English malting barley. Oats very firm at 23s. to 25s.

DUNDEE, 6th.—A fair inquiry for grain. Wheat and barley firm. Oats in good demand and about 6d. per qr. dearer. Wheat (per qr. of 62lb. per bushel), 39s. to 44s.; barley (per qr. of 54lb. per bushel), 30s. 6d. to 32s. 6d.; oats (per qr. of 40lb. per bushel), 22s. 6d. to 25s. 6d.

ESSEX, 7th.—The Essex markets have been slightly tending downwards during the week. Yesterday at Chelmsford there was a good supply of wheat. Trade was dull but about late rates were made. White wheat, 42s. to 50s.; red ditto, 38s. to 44s.; rivets, 35s. to 40s.; barley, 26s. to 35s.; oats, 20s. to 23s. At Braintree the supply of wheat was moderate. The best samples of red nearly sustained last week's prices, but all other kinds were 1s. per quarter lower.

EXETER, 6th.—Small attendance, and business slack at reduced prices, English wheat being fully 1s. per imperial quarter and foreign 6d. to 1s. less than the previous week. Best white wheat, 5s. 10½d. to 6s. 1½d. per bushel of 62lb.; red, 5s. 7½d. to 5s. 10½d. Barley similar prices to those of last week.

GLOUCESTER, 7th.—Supply of English wheat continues small with values unaltered. Foreign in better request, at last week's prices. Grinding barley and oats steady, at late rates. English white wheat, 48s. to 52s.; red, 46s. 6d. to 50s.; American red and white, 48s. to 48s. 6d.; grinding barley, 24s. to 24s. 6d. per 400lb.; English white oats, 22s. to 26s. per 312lb. Gloucester weekly average for wheat, 49s. 5¼d.

GRANTHAM, 7th.—Tolerable show of wheat, the trade in which was slow, and quotations were the same as heretofore, white descriptions realizing 48s. to 54s., and red, 42s. to 50s. per qr. of 504lb. For barley there was very little inquiry, and rates for the most part were without material alteration, the range being from 25s. to 40s. per 448lb. Oats sold steadily, and commanded as much money as last week; new, 22s. to 26s.; old, 29s. to 35s. per 336lb.

KENT, 7th.—At Maidstone, on Thursday, trade in wheat was slow, prices being slightly in favour of buyers. Oats dull and fully as dear. At Canterbury to-day 1s. per qr. less money had to be taken in order to effect sales in respect of wheat. The demand for barley for malting purposes was limited; but there was a brisk inquiry for grinding descriptions. Trade in oats was quiet and prices remained stationary. White wheat, 38s. to 50s.; red, ditto, 34s. to 50s.; malting barley, 30s. to 33s.; grinding ditto, 26s. to 28s.; oats, white, 24s. to 28s.; ditto black, 21s. to 25s. per qr.

LEEDS, 6th.—Slow sale for wheat and prices rather lower. Oats likely to become dearer. In barley no change.

LEICESTER, 7th.—Fair supply of wheat; trade ruled flat at a decline of 1s. per qr. on all but the finest qualities, the values of which were firmly maintained. Red wheat, 50s. to 52s. per 36 stones for best qualities, and 44s. for secondary; white wheat, 52s. to 54s. per 36 stones for best, and 46s. to 48s. for secondary. Small supply of barley, which was firmly held. Oats advanced 1s. per qr.

LIVERPOOL, 7th.—Firmer tone in the wheat trade, and the improvement secured for Californian yesterday is maintained, while for red wheat an advance of 1d. per cental is demanded.

MALTON, 7th.—Small attendance and a moderate show of wheat. Market firm for all kinds.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, 7th.—Fair supply of farmers' wheat, which sold at about last week's prices. From the merchants' stands the demand for foreign parcels was slow at late rates.

NORWICH, 7th.—Supply of wheat limited, and with much dulness in the trade, prices receded 1s. per qr. from last Saturday's level. White wheat, 42s. to 50s.; red ditto, 42s. to 48s.; best malting barley, 35s. to 38s. per qr. Averages :—Wheat, 3,572 qrs., 45s.; barley, 2,054 qrs., 31s. 8d.

NOTTINGHAM, 7th.—Attendance about as usual. Wheat thinly represented, and the demand was restricted, buyers operating rather cautiously. The business done was generally at rather under last week's quotations. Currency to the grower :—Red wheat, 40s. to 49s.; white, 49s. to 55s. per 36 stone; malting barley, 32s. to 40s.; grinding, 26s. to 32s. per 32 stone; new oats, 21s. to 30s.; old, 30s. to 34s. per 24 stone.

OXFORD, 7th.—A small supply of wheat, which when sold was at 1s. less money. No barley on offer. Prices :—Red wheat, 40s. to 46s.; white ditto, 43s. to 48s.; English oats, 18s. to 22s.

PETERBOROUGH, 7th.—Influenced by the fine bright weather our market is quiet to-day, but good fresh wheats cannot be bought for any less money. Spring corn of all kinds firm at very full prices.

READING, 7th.—Very little trade doing and wheat sold at less money—1s. per qr. Fine parcels were scarce. White wheat sold at 48s. to 56s.; red at 45s. to 50s. Barley was firmer and in good request. Good barley made 35s. to 40s.; secondary, 30s. to 35s.; oats scarce and dear—25s. to 32s.

RIPON, 5th.—The produce offered was principally foreign. Trade dull at late rates. Red wheat, 40s. to 48s.; white ditto, 48s. to 52s.; malting barley, 33s. to 35s.; grinding ditto, 28s. to 30s.; oats, 22s. to 26s.; beans, 42s. to 46s.

SHREWSBURY, 7th.—Small supplies of English wheat, which commanded the prices of last week. Foreign 1d. per bushel cheaper. White wheat from 7s. 3d. to 7s. 8d.; and red, from 6s. 9d. to 7s. 6d. per 75lb.

SOUTHAMPTON, 6th.—Supply of English wheat very short, and rates fully as dear as last week, while foreign samples were firm. Barley firm at last week's advance. Oats steady, and unchanged in value.

WARMINSTER, 7th.—Wheat in good supply, and met a slow sale, at a reduction of 1s. per qr. on last week's prices. No barley on offer. Wheat, 30s. to 49s. per qr.; barley, 24s. to 32s.; oats, 23s. to 28s.

WORCESTER, 7th.—Market well attended, and a fair amount of business doing at late rates. No disposition to give way in prices on the part of holders. White wheat, 13s. to 18s. 9d. per bag, and red 17s. to 18s.; barley, 3s. 6d. to 4s. per bushel (distilling qualities); no call for malting. English oats, 3s. 6d. to 4s. per 39lb.; and Irish, 3s. 3d. to 3s. 6d. Last official averages at Worcester: Wheat, £2 8s. 10d.; barley, £1 15s. per imperial quarter. At Kidderminster market on Thursday trade was dull. The attendance of both buyers and sellers was small and little doing. Wheat remained of the same value as last week, and prices of other grain were also unaltered.

MR. CARLYLE'S PAPERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES.

Sir,—I am reluctant to occupy your columns with further discussion about Mr. Carlyle's papers. If I ask space for a very few more words, it is that the public may be under no misapprehension as to my position with respect to them. The memoir of the late Mrs. Carlyle and the collection of her letters, made by Mr. Carlyle and partially prepared by him for publication, are my personal property, given to me to make such use of as might seem good to me. I am the sole judge what parts of them should or should not be printed, and neither Mrs. Alexander Carlyle, nor any one else has a right to call in question the discretion which Mr. Carlyle left with me alone. These papers, which are mine, I shall keep. The memoir is published. The letters will be published. I decline to allow any person or persons, whether friends of Mr. Carlyle or not, to be associated with me in the discharge of a trust which belongs exclusively to myself. The remaining papers, which I was directed to return to Mrs. Alexander Carlyle as soon as I had done with them, I will restore at once to any responsible person whom she will empower to receive them from me.

I have reason to complain of the position in which I have been placed with respect to these MSS. They were sent to me at intervals, without inventory or even numerical list. I was told that the more I burnt of them the better, and they were for several years in my possession before I was even aware that they were not my own. Happily, I had destroyed none of them, and Mrs. Alexander Carlyle can have them all when she pleases.

Apologizing for the trouble which I am giving you, and assuring you that this is the last notice which I shall take of anything which is said upon the subject,

I remain your obedient servant

J. A. FROUDE.

CONSECRATION.—The Archbishop of Canterbury, with his chaplain and registrar (the Rev. Randall T. Davidson and Mr. Hassard), on Saturday reconsecrated the enlarged church of St. Mary, Plaistow, a handsome new chancel, organ chamber, and vestries having been added from the designs of Mr. W. R. Mallett, architect. Major Satterthwaite, one of the churchwardens, had the honour of receiving the Primate at luncheon before the ceremony. His Grace's modern habit seems to be to fix suburban consecrations for Saturday afternoon, and thus to enable gentlemen to return from business in London to take part in their own local affairs. The Archbishop was amply rewarded by an immense congregation, one half of whom were males, and splendid weather. In lieu of a sermon his Grace delivered a short, stirring address from the chancel steps. The Archbishop quitted Bromley by the 5 o'clock train for the Lord Mayor's missionary dinner, at the Mansion-house.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.—The Rev. W. H. Hay-Aitken, M.A., will preach at the mid-day services (1 15) from to-day till Friday next. The Festival Service of the Church of England Sunday School Institute will be held this evening at 7 o'clock, when the sermon will be preached by the Rev. W. Boyd Carpenter, vicar of Christ Church, Paddington, and honorary chaplain in ordinary to the Queen.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

The opening night of the Italian opera season at Her Majesty's Theatre must not pass altogether unnoticed, although the proceedings were of anything but a sensational or remarkable kind. It is evidently Mr. Mapleson's purpose to prepare his audience gradually for the more important events of the season, and he accordingly commenced with an extremely familiar opera—Rossini's Barbiere di Siviglia—performed in a manner devoid of striking features of any kind. Mdlle. de Belocca gave the music of Rosina with fair success, and acted the part in a graceful manner. In the music-lesson scene—traditionally used by prima donnas for the display of vocal skill—she inserted Gounod's charming "Serenade" and by way of encore a ballad sung as far as we were able to hear in English, and altogether unsuited to the occasion. Signor Ravelli, who, our readers will remember, was some time ago "discovered" in an almost romantic manner and has ever since proved a useful member of Mr. Mapleson's company, sang Almaviva, and upon the whole acquitted himself well, although Rossini's florid passages occasionally seemed a trifle too much for his "agilità." Signor Del Puente was an excellent Figaro, and Signor Corsini, a new comer, as Dr. Bartolo, and Mdlle Valerga as Berta gave moderate satisfaction. Signor Arditi, it need scarcely be added, was at his post, and conducted the opera with his usual energy. The cast being certainly not above the average, one may be allowed to think that the large audience had been attracted by the undying charms of Rossini's masterpiece.

THE THEATRES.

Mr. Wills's new play Juanna, acted for the first time at the Court Theatre on Saturday evening, labours under the particular disadvantage of being written for Madame Modjeska—not that a play written for that very fortunate actress should necessarily be bad, but a play written expressly for any one actor, whoever he or she may be, or whatsoever the measure of his talents or hers—a play, so to speak, written to order—can never be of as much value or interest as one written for the stage, for the public, and not for an individual. Under the latter conditions, it becomes not a complete work treating of humanity at large, its passions, its pleasures, its griefs, depicting human characters and tracing the influence of a certain event or events on those characters, but a vantage ground only for the display of the individual talents, real or assumed, of one particular actor; an arena in which he or she may disport before an admiring crowd, and in which all others jousting in the same lists are foredoomed to go down before the one supreme lance. This is not the business of a play, though unfortunately, it is too often the business of our playwriters, and must almost, in the present conditions of our overcrowded stage, be their chief, if not their only, business. In the present instance these conditions have had a singularly depressing effect. Madame Modjeska, as an actress, takes a peculiar delight in sombre and melancholy things, in striving to penetrate the secrets of the grave, generally in a mood

"In which the burthen of the mystery,
"In which the heavy and the weary weight
"Of all this unintelligible world,"

are very far, indeed, from being lightened. She has, unfortunately, been so much encouraged in this mood that it would be strange indeed if it had not become a distinctive mark of her acting. In this new play she can enjoy, and others of the same way of thinking can enjoy with her, this mood to the utmost. Hardly a streak of silver is to be seen in this black and heavy cloud from which a ceaseless stream of lamentation and mourning and woe is poured on the unoffending spectator. There is a faint gleam, indeed, in the early scenes, where the lady has found a lover and a husband to her liking; yet even here the shadow of the coming misfortune may be seen; and after these scenes the shadow deepens into a darkness that may, indeed, be felt. In the second act she discovers her husband in an intrigue with her friend, goes mad, and stabs him; the third act is mainly occupied with a study or essay in madness; in the fourth she recovers her reason in time to save the scapegoat of her crime, and herself to die. That we are justified in styling the play depressing will, perhaps, be gathered from this very brief exposition of the plot. It may also be surmised that the action, never of a very brisk or stirring order, practically comes altogether to a stop with the husband's murder in the second act. After this the play becomes, as we have said, a vantage ground only for the actress to display her skill in simulating insanity and death. Of the precise measure of this skill we hardly feel ourselves competent to decide, the subjects being such as we have not hitherto had much opportunity of studying; nor do we care to pronounce their treatment magnificent merely because it is unknown. It is but fair to say, however, that the burst of hysterical laughter with which she greeted the spectacle of her husband lying dead at her feet seemed to affect many of the spectators very powerfully—many of them, at least, applauded it very loudly. In the gaiety of the earlier scenes the lady was less happy than we have seen her before in similar circumstances—far less happy, for instance, than in the scenes of the same nature in Adrienne Lecouvreur, her happiness being here shown in a manner somewhat too laboured and restless. Some relief to the prevalent gloom of the play was sought to be raised by sundry love passages between a bashful page and a froward waiting-maid, not unlike the well-known scenes between Helen and Modus on a lower scale; and also by a fat, greedy old monk of a familiar type enough. But the gloom was so intense that any relief, how welcome soever in itself, seemed really almost an impertinence. The scenes, however, were well played by Miss Grahame and Mr. Norman Forbes, the latter showing all through the play a very distinct appreciation of humour which will become of still more use to him when he gives his audience credit for appreciating it without so much explanation. Mr. Anson, too, could, of course, express the shrewd worldliness and lazy good nature of the old father confessor very happily. Mr. Barrett played the young father confessor, whose love for the lady bids him take upon himself the burden of her crime. He plays it well enough; somewhat too coldly and ascetically perhaps. A thought more of human frailty, which might surely be construed mildly enough, would add life to the character and strength to the contrast. But the former has been so carefully pared down, so jealously guarded, lest it should become the dominant figure of the piece, that the cleverest of actors could hardly do very much with it. Mr. Forbes Robertson looked extremely picturesque and gallant as the husband, and was, for other reasons too, the most satisfactory feature of the play. An idle, selfish profligate, who marries the woman who has saved his life for the whim of the passing moment, and flings her away without a moment's compunction when the whim has changed, Mr. Robertson hits the character off very nicely—a brutal character, of course, but the actor does not emphasize the brutality more strongly than is needful. Of the literary qualities of the play it is difficult to speak distinctly. In all Mr. Wills's works these qualities are ever more conspicuous than in those of his contemporaries; but in this work, though here and there a line sounded pleasantly on the ear, and the language, where one could follow it, if not exactly rising into the domain of real poetry, was generally far above the level baldness of our stage dialogue, an examination of the manuscript would for obvious reasons be necessary to a definite judgment. Most of the finer speeches, most of the verse, or poetry, if the more gracious name be preferred, fell, of course, to the lot of Madame Modjeska, and of the quality of this it was not always easy to judge. Cleverly as the lady has mastered the outworks of our language, greatly as she has improved since first she played in our theatres, still in scenes of passion, of any strong emotion, she remains, and must for ever remain, to a great extent unintelligible. For this reason, if for no other, it is a thousand pities to see her, who has done, and is so capable of doing, much creditable work in a lighter and more level field, striving so strenuously to touch the topmost heights of tragedy on which it is forbidden to her to stand. To forecast the future of a play is in these days dangerous work; but assuredly if this play succeed we shall have justified the imputation of our livelier neighbours and shown that we do take our pleasure very sadly.

Another new work was produced in the latter half of last week at the Royalty Theatre. This was The Member for Slocum, a comedy by Mr. Sims, whose Crutch and Toothpick was so successful last year both in London and elsewhere. Like many of our modern comedies, like most one may say, Mr. Sims's work partakes rather of the nature of farce than comedy, which, of course, is not likely to detract in any way from its capacities of pleasing. It is a lively, rattling piece—like so many plays by more experienced authors, more lively at the beginning than the end—full of good temper, good spirits, and good fun; not very refined, nor meant to be, but on the whole exhilarating, if not substantial. And of the acting much the same may be said; not very great or striking, nor meant to be, but sufficiently explaining the author's design, and in general harmony with the spirit of the piece.

LONDON, MONDAY, MAY 9, 1881.

There is no longer any doubt—and, indeed, we intimated as much on Friday morning in reference to the Duke of Richmond's appearance as the temporary spokesman of his party—that Lord Salisbury will be invested with the authority of leader of the Conservative majority in the House of Lords. Sir Stafford Northcote will, of course, retain the leadership in the House of Commons. No formal decision respecting the supreme direction of the party as a whole is at present contemplated. Nor is the necessity for such a step apparent. Without undervaluing personal considerations, we are inclined to think that too much importance may be given to them. Whether Lord Salisbury or Sir Stafford Northcote is to have the chief responsibility henceforward for Conservative policy must be determined by the practical outcome of events, not by the votes of a majority in a formal or informal partisan council. But, in truth, the question "Who is to "be the leader of the Conservatives?" is of secondary importance compared with another which attracts less general notice—"How is the party to "be led?" The Conservatives are and must be a great force in the State. Liberalism is for the time predominant, but even if it should prolong its victories for a whole generation as it did between the resignation of Sir Robert Peel in 1846 and the resignation of Mr. Gladstone in 1874, the opposing view would not be less potent or less indispensable in policy. The Conservative party represent elements in the national character which are not likely to be obliterated or transformed. Regarded impartially and, as it were, scientifically, the Conservatives, we find, have often failed to draw all the strength they might have drawn from the resources within their reach. It is true that some elements of Conservatism are separated by artificial barriers from the organization of the party. Among Liberals themselves feelings are at work, sometimes suppressed and sometimes permitted to show themselves, which are not favourable to incessant enterprises of reformation and reconstruction. In the hour of enthusiastic triumph, doubts, hesitations, and anxieties are not listened to; but as time goes on and as difficulties environ Governments it is certain that men's minds pass through an unperceived, though searching, change. Just as it is the part of a Liberal Opposition to be on the watch for the rising tides of popular enthusiasm and to take them at the flood, it is the wisdom of a Conservative minority in Parliament to invite silently and calmly the adhesion of awakened prudence and alarmed moderation, in whatever camp and under whatever colours they may be found. In these latter days especially, the high Toryism of the distant past, with its warlike defiances and its exclusive organization, is no longer possible. The Conservatives, flaunting worn-out banners and raising obsolete warcries, will not be able to employ to the public benefit all the forces in British society which might fairly be placed in the scale against the impatience and the recklessness of unbalanced reformers. It would be lamentable if in the new chapter of history upon which the country is entering the Conservative party were to cripple its energies and circumscribe its usefulness by a grave error in judgment. The Liberals themselves would suffer by encountering an Opposition which by its own fault would be disorganized, demoralized, and discredited.

The skill and the success with which Sir Robert Peel raised the fallen fortunes of his party between 1832 and 1841 have often been held up to the admiration of latter-day Conservatives, but the lesson does not appear to have been generally mastered. It is worth while pointing out that Lord Beaconsfield's remarkable career points in the same direction. Lord Beaconsfield, indeed, realized more thoroughly than Sir Robert Peel ever did that the true strength of English Conservatism resides in the Conservative elements to be found throughout the national character. The repugnance to fine-spun theories, the suspicion of easily gliding logic, the practical grasp of realities, and the indifference to speculative perfection which we regard as peculiarly English, work in favour of political Conservatism and against what is known as Radicalism. In every section of the social organism these feelings exist, and, looking back on Lord Beaconsfield's political life, it will be seen that he never repelled from his party any class or connexion whatever. Master as he was of sarcasm and invective, and so long the mark, too, for unsparing attack, he refrained with singular scrupulosity from letting fall a word that could offend even those who seemed to be irreconcilably separated from Conservatism. Individuals he did not spare; but of the trading classes and the working classes, of farmers and manufacturers, of Nonconformists and Roman Catholics, he was careful to speak with a measured respect, showing that, in his judgment, all of them had Conservative instincts which it would be unwise to crush, and which he was always ready to welcome. This is the policy, and this alone, which has any prospect of success on the Conservative side. The Conservative party must realize the fact that their hold on public opinion is rather negative than positive. The desire for brilliant issues to be publicly contested and the demand for sounding battle-cries tend to alarm and alienate forces which might slowly gravitate towards the Conservative camp. It is for the new chief or chiefs of that party to consider whether they will discard, at the urgency of some more or less youthful and hot-headed followers, the tactics of cautious and vigilant moderation. It would not be difficult, of course, to find plausible matter for stirring appeals to party spirit, but it must be remembered that such appeals affect the one party not less than the other. The actual state of political opinion in this country is not, we believe, fairly represented by the existing distribution of party strength. The verdict of the constituencies last year was determined by personal, accidental, and, to a great extent, passing considerations. But if the feelings to which Conservatism in the largest sense may most confidently appeal are to be found among Liberals as well as among their opponents, if the trading classes and the industrial classes are unwilling to be led into an indefinite succession of political changes, it is clearly unwise to draw hard and fast lines, excluding all who are not prepared to lay the axe at the root of the tree of Liberalism. It will be a grave and probably irreparable error if the Conservative party, under whatever influences, should now resolve to blow its trumpets and advance its banners for aggressive warfare. Most of all will it be unfortunate if shibboleths should be imposed upon the party which would recall the least creditable and least fortunate days of Toryism.

Lord Salisbury's temperament is supposed to be combative; but it does not follow that in the maturity of his powers and with the responsibilities of leadership he will not be able to pursue steadily a policy of moderation. He cannot study it too closely. Whatever temptation there may be to work upon the feelings of classes—great and powerful classes, no doubt, but still only classes—by raising the cry "the Church in danger," or "the confiscation of landed property," it must be plain to a man of Lord Salisbury's keen intellect that these demonstrations involve charges of complicity in revolutionary designs against sections of the English people who are by no means without leanings towards Conservatism. The zeal of party men may be quickened by such tactics and their courage fortified for a while; perhaps even a few constituencies in which parties are fairly balanced may be won over. But will these gains outweigh the loss of the power of attracting and shaping the Conservative instincts of moderate men? We do not suppose that Sir Stafford Northcote would hesitate for an instant in giving an answer to this question. But Sir Stafford Northcote, in spite of his excellent and agreeable qualities, has not yet proved that he is able to impress his policy upon his followers. The authority of a leader consists in his power of enforcing discipline, and of carrying out his own convictions of expediency with the weight and strength of the whole organized body. Sir Stafford Northcote is heartily liked by the House of Commons, where his temperate and dignified conduct has frequently carried the minority successfully through trials which proved too much for the majority. But what has happened lately in regard to the Parliamentary oath is a striking example of the weakness which paralyzes his influence. No one can seriously doubt that the opinion to which Sir Stafford Northcote inclined was that, dismissing personal considerations, it was desirable that an affirmation should be substituted for an oath, in Parliament as in courts of justice, for the relief, not of Mr. Bradlaugh, but of the entire category of persons to which Mr. Bradlaugh belongs. From this position he has now been driven, too evidently by the protests of some violent and impatient members of his party, and the result is that a bitter Parliamentary conflict is to be opened, in which the Conservatives may appear to be going back from the principles of toleration long since supposed to be accepted by all Englishmen, either because they feel disgusted with Mr. Bradlaugh individually or because they cannot resist the temptation of placing the Ministry in a situation of embarrassment. Lord Salisbury, at any rate, is credited with being a strong man who knows his own mind, and whether his policy be prudent or imprudent, he is not likely to submit to its being warped or baffled by the insubordination of the rank and file of the party which has accepted him as a leader.

The steady progress of smallpox in the metropolis is a phenomenon which demands attention, even in the midst of a period of political turmoil. Week after week it is reported that the number of cases is increasing, that the hospital accommodation for them is wholly insufficient, that marquees and other makeshifts are being employed, and that the owners or occupiers of land or houses are becoming more active in their endeavours to impede local authorities in the performance of the duties imposed upon them. In nearly every metropolitan vestry we hear of debates more or less "stormy," with reference to proposals for affording increased accommodation to sufferers; and the storms seem chiefly to arise from the desire of the residents in particular localities to have new hospitals placed farther from themselves, and, consequently, nearer to their neighbours. Signs are not wanting that the sort of unreasoning terror which the presence of disease is apt to produce has begun to be felt among classes who ought, in this particular instance at least, to know better, and that the evils incidental to an epidemic are likely to be increased by the evils incidental to a scare. That this should happen depends, of course, mainly upon the degree in which public attention has been directed to the subject by recent litigation—litigation which was only rendered possible by the circumstance that an Act of Parliament had been so carelessly drawn as not to afford either sufficient powers or sufficient protection to those upon whom devolved the duty of carrying out what were supposed to be its intentions. No reasonable person can doubt that the intention of the Legislature was to give power to the Metropolitan Asylums Board to establish and maintain smallpox hospitals on a sufficient scale for the wants of the population; just as no reasonable person can doubt that it has now become the duty of the Government to terminate the imbroglio which has arisen, and to pass a temporary measure for the purpose of dealing with the existing emergency. To such a temporary measure, even if it established a smallpox hospital in the midst of a crowded population, there could be no objection, if it were really in accordance with the best and most skilled opinions now available; while it may be at once admitted that the foundations of a permanent measure do not exist, either in any well-grounded principles of public policy or in any established facts of science.

A good deal of the argument against the smallpox hospitals, on account of the danger which they bring upon the healthy, may be conceded as soon as those who urge it become able to grasp the simple proposition that the danger is in the smallpox, and not in the hospital. As far as the present time is concerned, it is only too manifest that smallpox must be somewhere; and the practical question for decision is whether it is more or less dangerous in a hospital than elsewhere. That the disease tends to spread by infection is obvious and undeniable; and we all know that, when it occurs in the homes of the poor in thickly inhabited districts abounding in susceptible persons, it not only spreads with great rapidity, but it also assumes a very formidable and fatal character. When the patients are removed from their original surroundings, and are placed in a well-appointed and well-governed hospital, the liability to the diffusion of contagion from them is unquestionably diminished; and this diminution is so marked that it was, perhaps hastily, concluded that the hospitals were not sources of danger at all. If we remember, however, that entire immunity from danger could only be obtained by the scrupulous and rigorous carrying out of an infinite number of detailed precautions, and that an element of risk may be constantly introduced by ignorance or carelessness, it is manifestly too much to say that such risk does not occur. The frequent passage of the sick along a given road, the tendency of ambulance-drivers to stop and refresh themselves at publichouses, the tendency of nurses to slip out "only for a minute" without the change of dress which the rules require and which experience dictates, are all sources of occasional or possible danger. The Local Government Board is said to be engaged, through some of its medical inspectors, in an inquiry concerning the actual spreading of smallpox in the vicinity of the hospitals, in circumstances which justify the belief that these institutions have themselves been the sources of contagion; and by the time the epidemic is over we shall probably be informed of the conclusions at which the gentlemen in question have arrived. It seems likely, as far as the facts are known, and it is also likely à priori, that the results of the inquiry, if properly conducted, will be to show that the hospitals are distinctly sources of danger, but in a much less degree than the outcry with regard to them has led many people to believe. We have not heard of any evidence which tends to show that a large hospital is more a source of danger than a small one, except to the extent which may arise from the larger number of cases permitting a larger number of accidents to arise from lack of care. We therefore fall back upon the statement that the source of risk is in the disease, and not in the hospital, and we are driven to the conclusion that a few large hospitals are probably less dangerous than many small ones. A thousand cases of smallpox, in any ordinary conditions, must entail more danger upon the community than five hundred; but it is probable that the five hundred, if distributed among twelve hospitals, each of which might be a source of infection to its neighbourhood, would be more dangerous than the thousand collected together into two or three. The facts have not yet been fully ascertained, but enough is known of them to warrant the adoption of a provisional conclusion as a guide to conduct.

Before the time comes at which permanent legislation upon the subject will be possible the question will press for consideration whether smallpox hospitals ought to be maintained at all. It is well established, and never more conclusively than by the recent experience of the Household troops, the Police, and the Post Office officials, that vaccination and re-vaccination, even if they do not render it absolutely impossible to contract smallpox, produce this effect in all but a few exceptional cases; and that these precautions are at least sufficient to render the disease one which would scarcely ever occur, and which would never kill. It follows that no one need have smallpox unless he or she pleases; and any one who does please, and who gratifies the desire, might be fairly enough looked upon as a dangerous criminal. It is not at first sight apparent why law-abiding members of the community should be heavily taxed to establish and support institutions which the enforcement of the law would render superfluous; and there is much to be said in favour of treating smallpox more from the point of view of a public danger, and less from that of a personal misfortune, which, indeed, it has long ceased to be. The provisions of the existing law with regard to re-vaccination might, perhaps, be made somewhat more liberal; for it is held by many that this operation might be performed with advantage more than once in a lifetime, and it is undeniable that it is often successful on a second occasion. One thing at least is certain—that the prevalence of smallpox among those susceptible of its contagion need never occasion the smallest alarm to intelligent people. It need only be a question of the little trouble incidental to having the household re-vaccinated, at least in the case of all persons who have not been subjected to the operation for some years, and then anxiety might be at an end. Unfortunately, the whole question has been so obscured by agitation and clamour, first of one kind and then of another, that many of the simple facts relating to it are in danger of being forgotten or ignored.

Our columns have been occupied for the last few days with a controversy between Mr. J. A. Froude and Mrs. Alexander Carlyle. It is painful that the literary legacies of a great man should so soon become matter of wrangling. Mr. Carlyle left to Mr. Froude the charge of his memoirs, with the sole discretion of publishing what he thought fit. But appended to the MS. of the "Letters and Memorials of Jane Welsh "Carlyle" are the following words:—"In "which event" (of the MS. falling into the hands of friends at his death) "I solemnly forbid them, "each and all, to publish this Bit of Writing as it "stands here; and warn them that without fit "editing no part of it should be printed (nor, so far "as I can order, shall ever be); and that the 'fit "editing' of perhaps nine-tenths of it will, after I "am gone, have become impossible.—T. C., Saty., "28 July, 1866." Mr. Froude explains that this direction was cancelled by subsequent oral communications to him by Mr. Carlyle. Mrs. Alexander Carlyle, however, was led to form, from what she had heard her uncle say, an opinion contrary to that of Mr. Froude upon Mr. Carlyle's wishes regarding the publication. She substantially, therefore, imputes to Mr. Froude a breach of trust. We do not pretend to fathom any private circumstances which may have provoked this unhappy difference between Mrs. Carlyle and her uncle's literary executor. But from an outside view of the question, we find it impossible to concur in this attack on Mr. Froude. Apart from the instructions, subsequent to 1866, which Mr. Froude affirms were given to him as to the publication of the memoir, and which no one has a right to call in question, the quality of Thomas Carlyle's temper and his manner of talking of his own unpublished manuscripts as fit for nothing but to be burnt seem to afford a strong presumption that the prohibition was not meant to be final. We cannot but think that Mr. Carlyle was not at the bottom of his heart averse to the publication of the memoir of his wife. Lastly, we have the authority of Mr. Carlyle's will itself, in which the testator says that he gives the manuscript in question into the charge of Mr. Froude, "with "whatever other furtherances and elucidations may "be possible, and I solemnly request of him to do "his best and wisest in the matter, as I feel "assured he will."

But though, strictly interpreted, Mrs. Alexander Carlyle's letters would seem to imply that Mr. Froude ought not to have published the manuscript at all, they no doubt suggest a wider question. We cannot go far behind the terms of Mrs. Carlyle's remarks, but they seem to have been prompted by a conviction on her part and the part of her friends that Mr. Froude has not performed his office of editorship with discretion. Mr. Carlyle's pen was satirical and scolding. He recorded bluntly and roundly his impressions of those whom he met. To publish them in the form in which they were found was to wound often the living, often the descendants of the dead. Mr. Froude, it has been said, ought to have used the scissors more unsparingly. We are not concerned to dispute that among very many penetrating and just judgments of men which are to be found in the Reminiscences are sprinkled not a few estimates that seem ill-conditioned and ungenerous. Homer himself is sometimes caught napping, and Carlyle occasionally lets impetuosity get the better of fairness. No one, for instance, will be disposed to accept the portrait of Charles Lamb for one moment as anything but superficial and savouring of prejudice. Mr. Froude, however, in the exercise of his discretion, came to the conclusion that the greater part of the memoirs ought to be published as they came into his hands. In so doing he has aroused remonstrances all round—from the representatives of the dead as well as from the living. It is easy, indeed, to understand the annoyance of one whom Carlyle, perhaps, has met once, a young man, at a dinner-table, and who now finds that he has been dashed off in a couple of uncomplimentary epithets. But in these days of multitudinous criticisms a thick skin is the most valuable commodity that one can have. It is perhaps more essential to ambition than genius or industry. The aggrieved in this case are not so badly off as most public men of any position. And if the living ought to take the sallies in good part, the same attitude may fairly be asked from the champions of deceased progenitors, whose memories may be trusted to take care of themselves. But to be satirized by Thomas Carlyle! Well, after all, great philosopher as Carlyle was, the world is not bound by his decisions, especially as to the abilities or character of those about him. Carlyle had as strong prejudices as any man ever had. All the world knows that, and makes allowance for it. The man possessed a crotchetty, imperious, whimsical way of looking at things and persons. People are not misled by these little extravagances, and, indeed, nothing is easier in Carlyle's writings than to distinguish the petulant humour from the well-considered utterances of his soul. There is far less that can be justly taken exception to in the Reminiscences, as edited by Mr. Froude, than there is in many works of notoriety. Boswell's "Life of Johnson" roused a hubbub of protest from the susceptible. Moore's "Life of Byron" provoked hardly less controversy. The relentlessness of the revelations contained in "Greville's Memoirs" throws all such gentle satire as is contained in the Autobiography completely into the shade. Whatever hasty things Carlyle may have said, he has made no aspersions on the character of those whom he has ridiculed. He has grouped two or three peculiarities of intellect or of manner into a sentence or a word. No satire upon men, as distinguished from their acts, could well be more harmless. It was a question for Mr. Froude's own discretion whether he should draw all these talons, and it may be doubted whether, on the whole, he did not do wisely in maintaining the integrity of the composition, leaving it to the public to make the allowance which, judging from the context and colour of each personal criticism, they will well know how to make.

For these reasons, and because it is for the interest of the public that they should have Mr. Carlyle's productions unmutilated, we are disposed to think those wrong who challenge Mr. Froude's taste or wisdom. Mr. Froude has performed a valuable service in giving us at so short notice the materials which were needed for obtaining a greater insight into the genius of a master-life. The records of Carlyle's reverence for his father and of his affection for his wife will be as widely read and as widely appreciated as anything else from the same pen. The Reminiscences are not only deeply interesting but in Carlyle's best style. Instead of the signs of dotage which many pretend to detect in them, they are written in a more sober, more natural tone and phraseology than, say, his "Frederick "the Great." We are fairly entitled to read them as a whole. If they contain a few rash personalities, these afford no valid reason for an outcry against the editor. Their elimination would have been in the result more pleasant to Mr. Froude. But we are attached even to Carlyle's errors, and we cannot help being glad that few of those oddities of thought, of those concentrated outbreaks of spleen, have been withdrawn from us. Each is an element in the study of the Carlylean mind—a mind interesting even in its extravagance. It must always be remembered that Mr. Froude is the sole depositary of the discretion bequeathed by Mr. Carlyle in the publication of his manuscripts. Even now we do not know how much that is exceptionable he may have cut out. We are tolerably confident that there is still more to come, and we are anxious that no terrorism should fetter his judgment in the future.

The discussion on vivisection which has been for some time maintained in our columns deals with a question the interest in which seems as vivid as when it was first raised more than ten years since. Mr. Charles Darwin's temperate letter to Professor Holmgren, of Upsala, has rekindled a controversy which is always sure to be intemperate. Mr. Darwin's humanity and love of animals are well known. Nothing could be more natural than that men of science who practise vivisection should be anxious to have his testimony on their side if it were to be obtained. He does not himself experiment after that manner. He watches the way in which animals exercise their discretion. When, for the purpose of a particular result, he diminishes the area of their liberty, his aim is within that area to leave them as free as ever. Practitioners of vivisection eliminate entirely the element of volition. They desire to analyze one or more automatic functions, circumstances, whatever their number, and will, however defined, being excluded. Mr. Darwin, however, in his letter to Professor Holmgren, in effect disclaims the existence of an essential distinction between himself and the decried body. He places himself in the same class of scientific observers. They experiment on living animals. So does he. He arrogates the prerogative in the interests of science to restrict the operations and movement of animals in aviaries and menageries. They arrogate the prerogative in their laboratories. The one material question, he intimates, which they can be called upon to answer is whether "useless suffering" be caused by their experiments. Having satisfied himself that the popular charges in that respect against English physiologists are false, he regards the attempt to coerce their inquiries, even to the extent to which impediments are applied by the existing statute, as needless and indefensible. The demand for new obstructions and the outcry against physiologists in general he denounces as flagrant "ingratitude "to benefactors of mankind." He does not deny that inhumanity may be found in the laboratories of some countries. If the guilt can be established, he would welcome legislation to chastise it. So long, however, as gratuitous pain is not inflicted and the object of an experiment is commensurate with the suffering of its subject, he believes it neither wise, nor equitable, nor kind to shackle a method of investigation by which, and by which alone, "the incalculable benefits" of physiology can be enjoyed, "not only by man, but by the "lower animals."

The motive of Mr. Darwin's Swedish correspondent was to procure his opinion on behalf of professed physiologists. Mr. Darwin pronounces unmistakably for their right to pursue their researches by way of vivisection, and for their solicitude to spare the animals on which they operate unnecessary pain. Incidentally, he censures the statute by which they are put under official supervision. At once his theories and his facts are vehemently assailed. Mr. Richard Holt Hutton, who was one of the Royal Commissioners of 1876, will not concede the right to gain knowledge at such a cost. Miss Frances Power Cobbe, who is honorary secretary to a Society for the Protection of Animals from Vivisection, protests against Mr. Darwin's facts. Lord Shaftesbury expresses concisely his general horror and contempt. It would, perhaps, have been better had Mr. Darwin explained the differences between the Act passed in conformity with the recommendations of the Royal Commission and a Bill he had himself promoted. The Act in force is not beyond criticism. It would have been preferable had the administrative machinery been consigned to the control of professional authorities like the Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons and the Royal Society, with the Home Office as an appeal court. The leaders of the medical profession and of the scientific world would have been as benevolent and as austere censors of barbarity as any statesman. But if a law were to be enacted at all, its provisions could scarcely have been less inquisitorial than those of the present. It is a fair compromise between the liberty of honourable science and the emphatic public opinion that science had been previously made an occasional screen for unscientific brutality. Miss Cobbe alleges that English physiologists were demonstrated by the evidence before the Commission to need coercion. Mr. Darwin, on the same evidence, strenuously disputes that conclusion. His argument that the imputation of inhumanity by the Commission upon "persons of very high position as physiologists" cannot have been intended to apply to English physiologists, because the report immediately proceeds to say that "it was so found in Majendie," is not very convincing. The Commissioners might well be referring to Englishmen, although they illustrated the compatibility of scientific eminence with callousness by the example of a great scientific Frenchman. But Miss Cobbe equally exceeds the facts when she reasons as if the recommendation by the Royal Commissioners of legislation implied their acceptance of the popular rumours of atrocities perpetrated in famous English physiological laboratories. The Royal Commission elicited that "very severe experiments" were performed; it did not elicit testimony of any such habitual insensibility in "the very highly educated men "whose lives are devoted either to scientific in"vestigation and education, or to the mitigation "or the removal of the sufferings of their fellow"creatures," as would have supported a prohibition of vivisection. The legislation it advised, and the legislation to which Parliament consented, signified no condemnation of the principle of vivisection, or of its practice by the sole persons, probably, whom Mr. Darwin would permit to practise it. It was intended, however, as a warning to the chiefs of physiology, not so much, indeed, that they must curb their own liberty of inquiry as that the liberty was personal to themselves in virtue of an ascertained rank in science. Mr. Darwin can hardly have failed to remark how a few years ago a fashion was growing up among the merest apprentices of science to treat vivisection as an ordinary instrument of rudimentary study. There was a danger that luminaries of science might be tempted to encourage experiments inhuman as conducted by others though not as by them.

The real interest of the question raised by the curiosity of the Upsala Professor is not, however, whether licensed physiologists conduct their experiments on living animals with all attainable gentleness, or whether the existing statute was levelled at them. No reasonable doubt can be felt upon either point. A matter of much more vital importance to physiological science at issue in the controversy is the abstract right to inflict pain upon the lower animals, modified as the amount may be by the largest use of anæsthetics. Mr. Darwin asserts the right on the ground that the practice complained of is essential to the progress of physiology. Although his kind nature would always shrink from torturing an animal, we do not see how he could consistently have prohibited a pursuit which he holds to be a source of "incalculable benefits," though anæsthetics had never been discovered. He might have limited it within the narrowest boundaries; he could scarcely have forbidden it altogether. On the principle laid down by the advocates of the total legislative abolition of the practice, no advantage to mankind, or to the lower animals themselves, excuses the subjection of a cat or a dog, or even a frog, to involuntary pain. They make no exceptions in favour of experiments performed under chloroform or ether. For the truth of their principle, which in this respect Mr. Hutton appears in his late letter to us to indorse, it can make little difference whether the benefits from vivisection be as immense as Mr. Darwin proclaims them or as trivial as they appear to Miss Cobbe's ironical fancy. But the English public will not allow itself to be driven into the dilemma of blocking the advancement of physiological knowledge by forbidding the infliction upon animals for scientific uses of sufferings they are obliged to endure continually for the slightest satisfaction of human appetites, caprice, or spite. Two wrongs do not make one right. If the nation were persuaded of the absolute moral unlawfulness of causing pain to "any of our fellow-creatures "under the rank of men," as Mr. Hutton has put it, "for the sake of a reasonable probability of ex"tending scientific knowledge," it would not be deterred from shutting up physiological laboratories by a consciousness of its connivance, with which Mr. Romanes once more to-day taunts it, at steel rat-traps. The country, however, is persuaded of no absolute moral turpitude in vivisection which would justify so absolute an interposition. It is possible by minute description to cause men to shudder at an experiment in vivisection, as any one without medical training could be made to shudder at an account of the most ordinary surgical operation. Not in the one case more than in the other is the natural repulsion at the details a proof of coldness of heart in the conductor of the experiment, or of absence of proportion between the effect and the pain it has cost. On the hearts and consciences of physiologists rests the responsibility of deciding when and how the importance of the problem they are solving excuses the infliction of suffering upon beings without choice in the matter. No vague gropings in the dark for light from the sudden emotions of a dying animal can excuse it. The practice cannot be excused for the sake of transmitting a lesson to learners from men who have already learnt it. It can be excused only when the object is great, and a hypothesis is waiting to be consolidated by the evidence of living facts. In the most merciful and the gentlest of professions leading English physiologists are among the most generous and benevolent of professors. They are sensible of their responsibility for the confinement of an exceptional class of experiments to researches in which they believe it to be the one faithful instrument. The public, in taking the necessity of the experiments on their concurrent word, far from relieving them of their responsibility thereby, intensifies it. The least their countrymen can do in return for reaping the profit without sharing the burden is to discountenance uncharitable and promiscuous accusations.

British Museum.—The Prince of Wales was on Friday last unanimously elected a trustee of the British Museum. At the same time Lord Houghton and the Very Rev. H. G. Liddell, D.D., Dean of Christchurch, Oxford, were unanimously elected trustees. The vacancies in the trust were occasioned by the death of Sir Philip de Malpas Grey Egerton, M.P., and the Earl of Beaconsfield, and by the resignation of Mr. Gladstone, in consequence of pressure of official matters.

Mr. Gladstone.—Mr. Gladstone has been suffering from an attack of indisposition, brought on by cold. He was visited at half-past 9 o'clock on Saturday morning by Dr. Andrew Clark, and the following bulletin was issued afterwards:—"10, Downing-street, Whitehall. —Mr. Gladstone has had a sharp attack of indisposition, which is now subsiding. He is ordered to go out of town till Monday for change of air." At about 11 o'clock Mr. Gladstone with Mrs. Gladstone left Downing-street for the Durdans, Epsom, the seat of Lord Rosebery where they remain until to-day.

COURT CIRCULAR.

WINDSOR CASTLE, May 7.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and attended by the Dowager Duchess of Athole, the Dowager Marchioness of Ely, and the Equerries in Waiting, arrived at Windsor yesterday at a quarter to 6 p.m. from Buckingham Palace.

Her Majesty and the Princess then took a drive in the Home Park.

The Queen, with Princess Beatrice, walked and drove this morning.

Mr. Coningsby Disraeli (nephew of the late Earl of Beaconsfield) had the honour of being presented to the Queen by Lord Rowton yesterday.

May 8.

The Queen and Princess Beatrice drove out yesterday afternoon, attended by the Dowager Duchess of Athole and the Dowager Marchioness of Ely.

The Right Hon. Hugh C. E. Childers (Secretary of State for War) arrived at the Castle yesterday, and had the honour of being included in Her Majesty's dinner party.

Mr. Sydney Locock was presented to the Queen yesterday afternoon by Lieutenant-General the Right Hon. Sir Henry Ponsonby, K.C.B., and kissed hands on his appointment as Minister at Belgrade.

The Queen and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service this morning in the private chapel.

The Rev. Henry Twells, M.A., rector of Waltham, Leicestershire, preached the sermon.

ELECTION INTELLIGENCE.

Preston.—A correspondent telegraphs:—"It is not yet certain whether there will be a contest, as many Liberals are averse to fighting. A meeting of the committee has been held, and the names of Mr. Dewhert, manufacturer, and Mr. J. F. Leese, who unsuccessfully contested the town in 1868, are mentioned. The Conservative leaders are now in London consulting their party. It is probable their candidate will be either Mr. Farrar Ecroyd or Mr. J. Lowther." Another correspondent writes:—"It has been decided by the Conservative party at Preston to invite Mr. Richard Calvert, cotton spinner and manufacturer, of Preston and Walton, to become a candidate for the vacant seat. The Liberals have three gentlemen in view:—Mr. George Melly, of Liverpool, who unsuccessfully contested the seat in 1862; Sir Ughtred Kay-Shuttleworth, and Mr. Plimsoll. The final choice will probably be made in the course of a day or two, when the respective gentlemen have all been communicated with."

The Prince of Wales.—The visit of the Prince of Wales to Great Yarmouth, for the purpose of inspecting the Norfolk Artillery Militia, of which corps the Prince is hon. colonel, will be made in the second week of June. The inspection will take place on Thursday, June 9. It is expected that the Duke of Cambridge will accompany the Prince.

Spencer-house.—The Lord President of the Council and Lady Spencer entertained at dinner at Spencer-house, St. James's, on Saturday evening, the Spanish Minister, the Earl and Countess of Cork, the Earl and Countess of Breadalbane, the Earl and Countess of Dufferin, Earl Granville, Earl Sydney, the Right Hon. Sir Henry and Hon. Lady Ponsonby, Hon. Robert Spencer, Captain and Mrs. Arthur Paget, and Mr. and Mrs. Horace Seymour. Later Lady Spencer had a reception, at which the Italian Ambassador and Marchioness de Menabrea, the Danish Minister, the Netherlands Minister and Countess de Bylandt, the United States Minister, the Portuguese Minister and Madame d'Antas, the Brazilian Minister and Baroness Penedo, the Swedish Minister, the Japanese Minister and Madame Mori, Count and Countess F. Lutzow were present; and the general company included the Duke and Duchess of Richmond and Gordon, the Duke of Grafton, the Duchess of Cleveland and Lady Mary Primrose, the Marquis and Marchioness of Blandford, the Earl and Countess of Malmesbury, &c.

Lord Carnarvon.—Lord Carnarvon arrived at his Hampshire seat, Highclere Castle, near Newbury, on Saturday from town.

The Conservative Leadership.—The Daily Express of Dublin publishes the following letter of the late Lord Beaconsfield, addressed to Mr. Johnston, of Ballykilbeg, in 1869, when he represented Belfast. It is of interest at the present time when the question of leadership is the subject of public speculation and discussion:—"Dear Mr. Johnston,—The leader of a party in a House of Parliament is never 'nominated.' The selection is always the spontaneous act of the party in the House in which he sits. It was so in the case of Lord Cairns, who yielded most unwillingly to the general wish, Lord Salisbury being one of the warmest of his solicitors. It was so in my own case. Lord Derby never appointed me to the leadership, but the party chose to follow me and the rest ensued. . . . . I make no doubt our friends in the House of Lords will in due season find a becoming chief, but our imposition will not aid them. They will be better helped to a decision by events. Thank you for your kind expressions, which I have at all times appreciated. Yours sincerely, B. Disraeli. Mr. William Johnston, M.P. Hughenden Manor, Dec. 8, 1869."

The Fox Club.—The third meeting of the Fox Club this season was held at Brooks's on Saturday evening. There were present Earl Fitzwilliam, Mr. F. J. S. Foljambe, M.P., Mr. H. R. Brand, M.P., Mr. Hussey Packe, Mr. H. H. Seymour, Mr. C. L. G. Berkeley, Hon. W. H. B. Portman, M.P., Colonel Custance, Lord Leigh, Mr. H. F. Beaumont, Viscount Enfield, Hon. R. O. A. Milnes, Mr. A. P. Vivian, M.P., Mr. Charles C. Cotes, M.P., Sir H. J. Tufton, Lord Carew, Lord Sandys, Sir John St. Aubyn, M.P., Mr. R. Creyke, M.P., and Mr. H. H. Vivian, M.P.

Royal Commission.—The Royal Commission on the Defence of British Possessions and Commerce Abroad met on Tuesday and Thursday last. There were present the Earl of Carnarvon, in the chair, the Earl of Camperdown, Sir Henry Holland, M.P., K.C.M.G., Admiral Sir Alexander Milne, G.C.B., General Sir Lintorn Simmons, G.C.B., Sir Henry Barkly, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., Mr. S. Whitbread, M.P., and Captain Herbert Jekyll, R.E., secretary.

Colonel C. G. Gordon.—The Overland Mail states that Colonel C. G. Gordon, having been offered the appointment of commanding Royal Engineers at the Mauritius, will shortly proceed to that island.

M. Renan.—The whole of M. Renan's last volume of the "Origines du Christianisme" is now in type. He is at present busy with the huge index for the seven volumes. Before writing his history of the Jews up to the second exile, he intends to visit, if his health will permit it, the Holy Land as well as Sinai.—Athenæum.

Eton College.—The election to foundation Scholarships will be made on Monday, the 25th of July, the examination commencing on Tuesday, the 19th, and terminating on Thursday, the 21st. A paper relating to the examination and containing the form of declaration, &c., may be obtained from the clerk to the new governing body, Eton College, Windsor, and to him the necessary certificates and declaration must be sent on or before the 25th day of June next.

Winchester College.—The annual examination for scholarships and exhibitions at this College will begin on Tuesday, July 19, at 9 a.m. About 12 scholars and one exhibitioner (£50) will be elected. Notice of candidates must be given on or before the last day of June to the Rev. G. Richardson, the College, Winchester, who will supply the necessary forms on application.

Fire at Winton Castle.—On Saturday afternoon a fire broke out at Winton Castle, Haddingtonshire, the seat of the Dowager Lady Ruthven. The damage caused is estimated at about £7,000. The older and more interesting portions of the building were saved, but several old family pictures were destroyed.

Colliery Accident.—At Harris's Navigation Colliery, Pontypridd, on Saturday, as the cages were in motion, the connecting rod of the engine broke, the cylinder burst, and the lives of the 300 men who were at work in the pit were imperilled. The noise of the report brought hundreds of women and children to the spot, and great excitement prevailed. The colliers below were, however, all got out in a few hours by another shaft. The pit, which is one of the deepest in the country, will now lie idle for some months, as it will take a long time to repair the damage.

Railway Casualty.—On Friday, at Weeton, near Harrogate, the 11 35 a.m. express on the North-Eastern line to Leeds had a narrow escape from a serious disaster. A boy in charge of two horses drawing a heavy road roller was crossing the line as the train approached. The horses and lad were on the up line, and the engine dashed into them and killed them instantly. The roller was on the metals of the down line, and had the collision occurred a few seconds later the obstruction to the train would have been such as to cause an accident of a much more serious nature.

Death in a Signal Box.—As the 1 a.m. mail train from Southampton to London neared Woking, on Friday morning, the driver noticed the danger signal on at Sheerwater and stopped his train. After waiting 25 minutes the fireman went to the signal-box to ascertain the cause of the delay, and found the signalman, Samuel Gunner, dead in his box. There were no signs of foul play. Less than half an hour previously the deceased had signalled a train to Woking. He had been in the service of the company 30 years.

Royal Archæological Institute.—On Thursday the usual monthly meeting was held at the rooms of the society in New Burlington-street, Lord Talbot de Malahide in the chair. Mr. J. T. Micklethwaite read an interesting paper entitled "Notes on High Side-Windows in Churches." Among the articles exhibited were three dishes of late 17th century Sevilla ware; two tiles in bold relief of Damascene work, the one of the 16th century, the other probably of the 18th or even the 19th; other specimens of tiles, not in relief, also from Damascus; and similar tiles, probably made by Persian potters in the Isle of Rhodes; these were lent by Mr. J. H. Middleton. The Baron de Cosson exhibited three swords of the 14th century, and sundry fragments of other weapons, from Almedinilla, near Cordova, in Spain. Mr. J. S. Bayly exhibited a collection of rubbings of brasses from various churches in Essex, mostly unrecorded by Haines, Morant, and other writers; Mr. M. H. Bloxam exhibited an object in pottery, of unknown use, found at Brinklow, in Warwickshire. Mr. Albert Hartshorne exhibited a drawing of the monument to John IV., Duke of Brittany (who died A.D. 1399), formerly existing in the cathedral of Nantes; and Mr. H. R. Gosselin exhibited some examples of filagree work and wood carving from Iceland. The Rev. J. F. Russell also exhibited some remarks on the Book of Common Prayer, and a letter of condolence addressed to a lady, both in the autograph of Dr. Isaac Watts.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

NEWMARKET AND CHESTER.

The feature of the betting on the Two Thousand Guineas at Newmarket last week was the marked firmness of Cameliard and Golden Plover, the latter being freely supported by the followers of Archer, the prestige of his Bend Or victory in the City and Suburban Handicap being fresh in their memory. Scobell was backed somewhat freely to win, but still there was a marked desire to bet against his finishing in the first three. The same state of things ruled on the course as the competitors were inspected in the paddock, and, as might have been anticipated, the opinions expressed upon their respective chances were as various as the men who gave expression to them. The French colt Tristan was found to have grown little, if anything, during the winter. Town Moor was the same great lumbering horse as last year, his stable-companion, Cameliard, who made many friends by his easy defeat of Golden Plover at the Craven meeting, being preferred before him and carrying Lord Rosebery's first colours. Wandering Nun was not liked, and it seemed difficult to account for the furore to back her which existed in some quarters, her close race with Scobell at Lewes last season being, perhaps, relied upon as a true test of her merits; but fillies are not trustworthy at this season of the year, especially in a large field of colts. Peregrine, the dark three-year-old from Russley-park, who had jumped into a prominent position in the betting in consequence of the success of his stable-companion Bend Or at Epsom a week before, was seen to be a fine, upstanding colt, of the stamp so long associated with the stud of the late Earl of Glasgow, which was well represented by a former winner of the Guineas in General Peel, whom Peregrine somewhat resembles. At the same time, the adherents of the stable appeared more or less lukewarm, in consequence, we believe, of the uncertain character the horse bore in private and of their doubts about his getting quite home, so that he retreated to a slightly longer figure in the price current. Though allowed to be a fine specimen of a racehorse, standing, as he does, fully 16 hands high, with size, bone, length, and liberty, Peregrine was decidedly not a public fancy, a certain amount of prejudice not unnaturally existing against horses which have never previously appeared on a racecourse, the unlucky débuts of Morier and Muncaster from the same training-place telling against the Grosvenor colt, who was purchased at the Duke of Westminster's sale in November last for 700 guineas, but remained in the same stable as the Derby winner. Scobell, whose preparation had been interfered with, presented a marked contrast to his stable-companion, Robert the Devil, and, in spite of the confidence of his party, considerable doubts were expressed as to his being a stayer—the majority of the colts by Carnival, who was his sire, having proved to be deficient in stamina. Cumberland was a common-looking little horse, quite out of place in such company as he met, while of the rest of the field were Iroquois, who attracted little or no attention, despite his excellent performances as a two-year-old, his companion, Passaic, and Don Fulano, all three Americans. After a brief delay at the post, the 14 runners were despatched to an excellent start, a very large company of spectators awaiting the issue on both sides of the course from the Bushes to the finish. Coming down the Bushes-hill, the competitors whose colours showed most prominently in the van were Scobell, Town Moor, Cameliard, Iroquois, and Don Fulano, but in rising the ascent Peregrine quitted the ruck, and raced easily past the leading lot, his fine stride and free style of galloping showing to perfection as he ascended the hill past the winning post one of the easiest winners on record since Petrarch and Macgregor. Iroquois passed the judge fully three lengths behind the winner, and as he did so Cameliard, next to him, was checked, and the outsider, Don Fulano, who started at 100 to 1, obtained third place by a short head, on sufferance. It is difficult to see what chance any of the beaten horses can have of turning the tables on Peregrine in the Derby, though perhaps Lord Rosebery's colt may show to more advantage on some future occasion. It remains to be seen whether Sir Charles, who won the New Stakes at Ascot in 1880 like a first-class racehorse, the representative of Mr. Rothschild, and the best of the American team, with Geologist and St. Louis, if the latter can be got round in time, are capable of preventing the Two Thousand winner from following in the footsteps of Lord Lyon by securing the blue riband of the Turf as well. Peregrine is a brown colt by the late Sir Joseph Hawley's St. Leger winner, Pero Gomez, from the late Mr. George Payne's Adelaide, by Young Melbourne, from a mare by Teddington—Maid of Masham. He obtains his size through his dam, Adelaide, from his grand sire Melbourne, the best male representative of the Sorcerer blood, of which there are likewise two strains in Maid of Masham, whose sire and dam were both out of mares by Comus, son of Sorcerer. Pero Gomez, on the other hand, was not a very large framed horse, but was full of quality, his sire being Beadsman and his dam Salamanca.

On Friday the One Thousand Guineas, for fillies, brought 13 runners to the post, the majority of which were saddled in the Birdcage. Thebais has not grown since last year, but she has filled out and thickened, although she may not have improved as much as might have been expected. Myra is a remarkably fine filly, and with time will develop into a good three-year-old, as she is rather backward at present, and appeared as if she had been somewhat hurried in her preparation. Thora was in perfect condition, and made many friends, and though she is somewhat on the small side, is likely in the future to do better on the Epsom courses. Lucy Glitters and Mazurka looked well and were backed, the first named because it was thought that she was, according to some of her last year's running, but little inferior to Thebais, and the latter because of her running in the Astley and Champagne Stakes. Angelina seems to have filled out and to have become a fine three-year-old, but it is probable that she will be more at home over short courses. The Russian-bred Stchaistia by Vadim (son of Vandyke)—Devaria, by Deceit, by King of Trumps, is an enormous filly, and very backward, but she may improve with time. In the race itself Moll Davis made the running, and as they came down the Bushes-hill, Thora and Thebais drew to the front, closely followed by Myra, who looked very formidable for a moment, but dying away, apparently from want of condition, the issue was left to the leading pair. As they ascended the hill from the Abingdon bottom Thebais, who had been slightly in the rear of Thora, drew level with her, and the two fillies raced head and head from half-way up the rails to within a few yards of the winning post. Here Fordham called upon Thebais, and by consummate horsemanship landed her a winner by a neck. The sire of Thebais is Hermit, son of Newminster, by Touchstone, while her dam, Devotion, is by Stockwell—Alcestis, by Touchstone, so that she has two strains of Touchstone and one of Birdcatcher blood in her pedigree; while Thora, who is by Doncaster, son of Stockwell and Marigold, from Freia, by Hermit—Thoradoy, by Thormanby—Manganese, has three strains of Touchstone and two of Birdcatcher blood in her veins. Both Thebais and Thora are engaged in the Oaks and another interesting race between the two may be witnessed on Epsom Downs, where the course may be more to the advantage of Thora.

The Chester meeting commences to-morrow and extends over Thursday, the chief race of the meeting, the Cup, being in Wednesday's programme. The principal races to-morrow will be the Mostyn Stakes and the Wynnstay Handicap. The Mostyn Stakes, of 15 sovs. each, 10 forfeit, with 400 added, has 26 horses left in, the best performers being Major Stapylton's Stump Orator, by Salvator—Slander, who was third to Bulbul and Belle Lurette in the Molyneux Stakes at Liverpool and subsequently won the Great Yorkshire Foal Stakes at Thirsk; Sir J. Astley's Corky, whose best form was at Epsom when he ran Jubilee to a neck in the Westminster Stakes; and Lord Rosebery's Soracte, by Macaroni—Mahonia, who, though backward, ran well at Epsom in the Hyde-park Plate. Lord Rosslyn's Dunmore, by Scottish Chief—Czarina, is also engaged, and as he is said to be very smart he may win if he runs, but it is very likely that he will be reserved for a more valuable engagement. The Wynnstay Handicap, of 10 sovs. each, with 150 added, run over a mile-and-a-quarter course, has 16 entries, the best of which appear to be Kineton, 8st. 12lb.; Heath Bird, 7st. 10lb.; Lyric and Prince Bladud, each 7st. 8lb.; the first and second of these being, perhaps, the most reliable.

The Chester Trades' Cup, of 25 sovs. each, 15 forfeit, with 500 added, once the most important of the spring handicaps, will be run on Wednesday, over a course two miles-and-a-quarter in length, the Stewards having reverted to the old Cup Course, which was changed to a mile-and-three-quarters in 1879 and 1880. All Mr. Gretton's horses having been struck out, Madame du Barry, 8st. 12lb., heads the handicap, and if she is in her last autumn's form she ought to run well, but she was easily beaten in the Newcastle Spring Handicap some few weeks ago. Reefer, 8st. 3lb., won the race in 1879 with 7st. 1lb. in the saddle and last year was fourth, but he is an uncertain horse and seemed to lose his form towards the end of the season when he was running in indifferent company. Retreat, 7st. 9lb., and Cylinder, 7st., represent Wadlow, and both are good horses, but they may be kept for some other engagements. Apollo, 7st. 9lb., is fairly treated, but he has shown indifferent form this season both at Epsom and at Newmarket and he probably cannot stay. Prudhomme, 7st. 8lb., ran well in 1880 and in receipt of 6lb. was second to Exeter for the Rosebery Plate at Newmarket last week, a performance which has led many to think he will run well at Chester. Sportsman, 7st. 7lb.; Blackthorn, 6st. 11lb.; and Cracknell, 6st. 7lb., represent Mr. Jardine, and as the firstnamed beat Milan in the Newmarket St. Leger and Roehampton in the Edinburgh Cup last autumn he is leniently handicapped. He is very well and has done a good preparation, and the same may be said of Blackthorn, 6st. 11lb., who carried off the Liverpool July Cup and the Middlesborough Handicap, though he ran badly on several occasions. He has, however, an engagement in the Great Cheshire Handicap on Friday, so that, perhaps, Sportsman will run for the Cup, but whichever is the selected one will be very formidable. Essayez, 7st. 4lb.; Sun of York, 6st. 9lb.; and Windsor, 6st. 6lb., are trained by Lynham, and of these the firstnamed is the best, though he has not yet won over a long course. Exmouth, 6st. 11lb., who is backward; ran well in the Goodwood Stakes of 1879, as did Mistress of the Robes, 6st. 10lb. She only appeared in public once last year, when she was unplaced in the Manchester Autumn Handicap, but she is reported to have done a good preparation and to be very well. Sweetbroom, 6st., is very lightly weighted for a four-year-old, and as he has only won two races and those have been at Chester, one as a two-year-old and the other as a three-year-old, he seems to like the course and should run well.

The most important races on Thursday will be the Great Cheshire Handicap and the Dee Stakes for three-year-olds. The firstnamed is a handicap, of 20 sovs. each, with 400 added, run over a mile-and-a-quarter course, and there are 14 entries. Reefer, 8st. 12lb., heads the handicap and he will probably do better over this course than in the Chester Cup, but it is doubtful if he can concede 3lb. to Buchanan, 8st. 9lb., if the latter is well. Toastmaster, 8st. 9lb., and Cylinder, 7st. 12lb., are trained by Wadlow, and as the latter is in the Cup Toastmaster may run, and should be very near winning if he can defeat Post Obit, 8st. 9lb., who is now the property of Lord Stamford. Prudhomme, 8st. 1lb., will show his form in the Cup, and if Sportsman represents Mr. Jardine in the longer race Blackthorn, 7st. 6lb., will run for the Cheshire Stakes and will find his most formidable opponents in Post Obit and Toastmaster. Of the remainder, Essayez, 7st. 12lb., and Lancaster Bowman, 7st. 10lb., are the best, but the latter's stable seems to be out of form. The old-established Dee Stakes, of 25 sovs. each, with 400 added, run over a mile-and-a-half course, has 24 entries, the best performers being Eos, 8st. 9lb., Lucy Glitters, 8st. 2lb., and Voluptuary and the colt by Tynedale—Turn of the Tide, 8st. 12lb. each.

FOOTBALL.

THE GLASGOW CHARITY CUP.

On Saturday last, at Glasgow, the final tie for this cup was played between the Rangers and Queen's-park. During the first portion of the game the latter had the wind at their backs, and within ten minutes of the kick-off Kay kicked a goal for them. After this the struggle was very even, until a little prior to half-time, when the score was brought level by a goal for the Rangers. Ends having been changed, it was not long before a second goal was secured for Queen's-park, and despite some determined attempts on the part of the Rangers to score, this was supplemented by a third. The Queen's-park Club thus won the match by three goals to one. It is estimated that the profits made out of the matches played for the cup will be about £700, which will be devoted to the Glasgow charities. The following were the teams:—

Queen's-park.—H. M'Neill, E. Fraser, W. Anderson, J. Smith, J. T. Richmond, and J. Kay, forwards; A. M'Cullum, goalkeeper; A. Watson and A. H. Holm, backs; J. J. Gow and Davidson, half-backs.

The Rangers.—D. Hill, W. M'Kinlay, W. Struthers, A. Steel, W. Pringle, and J. Inglis, forwards; G. Gillespie, goalkeeper; T. Vallance and A. Vallance, backs; J. M'Intyre and J. Drinnan, half-backs.

BILLIARDS.

The tournament at the Royal Aquarium, Westminster, advanced another stage on Saturday, and as to who will furnish the winner of the competition still remains a very open question. A. Bowles, 120 points start, beat D. Richards, scratch, by 182 points. The winner's chief break was 58 and the loser's 37. J. Bennett, owes 50, claimed the match against H. Evans, 50 points start. Unfortunately the latter, after his opponent had failed at a cannon, played with the wrong ball. Bennett claimed the heat, and it was the general opinion that he was justified in so doing, an opinion which was endorsed by the marker and G. Collins, the manager of the handicap. When the dispute arose the game stood Evans, 164; Bennett, 114. In the third game G. Collins, 50 points start, beat W. J. Peall, 50 points start, by 69. The former's best break was 99 and the latter's 72. Owing to the continued absence of F. Bennett through indisposition, F. Shorter, owes 20, had a bye; but he played a game with Richards, whom he defeated by 17 points only. G. Hunt, 50 points start, beat W. Green, scratch, after a rather long game, by 93. The winner's best break was 75 and the loser's 79.

The positions of the competitors up to this point are as follows:—H. Evans, won five games, lost two; A. Bowles, won five, lost two; J. Bennett, won five (including that claimed against Evans), lost two; W. Green, won four, lost three; G. Hunt, won four, lost three; F. Shorter, won four, lost three; G. Collins, won four, lost three; W. Peall, won two, lost five; and D. Richards, won two, lost five; F. Bennett, retired.

CHESS.

On Saturday a match between Cambridge University and the Fourth Class of the City of London Chess Club was played at Mouflet's Hotel, Newgate-street. There were 12 players a side. As usual in class matches of this description the University was entitled to bring forward its strongest players, while the City Club was not allowed to bring forward any player above fourth-class strength. The rooms were crowded during the contest, and among the spectators were nearly all the leading chess players of the metropolis. At the finish it was found that Cambridge had won 6½ games, and the City Club also 6½ games, making the match a drawn battle.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

The following information respecting the movements of Her Majesty's ships is supplied by the Admiralty:—From Ville Franche.—The Commander-in-Chief, Vice-Admiral Sir F. Beauchamp Seymour, K.C.B., in the Helicon, left for Malta on the 5th inst.; the Alexandra would follow the Helicon shortly; the Falcon would proceed to Palermo to await orders. From Malta.—The Téméraire arrived from Sicily on the 4th of May. From the West Coast of Africa.—Letters have been received from the Senior Officer in the Champion, at Elmina, up to the 9th of April; the Firefly, the Flirt, and the Foam were at Elmina; the Pioneer at Accra for a week; the Rambler had left for a short cruise; the Wye was at Cape Coast Castle. From Coquimbo.—The Turquoise ordered to come to Plymouth, calling at Sandy Point, Straits of Magellan, to examine wreck of Doterel.

Her Majesty's troopship Serapis arrived at Suez on Thursday from Bombay, and left Port Said on Saturday for Malta.

A Reuter's telegram from Gibraltar, dated May 7, says:—"Her Majesty's gun-boat Swinger, from China, arrived here to-day, and will leave on Monday for Plymouth.

Her Majesty's composite gun-boat Mallard, Lieut. and Commander Arthur J. Hamilton, sailed from Devonport for Cape Coast Castle on Thursday, with orders to call at Madeira, Cape Verds, and Sierra Leone.

A telegram received through Reuter's Agency from Malta, dated May 8, says:—Her Majesty's despatch vessel Helicon, with Vice-Admiral Sir F. Beauchamp Seymour, Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean, on board, has arrived here from Marsala; and Her Majesty's ironclad Invincible, from Syracuse. Her Majesty's gun vessel Swift has sailed for China.

The total receipts of the Royal Naval and Military Bazaar held at Cannon-street, last week, amounted to over £3,300. This sum will be devoted to the benefit of the Aldershot Soldiers' Homes (North Camp and Grosvenor-road,) and the Chatham Soldiers' and Seamen's Institute.

Capt. Arthur John Bigge, Royal Artillery, Assistant Keeper of the Privy Purse and Assistant Private Secretary to the Queen, has been appointed Equerry in Ordinary, in the room of Lieut.-Gen. Arthur Hardinge, C.B., who has resigned and been appointed an extra Equerry.

By the death of Capt. W. K. Joliffe, R.N., a naval pension of £80 per annum is vacant.

Lieut. Scott J. B. Willcox was on Saturday appointed to the Duke of Wellington, additional, for service in the Harrier.

The Lords of the Admiralty have appointed Capt. William R. Truscott, Royal Marine Light Infantry, to be instructor of musketry at the Royal Marine Recruit Depôt, Walmer, in the vacancy caused by the death of Capt. R. H. Dwyer, R.M.L.I., on the 26th ult.

The following appointments have been made at the Admiralty:—Lieut. John P. P. Coote, to the Duke of Wellington, vice Lieut. Ponsford; J. Stiven, chief engineer, to the Asia, additional for torpedo instruction; H. W. B. Delafons, clerk, to the Mutine; and C. E. C. Webb, clerk, to the Excellent, vice Saville.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

In Hyde Park and at Wimbledon there were two large parades of the Metropolitan Volunteers on Saturday, and the weather being very fine, many thousands of spectators were present to witness the manœuvres, which were directed in Hyde Park by Col. Clive, Grenadier Guards, in the presence of Major-Gen. Higginson, C.B., commanding the Home District, and other officers, and at Wimbledon by Col. Moncrieff, Scots Guards. The five City regiments, following an annual custom, turned the occasion of the spring muster into good account by combined drill in brigade. The muster of four of the regiments was at Finsbury circus, the fifth joining near the Bank of England. The column was composed of the three arms—the 1st London Artillery, under Lieut.-Col. Wegg-Prosser, leading; 400 Engineers, under Lieut.-Col. Drew, followed; and then came the London Rifle Brigade, about 450 of all ranks, under Lieut.-Col. W. Haywood; 2d London Rifles, about 500, under the command (in the absence of Lieut.-Col. Vickers) of Major and Adjutant Nevinson; and the 3d London Rifles, about 600, under Lieut.-Col. Laurie. The column proceeded by way of Queen Victoria-street to the Thames Embankment, where it was joined by Col. Clive, the brigadier. The remainder of the route to Hyde Park by way of Northumberland-avenue, Charing-cross, Pall mall, St. James's-street, and Piccadilly, was lined by many thousands of persons. The Exhibition ground, opposite the new barracks, was selected for the manœuvres, and the ground having been cleared by a strong force of police, line of contiguous columns was formed, and various deployments, changes of front, &c., were executed in the presence of Gen. Higginson. The movements lasted till darkness set in, when the column marched to the Duke of York's column and was dismissed.

Colonel Moncrieff's brigade at Wimbledon was formed up at half-past 6 o'clock in the following order:—South Middlesex Rifles, Lieut.-Col. Lord Ranleagh; 10th Middlesex, Major Clark; Inns of Court, Lieut.-Col. Bulwer; 20th Middlesex (Artists), Major Edis; Queen's Westminster, Lieut.-Col. Bushby; and London Scottish, Lieut.-Col. Lumsden. The musters were in the case of each regiment good and in excess of the numbers actually requisite, those having the largest attendance being the Queen's, South Middlesex, and 10th Middlesex. A march past preceded the more serious part of the work of the evening, which lasted till dark.

Besides the above, some 3,000 men of other regiments were out on Saturday.

THE END OF A "FAVOURITE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES.

Sir,—I have this moment read in Bell's Life the following sentence, bearing upon a subject deeply impressed on my own heart and that of humanity at large yesterday at Sandown:—"The Open Hunters Race re-introduced us to Marshal Niel, and, although he was most fancied and ran well, his condition told against him when it came to racing, and, breaking down badly, a friendly bullet later in the afternoon ended his career."

Whoever supplied this piece of information was either ignorant of the circumstances attending the massacre of poor old Marshal Niel, or anxious that their shameful and disgusting details should not be known. I, on the contrary, am determined they shall be known, so far as I can ventilate them.

Strolling up to the Paddock, I heard a shot fired, succeeded by an immediate chorus of "What a shame!" all round. At the same time I saw the old horse rushing wildly about with a broken bridle. He was surrounded at the top of the Paddock, and on going to look at him I was horror-struck to see a frightful wound close to one of his eyes, from which the blood was streaming. He was then led into one of the boxes and shut up. I immediately went to the Committee-room to report what I had seen and to demand instant investigation by the authorities regarding this most atrocious proceeding. This I was assured should be at once instituted. Half an hour afterwards I returned to the door of the box into which he had been put, and found a policeman standing there on duty. I asked him if the horse was still left alive. He replied, "Yes; but they are just going to shoot him," and a bevy of stablemen who were about said that it was to be done at once. I turned away, and as I crossed the Paddock heard another shot fired, which I hope and trust completed the work of the "friendly bullet!" I have since heard that two or three shots had already been fired into Marshal Niel before this last one.

Now, two questions arise. The first is, whether the Paddock at Sandown is to be converted into a knacker's yard? The second is, who is the responsible being—I will not call him man—for this foul murder of an old public favourite?

I have the honour to be your obedient servant,
E. HERON-MAXWELL.

Arthur's, St. James's-street, S.W., May 8.

Sir Evelyn Wood and the Boers.—A correspondent writes:—"Sir Henry Drummond Wolff has given notice that he will on Monday (this day) call attention in the House of Commons to the share of responsibility incurred by Sir Evelyn Wood in concluding peace with the Boers. Sir Evelyn Wood's advice is to be found in despatches Nos. 89 and 113, dated March 5 and 17, contained in the Blue-book No. C 2,837. In the former he telegraphed, 'In discussing settlement of country, my constant endeavour shall be to carry out the spirit of your orders; but, considering the disasters we have sustained, I think the happiest result would be that after accelerating successful action, which I hope to fight in about 14 days, the Boers should disperse without any guarantee, and then many now undoubtedly coerced will settle down.' In the latter despatch, March 17, he telegraphs, 'After eight hours' talk I am confirmed in the opinion expressed in my telegram of the 5th inst.'"

The Late Volunteer Review.—The Field-Marshal Commanding-in-Chief has conveyed to the directors of the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway an expression of his appreciation of the excellent manner in which the railway services in connexion with the conveyance of the Volunteers to and from Brighton on Easter Monday on the occasion of the recent review were carried out.

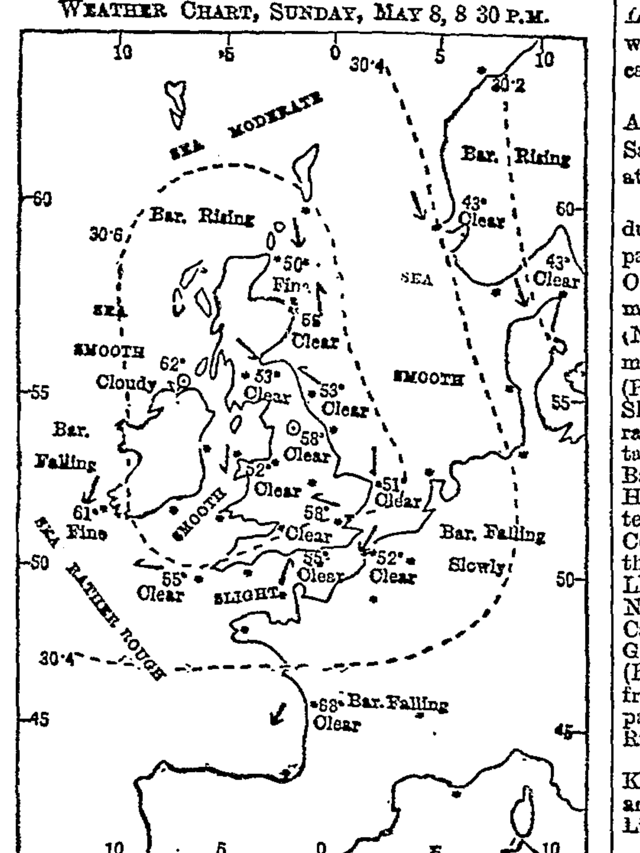
The Attempted Outrage at Chester.—Nothing has occurred since Friday morning which points to the perpetrators of the outrage at Chester Barracks on Thursday night, but the police hope that the remains of the bag which contained the combustible material will lead to the detection of the offender. It is thought that the outrage was the outcome of malice on the part of a Militiaman towards one of the Staff officers occupying the barracks. The bag contained about 70lb. of gunpowder. The guards have been doubled at the Castle and every precaution taken to prevent a surprise.

The London Hospitals.—In replying to a deputation which waited upon him on Thursday in reference to the management of Guy's Hospital, the Home Secretary expressed himself in favour of an inquiry by a Royal Commission into the management of London hospitals generally. A much more economical and successful way of managing them might, he thought, be effected, though the bodies connected with them were very strong and might be difficult to deal with.

THE WEATHER.

METEOROLOGICAL REPORTS.

Weather Chart, Sunday, May 8, 8 30 p.m.



Explanation of the Chart.

In the above chart the dotted lines are "isobars" or lines of equal barometrical pressure, the values which they indicate being given in figures at the end, thus—30·4. The shade temperature is given in figures for several places on the coast, and the weather is recorded in words. The arrows fly with the wind, the force of which is shown by the number of barbs and feathers, thus:— ——›, light; ——›, fresh or strong; —»—›, a gale; —»»—›, a violent gale; ⊙ signifies calm. The state of the sea is noted in capital letters. The * denotes the various stations.

Remarks.

The weather over the British Islands to-day has been unusually fine and bright, the wind moderate, and the air pleasant and dry. This morning's reports showed that the central area of the anticyclone noticed over us yesterday had moved northwards, and at 8 a.m. lay over the Irish Sea. In that region the barometer stood at a little above 30·7in. Fresh north-westerly breezes prevailed on our northern coasts, moderate northerly winds in the east, and north-easterly to easterly in the south. Temperature ranged from 52deg. to 57deg. over the whole of the kingdom, and clear, bright weather was reported from almost every station. During to-day the barometer has been inclined to fall a little, except in the north-east of Scotland, the winds have become still more moderate in force, and in some places sea breezes have set in during the afternoon. The maximum temperatures recorded were 66deg. in the south of London, 65deg. at York, 63deg. at Hurst Castle, and 62deg. at Aberdeen. In London the sun's rays have been very warm and genial, but the air felt cool and very dry. The sea is moderate in the south-west, smooth at Holyhead and Dover.

Forecasts of Weather for Monday, May 9.
(Issued at 8 30 p.m. on the previous day).

0. Scotland, N.—Northerly breezes, moderate; fine.
1. Scotland, E.—Same as No. 0.
2. England, N.E.—Wind veering towards east, moderate or fresh; fine.
3. England, E.—Same as No. 2.
4. Midland Counties.—Same as No. 2.
5. England, S. (London and Channel).—Easterly breezes, moderate to fresh; fine.
6. Scotland, W.—Wind easterly to south-easterly, moderate; fine.
7. England, N.W. (and North Wales).—Same as No. 6.
8. England, S.W. (and South Wales).—Easterly to south-easterly winds, fresh to strong in places; fine.
9. Ireland, N.—Wind veering south-eastwards or south-wards, freshening; fine to cloudy or dull, milder.
10. Ireland, S.—Same as No. 9.

By order,
ROBERT H. SCOTT, Secretary.

The subjoined Diagram gives the indications at intervals of 2 hours from 2 p.m. to 2 a.m. of the Jordan Glycerine Barometer in use at this Office, the Readings being corrected for temperature and reduced to mean sea level:—

(Reuter's Telegram.)

RIGA, May 8.—Upwards of 20 steamers have arrived here during the last few days, after having forced the passage of the Domes-Näss, and the channel is now open for sailing vessels. Thirty ships arrived at Bolderaa yesterday, most of them being sailing vessels.

DISASTERS AT SEA.

During a dense fog on Friday night the steamer Culmore, of and for Liverpool from Valencia, with oranges, struck near Bishop's Rock, Scilly, and sank. The two engineers and the steward were drowned, but the remainder of the crew were landed in two boats at St. Mary's, Scilly. Captain Cobb was picked up by one of the boats, but he died shortly after being taken on board.

Lloyd's agent at Montevideo telegraphed on the 7th inst. that the barque John Geddie had been burnt at sea. The crew, picked up by the Swedish brig Victoria in lat 25. S., long. 41 W., arrived at Montevideo on the 7th, all well. The John Geddie was a barque of 651 tons, built at Nova Scotia in 1866, and owned in Liverpool. She was on a voyage from Cardiff for Montevideo.

There were 12 British and foreign wrecks, of which 14 were British (4 being steamers), reported during the past week, making a total of 750 for the present year, or an increase of 191 as compared with the corresponding period of last year. The approximate value of property lost was £7,000,000, including British £6,000,000. Five vessels were lost off the coasts of the United Kingdom, four were abandoned at sea; 280 men lost their lives.

The Church in the Metropolis.—The Bishop of London has instituted the Rev. Nicholas Jessop Devereux, B.A., to the Vicarage of St. Mary, Hoxton, and the Rev. William Henry Edward Ricketts Jervis to the Rectory of Cranford; and has licensed the Rev. Hugh Huleatt, M.A., to be lecturer on Tuesdays at St. Mary Aldermary, City; the Rev. Philip Charles Bevan, B.A., to the curacy of St. Marylebone; the Rev. William Bromilow to the curacy of St. Pancras; the Rev. Robert Campbell Connolly, M.A.. to the curacy of Hounslow; the Rev. Willie Parkinson Jay to the curacy of Hackney; the Rev. James Crabtree Sutcliffe, M.A., to the curacy of St. Peter, Bethnal-green; the Rev. Grant Ellcock Thomas, M.A., to the curacy of the Parish Chapel, St. Marylebone; the Rev. William West to the curacy of St. Bartholomew, Gray's-inn-road; the Rev. Sidney William Arthur Williams to the curacy of St. Gabriel, Bromley-by-Bow; the Rev. Francis Henry Albert Hawkins to the curacy of All Saints, Clapton; and the Rev. John Maurice Slack, M.A., to be an East London Missionary.

A Clergyman Drowned.—Mr. W. Watts, district coroner of South Devon, held an inquest on Friday evening at the Royal Hotel, Dawlish, on the body of Richard Parnell, 61, vicar of St. Stephen, North Bow, Middlesex, who met with a fatal boat accident on Thursday. The first witness, Edward Hamilton Parnell, solicitor, of 21, Fenchurch-street, London, said that the deceased, his father, went down to Dawlish on Monday, May 2, for the benefit of his health. William Horsford, boatman, of Dawlish, stated he was in the Cove, at Dawlish, about 11 30 on Thursday, when the deceased and his wife engaged witness's boat. Witness asked whether they would like to sail, and deceased said "Yes;" also that they wanted to go towards Teignmouth. The wind was rather squally. On getting outside witness said, "I think we had better return." Immediately a sudden squall capsized the boat—witness at the time holding the sail with one hand and steering with the other—and they were all thrown out. A ship's boat came along and deceased, who was picked up, appeared dead. After hearing further evidence the jury brought in a verdict of "Accidental death."

Suicide.—A singular case of suicide was reported to Mr. Payne, the City Coroner, on Saturday. On the previous evening a German lady went to the Metropolitan Baths, Shepherdess-walk, City-road, and asked for a warm bath. The bath was supplied, and the door of the room shut. Some three hours afterwards the attendant called to the woman, but received no answer. The door being forced open, she was found in the bath in a comatose condition. With a knife, recently purchased, she had severed the artery in the bend of both her arms, and had cut herself about the body. She was conveyed to St. Bartholomew's Hospital, where she died an hour after admission. The whole of her clothing was quite new. The deceased, who is not known, is about 40 years of age, and of middle height.

THE MAILS.

The Royal Mail Company's steamship Mondego, Captain L. R. Dickinson, sailed from Southampton on Saturday, with the direct River Plate mails, passengers, and a general cargo, calling only at Carril and Vigo.

Messrs. Palgrave, Murphy, and Co.'s steamship City of Amsterdam, Captain Jeffares, arrived at Southampton on Saturday morning from Oporto, landed 100 oxen, and sailed at 2 p.m. for London.

The following mail steamships will leave Southampton during the ensuing week:—The Tamar (Royal Mail Company), Capt. A. E. Bell, to-day, with the Brazil Mails; the Oder (North German Lloyd), Capt. C. VIVISECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES.

Sir,—Mr. Hutton says he "cannot agree at all" with me in my expression of regret "that the agitation against vivisection 'has carried off so much valuable enthusiasm in the pursuit of a harmless Will o' the wisp, when so many and such real abuses are burning in our midst;'" and the reason that he gives for not agreeing with me is that, although the cruelty of "rude persons is vastly greater in amount than the cruelty of set purpose inflicted for a scientific end, yet the latter, when justified and even extolled by men of high standing, is far more prolific of moral danger to the character of society at large." Now, in the first place, the instance of wholesale cruelty—properly so called as the infliction of needless pain—to which I specially pointed, is not one in which "rude persons" are specially engaged; on the contrary, in many places rabbits are bred by landed proprietors and "gentlemen farmers" for the express purpose of being trapped, and "vermin" in general is considered by all classes of the community fair game for death by torture. But, leaving this point aside, I consider Mr. Hutton's letter a desirable addition to the correspondence, because it sets in a clear light the following facts:—

We are all agreed—in the face of such overwhelming disproportion it is impossible to be otherwise—that the actual amount of animal suffering inflicted by vivisection, as contrasted with needless suffering inflicted in other ways, is a vanishing quantity. Now Mr. Hutton, while allowing this, justifies the gnat and camel policy of his friends, not on the ground of its being beneficial to animals but on that of its checking an evil "prolific of moral danger to the character of society at large." Opinions, of course, will differ now, as they did with much more apparent reason at the time of the Anatomy Act, concerning the likelihood of scientific knowledge becoming a source of public demoralization; but it is important to observe that in the face of facts elicited by a Royal Commission, the clear-headed anti-vivisectors acknowledge that their efforts are being directed against a supposed moral danger to mankind rather than in favour of humanity to animals. Therefore, as "a lover of animals," I continue to regret that "so much valuable enthusiasm" which I should like to see expended in saving them from real and enormous cruelties is being squandered in what I consider mistaken solicitude for the ethics of society.

Of course I know that Mr. Hutton's view is not the view entertained by anti-vivisectors, who have not had the opportunities which he has enjoyed of studying the evidence on matters of fact. Such persons usually entertain the most absurd ideas on the amount of painful vivisection (as distinguished from vivisection under anæsthetics) which goes on in physiological laboratories, a... therefore join, with zeal more laudable than knowledge, in the Jack-o'-Lantern chase. But the Blue-book shows that the actual amount of pain caused by vivisection in this country is exceedingly small, so that, for instance, if there were such an instrument as an æsthometer wherewith to estimate the proportion, this amount of pain would be found overbalanced tens of thousands of times in the rat-traps of London alone. Therefore, Mr. Hutton, as the best-informed and most intelligent spokesman of his party, is constrained to admit that the feelings which mainly actuate him against vivisection are not the feelings which actuate the crowd; the crowd has in view the savings of animals from supposed torture on a grievous scale; Mr. Hutton has in view "a moral question of the utmost moment."

It is most desirable, for the purposes of clear judgment, that a sharp distinction should be drawn between the facts and the ethics of vivisection. Mr. Hutton adduces Dr. Rutherford's experiments in the latter connexion, and says that rather than gain knowledge at such a cost of animal life and suffering he would remain in ignorance. In consistency, all who say this ought to be vegetarians, to object to animal labour, and to refuse medical assistance. For how, with any kind of reason, can a man kill an animal to satisfy his own individual appetite, or hail a cab to save his own individual legs, and forthwith object to his neighbour killing another animal, or making it to do work in a laboratory for the purpose of gaining knowledge that may be, as it has been, of inestimable benefit to the race? (I omit from this comparison the element of pain, because it tells so greatly in favour of the physiologists; an æsthometer here employed would show millions to one against the butchers and the coachmen.) On the latter point, or the practical utility of vivisection, our opponents have, I know, endeavoured to cast a doubt. But surely a man does not require to be a physiologist or a physician to see the futility of any such attempt. Apart from the general consideration that in this matter physiologists and physicians must be the best judges, it is obvious to common sense that if physiology is the foundation of medicine, and if it is the science of vital processes, neither physiology nor medicine can advance in any important degree save by the study of organisms in the living state, where alone these processes are in operation. It would be as reasonable to tell a child to learn to read from a closed book as to expect a physiologist to advance his knowledge while denying him the only method of doing so which nature has provided.

So much, then, for the ethics. Any man may cry, Let animals be saved though science and medicine perish! But the public ought clearly to understand that this is the cry; they should not be induced to lend their support to an injurious, if not Quixotic, doctrine in ethics in the belief that they are combating serious cruelty to animals. As to the facts, when Mr. Darwin stated that the Royal Commission "proved that the accusations made against our English physiologists were false," the truth of the statement obviously depends on what we take these "accusations" to be. If it is an accusation to say that some physiologists practise vivisection, and that a certain amount of pain is sometimes (though comparatively rarely) entailed by the process, then Mr. Darwin was wrong in saying that the Royal Commission proved this accusation false. But if by "accusations" Mr. Darwin meant the huge and repulsive exaggerations wherewith a fevered sentimentality horrified the public, then, in my opinion, no one who reads the Blue-book can question the soundness of his judgment.

I am, Sir, yours, &c., GEORGE J. ROMANES.

St. Bartholomew's Hospital.—The City Press states that the Prince and Princess of Wales will be the guests of the treasurer of this hospital at a conversazione to be given on Friday, the 27th inst.

The Royal Caledonian Asylum.—The Earl of Aberdeen will preside at the 66th anniversary festival of this institution, which will take place at the Freemasons' Tavern, on Wednesday, the 15th of June next.

James Spedding Memorial Fund.—On Friday last a meeting of the friends of the late Mr. James Spedding was held at the Cosmopolitan Club Rooms, at which Lord Houghton, the Master of Trinity College, Sir Frederick Pollock, Mr. J. A. Hardcastle, M.P., Mr. G. S. Venables, Mr. D. D. Heath, Mr. E. Oldfield, Mr. Ernest Myers, and Mr. F. Pollock were present. Letters of regret for unavoidable absence were read from Sir Henry Taylor, the Dean of Ely, the Dean of Lincoln, Mr. F. W. Gibbs, Archdeacon Allen, and Mr. R. Monteith. It was resolved that it was desirable to erect by subscription a memorial to Mr. James Spedding, in the form of a portrait medallion, in the ante-chapel of Trinity College, Cambridge, to which the Master and Fellows have given their consent, and that subscriptions (limited to three guineas) should be invited for that purpose, and a committee was appointed, including, besides those present, the names of Sir Henry Maine, Mr. Justice Stephen, Mr. Alfred Tennyson, Mr. Stephen Spring-Rice, Mr. Henry Sidgwick, Mr. Henry Jackson, and Mr. W. Aldis Wright, who has consented to act as corresponding member at Cambridge. Subscriptions may be paid either to the credit of "The James Spedding Memorial Fund," at Messrs. Coutts and Co.'s; or to Mr. F. Pollock, the hon. secretary of the committee. In opening the proceedings as chairman Lord Houghton called attention to Mr. James Spedding's important public services at the Colonial Office, now too little remembered, and to the certain prospects of public advancement which he gave up for his literary work.

National Fisheries Exhibition.—On Saturday Earl Ducie distributed the prizes awarded in connexion with the National Fisheries Exhibition at Norwich, in the presence of the Duke of St. Albans, Lord Hartismere, Mr. Spencer Walpole, one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Fisheries; Mr. H. G. Calcraft, of the Board of Trade; the High Sheriff of Norfolk (Mr. G. D. Berney), Mr. E. Birkbeck, M.P., and others. Among the prizetakers were Mr. Anderson Smith, of Ledaig, Argyllshire, £20, for the best essay on "Pisciculture as a Source of National Wealth," and £15 for the best essay on "Oyster Breeding;" Sir James Maitland, £10, for the best essay on "Salmon Disease;" Mr. J. W. Delaux, of Great Yarmouth, £25, for the best essay on "The Principles upon which the Legislation on the Fisheries of the Country should be based," also £21 for his essay on "Herring Nets;" and Mr. J. W. Watt, of Aberdeen, £50, for his essay on "The Natural History and Habits of the Herring."

The Pen-y-Graig Colliery Explosion.—The observations by Mr. Thomas E. Wales, inspector of mines, with reference to the verdict of the jury at the coroner's inquest in this case have been published as a Parliamentary paper. Mr. Wales concludes his observations as follows:—"Great care had been taken by the management to keep the colliery free from explosive gas, and, indeed, gas had only been met with on three or four occasions (all of which were properly and accurately entered in the daily report book), and then only in small quantities; and although in the cases mentioned the Act was not complied with, I do not consider such omissions or infringements conduced in the slightest degree to the explosion, which I believe was due to a sudden outburst of gas, most probably ignited at one of the Clanny lamps, which were in general use in the colliery. I believe the only protection against explosions from sudden outbursts of gas (which unfortunately often occur in working the South Wales steam coals) will be found in the discovery of a safety lamp which will not explode, but be extinguished on coming in contact with an explosive current travelling at a velocity of six or seven miles an hour, or half that velocity if the lamp and current travel in opposite directions."

MISSIONARIES AT THE MANSION-HOUSE.

On Saturday evening the Lord Mayor gave a banquet at the Mansion-house to the Rev. Dr. Moffat and the representatives of the various missionary societies and other interested in missionary work. The company included the Archbishop of Canterbury, Earl Nelson, the Earl of Shaftesbury, the Bishops of Gloucester, of Sodor and Man, North China, Labuan, Antigua, and Victoria, Bishops Claughton, Tufnell, and Perry, Sir R. Temple, Sir T. F. Buxton, the President of the Wesleyan Conference, Sir J. Risdon Bennett, the Rev. Dr. Allon, Archdeacon Blomfield, the Rev. Canon Farrar, the Rev. J. Guinness Rogers, the Rev. Dr. Mackay, the Rev. J. A. Spurgeon, the Rev. Dr. Donald Fraser, and the Rev. Newman Hall.

After the loyal toasts,

The LORD MAYOR proposed the health of the Archbishop of Canterbury. We lived, he remarked, in days of boundless activity, and there was no characteristic of the Church which had more impressed him than its growing activity of late years. Clergy of all denominations threw themselves into every movement for the social, intellectual, and moral welfare of the people. They were honoured that night with the presence of one who, whether as the head of a great public school, as a clergyman, dean, bishop, and archbishop, had through a long career identified himself with all that was good. His Grace, when Bishop of London, was instrumental in establishing the Bishop of London's Fund for erecting new churches to meet the pressing wants of this great metropolis. He was well known to them as a man of wise counsel, Catholic spirit, and broad sympathies, but no broader than that common Christianity which brought them there that night. He was a man who saw his own principles clearly and held them firmly, but was yet so tolerant and considerate of others that while he had won the affection of his own clergy, he commanded the deep respect and confidence of all Non-conformists.

The toast having been honoured,

The ARCHBISHOP of CANTERBURY, who was very warmly received, said,—My Lord Mayor, my Lords, and Gentlemen, —I beg to thank you for the very kind way you have received the toast of my health. Not that I consider it is my health which has been given. It is not to myself, nor to anything which, under God's providence, I may have been instrumental in performing that you have so kindly given this warm recognition. It is rather to the great duties and responsibilities which devolve upon the position to which God has called me. I cannot doubt, my Lord Mayor, that you, in common with all in this great assembly, feel how difficult is the task which God has committed to my undeserving efforts. In this metropolis—the metropolis of the wealth and civilization, and I am afraid we must also say of the corruption of the world—it is no light matter to be placed in an important position as minister of Christ, so manifold are the difficulties which surround us. God has raised up that Church of which I am an unworthy member to do a great work in these generations, and by God's blessing we are determined to do what we can to accomplish the work committed to us. My Lord Mayor, we have all to thank you for a most remarkable assemblage this day. (Hear, hear.) It is common to drink prosperity to the army and navy which defend us. It is common to recognize in this great City the importance of commercial industry and exertion. It is not so common to remember that far better than the defence of the armies or navies, far better than the influence of commerce, is the influence of that Gospel which the missionaries who are gathered around you make it the business of their lives to extend. (Cheers.) I remember once sitting, I think in this hall, opposite Sir Stratford Canning, and he said that, often as he had heard the army and navy given as a toast in these assemblies, he had never heard given the diplomatic service, of which he was so distinguished a member, and which, by its quiet influence had done more, perhaps, for the good of the world than either the army or the navy. If that could be said of the diplomatic service, surely it might be said more truly of the missionary work which has gathered us together to-night. (Cheers.) Under your lordship's guidance we are all anxious to advance this missionary work. (Hear, hear.) But when I heard the number of missionary societies read out by the toastmaster, I was almost alarmed, for I could not help thinking that some of those who are not very well disposed to us might say, "It is all very well for the Lord Mayor to gather all these together, but they are sure to quarrel. (Laughter.) I do not know, my Lord Mayor, that anything can be more instructive than the fact that we can gather thus peaceably together. (Hear.) I should like to know why it is that we are all thus peaceably gathered together here instead of wrangling one with the other. I remember Dean Ramsay, an old friend of mine, telling me that he knew of a person who was a member of what was called the Anti-Burghers' Communion. This person went to America, and his first question when he arrived was whether there were any persons there who belonged to the Anti-Burgher denomination. He was received with a little astonishment, because, as the people said, they had not the slightest conception of what an Anti-Burgher was. He explained to them that an Anti-Burgher was a man who could not take the burgher's oath. They said, "Well, my friend, you may be perfectly easy on that score, because there is no burgher's oath in this country to take." "That, said he, "has nothing to do with it. What I want to know is whether there are any persons who would not take the burgher's oath if there were one to take. (Laughter.) Unless there are such men I can have nothing to say to them." (Laughter.) Now, thank God, that is not the spirit in which we are able to assemble here to-night. There are various reasons why we have nothing of that spirit. One great reason is this, that when men are brought into connexion with heathenism, they feel that there is a gulf between heathenism and Christianity before which the distinctions of the various Christian bodies sink into insignificance. (Cheers.) We, through God, are determined to spread the Gospel of Jesus Christ. I wish we all spread it exactly in the same way; but human nature is human nature, and men will have different opinions; but, perhaps, the best mode by which we can all come to one opinion at last is by each of us resolutely and conscientiously spreading the Gospel of Christ according to the views which we are able to entertain. (Cheers.) There is another reason, perhaps, which, on the present occasion, makes us forget our differences. Amid all the changes of life, and amid all the varieties of opinion, there is a reverence for old age and for old and tried servants of the Lord Jesus Christ, which makes us all feel as brethren in the presence of an old and devoted servant of the Lord. (Cheers.) To do honour to one of these we are brought together here to-night. We have heard much of Africa of late, of the wisdom or unwisdom of the modes by which it was hoped to spread civilization throughout the Continent; but there is one mode of spreading civilization through it to which our venerable friend here has devoted 50 years of his long life (cheers), and that is by marking the whole of the Continent as far as we can by mission stations which shall be centres of light, far better than encampments of our troops, far better even than our commercial stations (hear, hear), and we do trust that as in the old time the north of Africa was famous for some of its Christian churches, so the centre and the south of Africa also in the times which are before us may be known as having received the civilization of the Gospel through the labours of him to whom we are brought together to do honour to-night. (Loud cheers.)

The LORD MAYOR next proposed "The Clergy and Ministers of all Denomination," observing that there were present representatives of all the Churches, and that probably there existed much diversity of opinion on various subjects. They all, however, acknowledged one common Lord and Master, and that night they were gathered round one great cause, their common Christianity, and while they were "distinct as the billows, they were one like the sea."

The toast was acknowledged by the Rev. Canon Farrar, the Rev. E. Jenkins (President of the Wesleyan Conference) and the Rev. A. Allon (Chairman of the Congregational Union).

In proposing next the toast of the evening, "The Health of Dr. Moffat,"

The LORD MAYOR said,—Dr. Moffat's very name recalled memories both near and remote. To have been nearly 60 years identified with missions, more than half a century actually in the mission field, was a fact in itself absolutely unique in the history of Christian missions. There were many old people now living who remembered when, as children, they were first interested in the missionary cause by stories of the great and good work which Dr. Moffat was doing in Southern Africa. It was about 1817 that Dr. Moffat first visited that country, and it was not a little remarkable that about the same time John Williams, the Martyr of Eromanga, left for the South Seas. The labours of those devoted men, their toils and triumphs read more like a romance than real history. Dr. Moffat's labours among the Bechuanas and their direct influence over many thousands of degraded Africans were most beneficial. The mission-station of Kuruman became a centre of Christian light and civilization in a region previously given over to the grosser superstitions and cruelties of heathendom. Dr. Moffat and his companions had no easy task before them. They were completely cut off from the civilized world, and probably at one time Daniel in the lion's den was not confronted by greater dangers. What, under the Divine blessing, was the secret of their success? Doubtless, animated by the true missionary spirit, Dr. Moffat could say with the Apostle Paul, "None of these things move me, neither count I my life dear to me, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry that I have received of the Lord Jesus to testify the Gospel of the Grace of God." Like the same apostle he had also a true love for the people among whom he laboured, patient in suffering, steadfast in well doing, content to sow the seed in confidence that he would one day reap the harvest. Of him it might be truly said—

"Thou didst not disdain to teach
"To savage hordes celestial truth,
"To infant tongues thy mother's speech
"Ennobling arts to youth,
"Till warriors flung their arms aside,
"O'er bloodless fields the plough to guide."

One of Dr. Moffat's greatest achievements was his translating the Holy Scriptures into the Bechuana language; and the world also owed a debt of gratitude to Dr. Moffat for inducing Dr. Livingstone to turn his steps towards Africa. It was to Kuruman, Dr. Moffat's station, that Livingstone was led his way when he arrived in Africa. It was Dr. Moffat's daughter that he married. The names of Moffat and Livingstone would remain inseparable in their triumphs of Christianity and its results of civilization in Africa.

The toast was cordially drunk, and

Dr. MOFFAT, in responding, sketched his remarkable African career among the Namaquas and Bechuanas, the influence he attained by long perseverance under difficulties, his meeting with Livingstone, whom he induced also to select Africa as the field of his labours, and the gratitude he felt at the prospect which now existed of the rapid evangelization of that great continent.

The LORD MAYOR, in giving "The Great Missionary Societies," said that it was no uncommon thing to hear complaints of the slow progress of Christian missions, but if they contrasted the state of the world now with what it was when Dr. Moffat went into the mission field, that objection would not apply. Was it nothing that the Church had been aroused to her duty, that thousands of missionaries were in the field where once there were not hundreds, and that in nearly 300 languages the Word of God was read and preached? On that subject he durst not enlarge, but there never was a period in the history of the Church in which it had made greater progress than during the last 50 years, and he would ask what would the founders of the great missionary societies say but "This is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes?"

The toast was responded to by BISHOP CLAUGHTON, CANON HOARE, and the REV. WORDELAR THOMPSON.

Afterwards the EARL of SHAFTESBURY, who was loudly cheered, said,—It is a very proper custom on occasions like this to propose the health of the Lord Mayor, but we are constrained to do so to-night by something more than custom, and to drink the toast, moreover, with unwonted enthusiasm. Our worthy Chief Magistrate of the City of London has to-night devoted his splendid liberality to showing affection and respect to the grand old patriarch who is sitting on his right hand (cheers); that grand old man, who, by his labours and his writings, has guided and instructed younger missionaries, and taught them how to advance the kingdom of Christ among the heathen. My Lord Mayor has made this interesting occasion one also for doing honour to that large body of Christian missionaries who, with simple hearts and true piety, leave behind the charms of social and domestic life to endure privations and sorrow, and expose themselves to every harm and danger with the sole object of advancing the temporal and eternal welfare of all mankind. (Cheers.) They are a people who, indeed, deserve to be honoured, and I am sure, my Lord Mayor, for the course you have taken you will find in your own feelings a rich reward. I beg now that we should drink the health of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, and wish them every blessing in time to come. (Cheers.)

The toast was briefly acknowledged by the LORD MAYOR, and the company separated.

SMALLPOX HOSPITALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES.

Sir,—The answer to Mr. Grant's letter is a simple one and obvious. The asylum managers are not a Board of Health at all, but are the managers for the various local health authorities (with certain modifications and under supposed agreements) of the metropolis, and they are further subjected by the law to the direction and put under the distinct authority of a department of the Government of the day. They, under the direction of this department, provide asylums and manage them for certain specified classes of disease, formerly under the charge of "guardians of the poor," whom the Legislature deemed either inadequate to provide for these classes or not in such a manner as to satisfy the country. If we attempted to direct officers in command of ambulances to refrain from using what they deemed their common right of entering publichouses on their road and supplied them with refreshment and rest within our grounds, which we did and do, and if we asked the police to warn these officers if they saw them enter publichouses near our hospitals (especially the one in which Mr. Grant feels an interest, which seems to be repudiated by the chief promoter of a late action), our authority was rejected, the police were threatened, and the local authority of health or board of guardians supported their officer, and put our assumption of health authority down with a high hand. We learnt from the offending party that he had written to Scotland-yard calling attention to the caution he had received from the police. As to the account we can give of our hospitals, a few words will show a very different face to that conveyed in Mr. Grant's letter. After our first epidemic, in 1871-72, at the commencement of which we had no hospital built, and were therefore almost unprepared for the dealing with the disease, and the outbreak was more fatal than we had any previous proof of, we come to the 1st of January, 1876. There was hardly a case of smallpox and certainly not one in our hospitals. Homerton, Stockwell, and Hampstead we shut up. On March 10, 1876, there were eight cases in Stockwell, and still none at Homerton. From that period at Clapton a case of smallpox arose of mild type. It was put into a perfectly clean and purified ward and a nurse allotted. Then at St. Pancras and St. Saviour's, close to the river, cases arose; at Bethnal-green and Mile-end Old Town the cases soon multiplied. These cases had no reference to our hospitals.

In truth, epidemic disease has no geometrical ratio of travelling. The intervals between infected localities, whether hospitals or patches of houses, are very slowly and very sparsely attacked, and, looking at the maps before me, long intervals appear utterly untouched. The causes are to be found in other conditions, which are far nearer the food, soap and water, and moderate care in drainage and water supply, and the careless sale and purchase of second-hand clothes, than hospitals whether local or general.

But about the supposed ill-effect of hospitals. Hampstead, in 1871-72, had in hospital 174, of whom 48 died. She treated at home or in local hospitals 115 apparently very mild cases that were not severe enough for hospitals, and of these seven died. Her neighbour, out of which parish—St. Pancras—she was carved, had in hospital 1,538, of whom 302 died. She is estimated to have treated at home or in private establishments, but chiefly at their houses, 2,725, of whom 508 died. In Hampstead the deaths per 1,000 inhabitants are 1·7. In St. Pancras the deaths are 3·6. Long before we could obtain an increase of accommodation, even in Hampstead, a large number of deaths are recorded. Take now our second epidemic, 1877-78, which for severity exceeded any known by experienced medical hygienists, the black pox having reappeared in England in a form and degree unknown in our generation. Hampstead, in hospital, 98; deaths, 20; at home, 63; deaths, nine. St. Pancras.—In hospital, 664; deaths, 135; at home, 541; deaths, 82. In Hampstead, without the estimated increase of population, which would materially lessen the estimate, the deaths per 1,000 of population are 0·9, and in St. Pancras 0·9 also.

When you see the results, and bear in mind the increase of population and the intense severity of the attack, and when you will see that other localities where our hospitals operate in every instance show similar results, I say, with the late eminent and respected medical officer of Hampstead, that our hospitals have done no hurt to the metropolis or the localities in which they are placed, and to cause the death of more men than fell in the battle of Waterloo to carry out the new cry of Salus proprii suprema lex, in contempt of the old law Salus populi suprema lex, is not and will not come to good.

Your obedient servant,
W. BREWER.

M. PIERRE LAFFITTE'S LECTURES.—On Wednesday, at Newton-hall, Fetter-lane, the new room of the Positivist Society, M. Laffitte gave the first of his course of lectures, in French, on The Rise of a systematic Science of Society in the 18th Century." These lectures are a condensation of the course which M. Laffitte has given at the Salle Gerson in Paris, provided him for the purpose by the French Government. The lecture of last Wednesday was listened to by a full and attentive audience. The lecturer described the great school of thinkers which in the last century formed the link between the absolute system of the world as it was conceived by Descartes and the world as seen from the point of view of man, which was the leading idea of Auguste Comte. The great school of the 18th century, which included Montesquieu, Turgot, Hume, Adam and Smith, Condorcet, was a constructive school, European in its spirit, logically consistent. There was another school in the 18th century which had made far more noise in the world, and had left very small results behind it—the school of Voltaire and Rousseau. Voltaire was a vigorous poet and popularizer of other men's thoughts, and Rousseau an eloquent moralist; but both, from the social side of thought, were negative and barren, merely French in their aims, and a mass of inconsistencies. The great school of which he had to speak was divided into and those who laid the foundations of social science and those who laid the foundations of moral science; the first lecture would be concerned with the fathers of social science. Unquestionably the earliest great name in this was that of Montesquieu. To him we owe the conception of law in things social. The magnificent sentence which opens the "Spirit of Law" is one of the most pregnant aphorisms in the whole history of philosophy. And as Montesquieu had extended to society the notion of law which Descartes and Newton had traced in the physical world, so Turgot and Condorcet extended to the history of man that idea of evolution and of an ordered succession of phenomena which Pascal, Leibnitz, and Fontenelle had already traced in the course of material phenomena. It had been one of the triumphs of philosophy when it showed the world we live in to be a world of orderly movement, one of intelligible progress, and hence one where the course of nature can be foreseen. Turgot saw that this grand idea was equally true of human affairs, he found intelligible progress there too, and this progress was not only intelligible, but it was constant, and with no final bounds. A new era began when human life was felt to be a continual effort towards a higher state. It was Condorcet who completed this conception, by first extending in a systematic way the idea of prevision to the course of human society. Society, he saw, was not only generally advancing, but we could show within broad limits in what way it was advancing. The great engine of social science was found, the conviction of a grander future. When Condorcet, by the advice of his noble wife, sat down under the shadow of the guillotine, and, forgetting his enemies and murderers, devoted the last hours of his life to his immortal essay on the progress of the human spirit, his end was worthy of the truest martyrs and saints in history. While the great French thinkers were working out the idea of progress in human society, the great English thinkers were occupied with the equally important work of analyzing the permanent elements of society. Foremost among these stand Hume and Adam Smith. Hume, one of the greatest intellects of that or any age, laid the basis of a complete scientific analysis of society; Adam Smith extended this method by his consummate review of the economic conditions. The physiocrats are interesting as showing the tendency of the age towards a real economic science; it was the fortune of Adam Smith, not only to have conceived it, but to have developed it. But social science, said the lecturer in conclusion, would be a very poor thing if it could not be applied to facts, and issue in a real political art. Imperfect as all our attempts still are, it is clear that social science can give guidance to real statesmen. Could there be any stronger proof than was given by Turgot himself when Minister of Louis XVI.? Turgot was one of the rare men who have been at once philosophers and statesmen. His scheme of reform would have saved France, would have averted the Revolution. It was based on a real knowledge of social laws, and was full of true prevision. The proof is that every one of the reforms insisted on by this great man has been actually carried out, 100 years after his death—alas! after an awful period of anarchy and bloodshed. M. Laffitte's second lecture, on "The Fathers of Moral Science in the 18th Century," will be given on Wednesday next, at the time and place advertised.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT, May 7.

(Before the RECORDER.)

Charles Leeson, otherwise Powell, was indicted for that, he having been sentenced to a term of 15 years' penal servitude, was afterwards found feloniously at large in England, without lawful excuse before the expiration of that term. The prisoner pleaded "Not guilty."

Mr. Poland and Mr. Montagu Williams conducted the prosecution for the Treasury; Mr. Besley was counsel for the defence.

This case was an important one, an interesting question of identity being raised. In the year 1866, a man named Charles Leeson was arrested with several others for breaking and entering a warehouse in Manchester. Superintendent Thompson, then one of the inspectors of the detective department of Scotland-yard, effected the arrest, and having at length been taken before Sir Thomas Henry, at Bow-street, they were removed to Manchester. On the 3d of December, 1866, they were placed upon their trial at the assizes before Mr. Justice Blackburn and Mr. Justice Montagu Smith, and, being convicted, Leeson, who admitted previous convictions, having in 1858 received a sentence of seven years' penal servitude in the name of Charles Kelly, and in 1854 two years' imprisonment in the name of Charles Gleeson, was sentenced to 15 years' penal servitude. A quantity of stolen property was given up, and after being sent to Millbank till September, 1867, Leeson, with other convicts, was transported to Australia, whence in 1869 he succeeded in effecting his escape. The defendant has been for some months past living at Camberwell, in the name of Charles Leeson Powell. On the 7th of April last the police arrested him for being at large while under a sentence of transportation, it being alleged that he was none other than the convict Leeson. The defendant inquired of the police officer as to what name it was, and the reply was Leeson. The defendant remarked, "A convict; that's nice—very nice." And subsequently he observed, "This is a mistake, and a very unpleasant one for me." And he added that it was no use asking who instigated the arrest. He was conveyed in a cab to the police-station, where he was identified by several officers. Upon one of his arms were tattooed several initials and devices, there being an urn, a cross with the letters "C. G." above it, and I.H.S. beneath it, and also the initials "M. M." The letters "C. G." were alleged to stand for Charles Gleeson, and the "M. M." to represent the Christian name of his wife. At the police-station the defendant declined to make any statement; and afterwards his house at Camberwell was searched and some papers were taken possession of by the police.

Superintendent Thompson was called and spoke to arresting the man Leeson in 1866. He was tried on the 3d of December, 1866, before Mr. Justice (now Lord) Blackburn, and Mr. Justice (now Right Hon. Sir) Montagu Smith, the Judges of Assize at Manchester, and sentenced to 15 years' penal servitude, pleading guilty to previous convictions in the names of Charles Kelly and Charles Gleeson, when he was sentenced to two years' imprisonment. Witness recognized the defendant as the man Leeson.

In cross-examination by Mr. BESLEY, the witness admitted that he had said at the police-court that the defendant was the man to the best of his belief; and that at the police station he had a strong impression that he was the man; but would be unwilling positively to swear to his identity. The majority of the persons taken to Newgate to identify him had failed to do so. He could not recollect an instance where the police had been placed on the track of a convict so many years after the date of conviction. He did not know whether there was a reward of £20 payable for the arrest of an escaped convict, neither could he tell whether or not the police had acted illegally in searching the defendant's house without a warrant.

John Hook, a principal warder at Millbank, deposed that he knew the defendant as Charles Leeson, who was on the 26th of December, 1866, received at that prison. He left on the 30th of September, 1867, for Australia. Witness was at that time master cooper in the artisans' ward, where Leeson worked. Though he had seen him at work with his shirt sleeves rolled up, witness in cross-examination by Mr. BESLEY, admitted that he had never seen any marks upon his arms.

Benjamin Bryce, another principal warder at Millbank, gave similar evidence.

Frederick Leggans, who in 1867 was a warder at the Freemantle Convict Prison, Western Australia, also spoke to the identity of the defendant.

Similar evidence having been given by another prison officer,

Inspector O'Callaghan spoke to being at the police-station when the defendant was brought in. Witness said that he understood he denied being the man, upon which the defendant said, "I say nothing. I do not know who you take me for, or what the charge is." Witness told him they said that he was Charles Powell, who was convicted in Belgium in February, 1878, and liberated from there some months ago; and the charge against him was that he was at large while under an unexpired sentence of transportation. The defendant replied that they had told him that already; but it was very vague. Witness then said that they believed that, as Charles Leeson, he was convicted at Manchester of a stamp robbery in 1866 and sentenced to 15 years' transportation; and that he escaped from Western Australia in 1869. The defendant said, "I have heard what you say; I say nothing," and when asked for his name, age, and address he declined to make any statement. Witness afterwards proceeded to the defendant's house and found there a safe, which, at his request, was opened by the defendant's wife, and certain documents were taken possession of. A question was raised as to the admissibility of these papers, Mr. Besley contending that the police had overstepped the bounds of their duty in searching the house without a warrant, and eventually the objection was held good.

Mr. BESLEY then, at the close of the case for the prosecution, took certain technical objections to the indictment.

The RECORDER, having heard Mr. Poland, declined to withdraw the case. The difficulty was whether the onus of proof did not lie upon the prosecution. Here was a man who 14 years ago was convicted at Manchester, and some months ago he was found at large. The prosecution rested upon the barest possible case by putting in the conviction and evidence of his identity. The man might say, as hundreds of other have said, that he was lawfully at large. The granting of a ticket-of-leave or not might easily be proved by the prosecution, as it was within the knowledge of the Government. He was strongly of opinion that the prosecution should prove the case, and not a bare prima facie case. Very strong proof was required in this case, and there was no evidence of the escape in 1869.

MR. POLAND then summed up the case, contending that the identity of the defendant with Leeson was satisfactorily proved.

MR. BESLEY addressed an able speech to the jury in defence. The police authorities could not be charged with any want of zeal in the matter. If they had been trying the case in 1870 it would have been a very different matter, because then every one's recollection would be fresh. The very strongest proof was required, and he submitted that it was for the prosecution to prove that he had no lawful excuse in being at large. If the defendant were to show lawful excuse it would be abandoning the question of identity. This was not 1870, but 1881; and what ground there could be for the proceedings with the exception of praise of the police, or the £20 blood money, he could not see. There were, he impressed upon the jury, numbers of other persons who saw Leeson when the prosecution could have called without the pale of the police and prison officials. They had produced no description or any witness to speak to the identity except the police and gaolers. There were the guard of the ship which conveyed Leeson with the other convicts to Australia. There was no evidence of any peculiarities or marks upon the Manchester convict, and he called to the recollection of the jury the evidence of the warder Hook, who had seen no marks upon Leeson's arm, and the defendant was not identified by anything with him. A fact like that must infuse a doubt into the minds of the jury, and any doubt he was sure they would give effect to in the accused's favour. The case merely rested on the recollection of persons after such a long interval of 13 or 14 years. He contended that this was not sufficiently strong proof, because the recollection must necessarily become weakened after so long a lapse of time. He impressed upon them the great number of mistakes as to identity which had been made in this country. There was no spontaneous or independent evidence of identity outside the area of warders, prison and police officers, and there was no cohesion about it. It was not for the defendant to prove his innocence; it was the duty of the prosecution to establish his guilt. In not answering questions the defendant had acted with prudence and care, and looking at the fact that there were no reasons given for the evidence of identity, but it simply rested upon the recollection of persons after the lapse of a considerable number of years, which interval might very well have the effect of impairing the remembrance, he urged that the proof was not sufficiently strong or the case so satisfactorily made out as to warrant the jury in finding the defendant guilty of so serious a crime as that laid to his charge.

The RECORDER then summed up, and the jury, after a short consultation, returned a verdict of Not Guilty, and the defendant was discharged. The decision was received with some applause.

Thomas Peal and Maria Josephine Peal were tried and Convicted of obtaining money by false pretences.

Mr. J. P. Grain and Mr. Horace Avory were counsel for the prosecution.

This was one of the ordinary cases of obtaining money by means of fictitious cheques drawn on banks, either where there was no account kept, or where the accounts had long been closed. The prisoners jointly succeeded in defrauding by these means Mr. Walter Joyce, the landlord of the Adelphi Stores tavern, in the Strand, and others, and had entirely ruined a lady named Howell, in whose house they took lodgings.

Mr. GRAIN stated that the prisoners were most dangerous persons, and for years past they had been going about defrauding people. They were unable to recommend any mercy to be shown to the woman, because, if possible, she was worse than the man. The male prisoner's real name was Goldsmith, and he had deserted his wife and children, leaving them upon the parish.

The RECORDER sentenced them to five years' penal servitude.

(Before the COMMON SERJEANT.)

James Meekings, 37, warehouseman, and Albert John Coker, 21, stationer, were indicted for stealing 110 reams of paper, the property of Messrs. Chadwick.

Mr. Smythies prosecuted; Mr. Geoghegan defended Coker.

The prisoner Meekings was in the employ of the prosecutors, whose premises were in Lower Thames-street, and it appeared that in April last information reached the police of the removal early in the morning of a quantity of paper from those premises. When taxed with allowing the paper to be removed, Meekings at first denied it, but afterwards admitted that he had been induced by a man named Jenkins to let him have the paper. When the premises of Coker were searched a quantity of paper was discovered there, which was identified by the prosecutors. Coker, however, produced a receipt for the money paid for the paper, but it turned out to be in his own handwriting.

The jury Acquitted Coker.

The COMMON SERJEANT sentenced Meekings to 15 months' hard labour.

Albert Knight, 26, dealer, was indicted for obtaining goods by false pretences.

Mr. Greenfield prosecuted.

It appeared that the prisoner had obtained a bag from Mr. Fisher, in the Strand, and a similar article from Messrs. Mappins and Co., King William-street. In each case he gave cheques upon the Brighton branch of the London and County Bank, where, in the name of Gordon and Lintopp, the prisoner and another man had once had an account.

The cheques were returned marked "no account."

The prisoner was found Guilty, and sentenced to five years' penal servitude, two previous convictions being proved against him.

POLICE.

At MARYLEBONE, on Saturday, GEORGE MEAD, 32, labourer, of 20, St. George's-road, Notting-hill, was charged before Mr. Cooke with being concerned with another man in burglariously breaking and entering No. 1, Palace-houses, Paddington, in the occupation of Mr. John Mathison Fraser, and stealing therein two gold watches, one gold and diamond collar, five jewelled rings, one gold and diamond bracelet, a pair of diamond earrings, a gold and diamond brooch, a sealskin jacket, and other things, value £500, and JOHN STONE, 45, and HONOR STONE, 44, of 153, Whitecross-street, St. Luke's, were charged with receiving the above articles well knowing them to have been stolen. Charles Spiers, footman in the service of the prosecutor, stated that on the night of the burglary at about 11 30 he saw all the house secure. Next morning at 6 30 he found the door leading from the billiard-room open, a writing-case in the morning room was broken open, and the pantry window had been forced. He had not heard any noise in the night. He slept next to the pantry. The butler also slept on the same floor. Caroline Berbeke, companion and housekeeper to Mrs. Fraser, said that on Wednesday morning the housemaid came to her and told her about the matter. She went downstairs, and saw some candle ends and matches on the landing. In the dressing room several drawers were in disorder, and some rings, watches, and a sealskin jacket were missing. The jacket was found in the garden of No. 3, Bayswater-road. Daniel Morgan, X Division, stated that with Sergeant Smith he arrested Mead, his wife, brother, and brother's wife, and charged them with the burglary. When at the police-station Mead said, "My brother was not there, and he knew nothing at all about it, nor do either of the women. I did it with Jim Head. They got," he added, "£52 for the property. They got in in front, and went out at the back over the wall. They had no information whatever as to the house from the servants." Mead afterwards said the male prisoner Stone was the man who bought the jewellery. Mr. Cooke remanded the prisoners.

At WESTMINSTER, ESTHER MARTIN, a well-dressed woman, living in the Lamont-road, Chelsea, was charged before Mr. D'Eyncourt with taking a quantity of laudanum for the purpose of committing suicide. The evidence showed that the prisoner was well connected, but led a fast life. She had formed the acquaintance of a young man named Hodges, the son of a publican at Peckham, and in consequence of some disagreement with him she purchased four pennyworth of laudanum, part at Hudson's, 192, Fulham-road, and the other at Bartlett's, Brittenterrace, Fulham-road, and took it on Monday last. A fellow-lodger, named Minnie Street, finding the prisoner in a comatose state, at once sent for the police, and the prisoner was taken to the station. Dr. Haines, the divisional surgeon, pronounced the case a bad one, and the prisoner was removed to the Chelsea Infirmary, where she showed not only symptoms of poisoning, but also suffered from delirium tremens. Under the care of Dr. Nethercliff, however, she rapidly came round. The prisoner said she was deeply sorry, and now that she had come to her senses she had resolved to lead a better life in future. Mr. D'Eyncourt remanded her, so that she should receive the religious advice of the Chaplain at the House of Detention; at the same time he directed the sergeant who had charge of the case to inquire how the prisoner obtained the laudanum from the shops mentioned.

At WORSHIP-STREET, MARGARET COKELY, wife of a police-constable of the K Division, appeared to a summons which charged her with having thrown a quantity of vitriol upon Lydia Parker. The prosecutrix, the wife of a cooper, living in Fairlock-place, Bethnal-green, said that at about 9 o'clock in the evening on the 20th of April the defendant called at her place and accused her of harbouring her husband. Witness's husband said he would have the matter inquired into, and they would go and see Mr. Cokely. Witness afterwards accompanied her husband to Huntsleet-street, where defendant lived, and knocked at the door. The defendant opened the door, and, seeing witness, immediately ran back to her room. When she re-appeared she had in her hand a white pot, from which she threw something over witness. Some of the stuff fell on her hands and some on her dress and clothes. Her hands burnt terribly, and she at first thought it was boiling water; but her dress and jacket all went into holes, and witness knew it was vitriol. The defendant examined the complainant, who, in reply, said that the defendant had since Christmas last repeatedly accused witness of harbouring her husband. It was not true that he had stayed all night with witness. He had been to see witness's husband as a friend. Her hands still bore the marks of the burns. After hearing further evidence, Mr. Bushby fully committed the defendant for trial at the Central Criminal Court, accepting her husband's bail in £20 for her appearance.

At SOUTHWARK, CHARLES HENRY DAVIS, alias TROMP, 29, described as a merchant, 15, Eglinton-road, Bow, and CHARLES FEURSTMAN, 45, commission agent, address refused, were placed before Mr. Bridge, on remand, charged with uttering a forged cheque on the Commercial Union Bank for £4 19s. to Messrs. M'Taggart and Co., Denman-street, London-bridge, with intent to defraud them of 3cwt. of coffee. They were also charged with uttering a number of other forged or fictitious cheques to various persons in different parts of the metropolis. Mr. St. John Wontner prosecuted on behalf of the Treasury, and Mr. Bordman defended the prisoner. On the last occasion it was shown that the prisoner Davis ordered 3cwt. of coffee of Messrs. M'Taggart and Co., and on the following morning sent Furstman with a cheque for the value (£4 19s.) on the Commercial Union Bank, signed C. H. Davis, and some time afterwards they sent a cart for the delivery of the coffee. Messrs. M'Taggart had, however, sent the cheque to the bank and discovered that it was a forgery, and with the view of capturing the prisoners they delivered the coffee to the carman. The police having been communicated with, Arthur Cox, a detective of the M Divison, followed the cart. After proceeding to Bow, Whitechapel, and the Curtain-road, Shoreditch, the carman stopped at a publichouse in the latter road. Here the prisoners got into the cart and were about to drive off, when Cox and Sergeant Stevens arrested them. The secretary of the Commercial Union Bank attended and stated in evidence that no person of the name of C. H. Davis ever had an account at their bank, and that the cheque in question was one of a book delivered last year to Mr. Boddington, a merchant, of St. Benets-place, and that for some time a number of fictitious cheques from that book had been presented in the same handwriting and detained by the bank. Mr. William Charles Boddington, merchant, 8, St. Benets-place, Gracechurch-street, said he knew the prisoner Davis as calling at his office and pretending to be a traveller for some house. He never transacted any business with him, but after one of his visits he missed a black bag which contained his cheque-book and some papers. The cheque produced by Messrs. M'Taggart was one of the cheques out of their book. He never authorized Davis or anyone else to use those cheques. James Leckie, agent to whisky merchants, 13, Union-court, Old Broad-street, said that on the 23d of December last Davis called on him and said he was manager to Messrs. Noble and Co., rag merchants, and that they wanted several cases of whisky as presents to their customers, and asked for a list of prices. He gave him their list, and he went away. He returned the same day, and said he had made it all right, and ordered seven cases of a dozen each and asked for an invoice. He gave him one, and on the following morning Davis called and gave him a cheque for the amount drawn on the Commercial Union Bank by C. H. Davis, and told him a carman would call for the whisky. Having some suspicion, he sent to the bank and found the cheque to be a forgery. When the carman called for the whisky some cases were made up and delivered to him, and the police followed him to Wormwood-street where he was to meet the prisoners, but as they did not make their appearance the carman returned. Several other cases of a similar nature were gone into, but, as Mr. Wontner was unable to complete the charges, Mr. Bridge further remanded them. Mr. Bordman asked that bail might be accepted, but it was refused, and the prisoners were remitted to Clerkenwell Prison.

JAMES LAVIS, alias LEWIS, was placed at the bar for final examination charged with causing the death of Lydia Carne, 22, by beating her, kicking her, and knocking her downstairs, at 101, Mint-street, on Saturday night, the 16th ult. The prisoner and the deceased had lived together about 10 weeks at 101, Mint-street, and frequently quarrelled. On the night in question they were heard to have an altercation together, and heavy blows and falls were likewise heard by the lodgers underneath. A few days afterwards the deceased was unable to leave her bed. Mr. Matcham, the parish surgeon, was called, but she died on the following day. By direction of the coroner, Mr. Brown Arthur Reevil, surgeon, made a post mortem examination of the body, and his opinion was that death was caused by violence. When Mr. Bridge asked what was the verdict of the jury, Inspector Delahay replied that the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter against the prisoner. The latter being cautioned in the usual way, denied having kicked the deceased or knocked her down stairs. Mr. Bridge fully committed him for trial at the next Old Bailey sessions.

At LAMBETH, RICHARD BATES, 16, was charged before Mr. Ellison with causing the death of Charles Sworn, aged three and a half years, by driving a van and horse over him. Inspector Hewlett, of the London and South-Western Railway Company, in whose service the prisoner was, attended to watch the case. Frederick William Randall said he was in the Lambeth-road on Friday afternoon, when he saw the defendant driving a pair-horse railway van. The horses were going very slowly. He noticed some children playing about and the deceased seated on the kerb as the van passed. Directly afterwards he saw the child lying in the roadway, the van having passed over its shoulder and head. The defendant was on the driving-box and held the reins. William Dare said he was passing at the time. The child seemed to start up suddenly, miss its footing, and fall just in front of the hind wheel of the van, which was some three or four feet from the kerb where the child was seated. When the child was picked up it was believed to be quite dead. At the hospital life was pronounced to be extinct. The prisoner, who said it was a pure accident, was remanded, but admitted to bail.

At WANDSWORTH, WILLIAM JACKSON, a general dealer, of 17, Dickenson-street, Battersea, was brought up for re-examination on a charge of shooting Alfred Laishley, with intent to murder him. Inspector Easter informed the magistrate that the wounded man was still in the hospital, but was progressing satisfactorily. The bullet had not been extracted from his arm. George Skinner, a labourer, was called, and said he was walking along the middle of the road, when the prisoner presented a pistol in his face and threatened to put a ball through his head if he was not off. Witness had never seen him before. The prisoner threatened three times to put a ball through his head. Witness said, "You don't mean that, do you?" and walked off. The prisoner followed him for about 50 yards. Witness went into the Wandsworth-road to look for a constable, and the prisoner turned round by the Shaftesbury Hotel. Witness heard two shots, and when he returned found the man had been wounded. Eda Jackson, the wife of a police inspector, said the prisoner was her brother-in-law, and lived in the same house. She had been out shopping on the night of the 29th of April, and was told on returning that the prisoner was inside raving mad. She found

HILLER'S ALL THEY that TRUST in THEE, the Old Hundredth Psalm, and Handel's Hallelujah Chorus will be included in the SERVICE at St. Paul's Cathedral on the CELEBRATION of the 227th FESTIVAL of the SONS of the CLERGY on Wednesday afternoon, May 18. The choir will comprise 250 voices, and will be accompanied by the organ and a full orchestra. A New Service (in E flat) by Barnby, will be introduced. Arthur Sullivan's In Memoriam will precede the service. Dr. Stainer, M.A., will conduct.

THE POOR CLERGY RELIEF CORPORATION, Established 1856. Incorporated by Royal Charter 1867. For the immediate Relief of the Clergy, their Widows, and Orphans, in times of sickness, bereavement, or other temporary distress.
PATRONS.
The Lord Archbishop of Canterbury.
The Lord Archbishop of York.
President—The LORD BISHOP of LONDON.
Professional Auditors—Messrs. J. Waddell and Co., Mansion-house-chambers, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.
The Committee earnestly APPEAL for HELP to meet the urgently-pressing demands made on them by the poorer clergy and their bereaved families in sickness and sorrow. The appeals for help were never so numerous as at present, owing to the inability of farmers to pay the rent of glebe lands and the greatly reduced value of glebe farms. In many cases where small livings are endowed with glebe the change in the value of land has produced a sudden and almost ruinous loss. Many who in former years have assisted the Corporation have this year been compelled to seek its aid. All cheques should be crossed "London and Westminster Bank, 1, St. James's-square."
J. E. COX, D.D., Chairman.
E. T. PIGOTT, D.C.L., Secretary.
Offices of the Corporation, 36, Southampton-street, Strand, W.C.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION, for the Relief of Decayed Farmers, their Widows and Unmarried Orphan Daughters.
Patron—HER MAJESTY the QUEEN.
President—His Grace the DUKE of RICHMOND and GORDON.
Allowances to Pensioners—Married, £40 per annum; male, £26 per annum; widows and unmarried orphan daughters, £20 per annum.
In which manner 530 pensioners are being maintained, at an annual cost of £11,100.
Every information to be had of the Secretary, 26, Charles-street, St. James's, S.W., by whom subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION, 26, Charles-street, St. James', S.W.—VOTES are earnestly solicited for MARY A. C. FOLLETT, Egham, a confirmed epileptic, and utterly destitute. Her parents farmed for many years in Dorset and Hampshire. Strongly recommended by Rev. W. Trevor Nicholson, Egham; W. Paice, Esq., The Limes, Egham; W. Vivian, Esq., 51, Bow-lane, E.C.; W. T. Drew, Esq., M.D., Egham; J. Young, Esq., Preston, Candover, Hants; W. Bance, Esq., Manor Farm, Thorpe, Chertsey; J. Chaundler, Esq., Crondall, Hants; Owen C. Richards, Esq., Blandford, Dorset; Alfred Pope, Esq., Dorchester, Dorset; Mrs. Sopper, 51, Kennington-oval, S.E.

THE SAILORS' HOME (opened 1835, enlarged 1865). Destitute Sailors' Asylum. Instituted 1827.—The ANNUAL MEETING will be held at the Sailors' Home, Well-street and Dock-street, London Docks, Thursday next, May 12th. The most Noble the MARQUIS of CHOLMONDELEY, the President, will take the chair at 2 o'clock.

SOLDIERS' INSTITUTE, Portsmouth; Sailors' Welcome, Portsea.—These houses, established by Miss Robinson, provide the advantages of a club and home for our men, and a comfortable shelter for women and children embarking or disembarking (180 beds made up), besides being the headquarters of much useful work in the port and garrison, and among soldiers' families, widows, and orphans.
The maintenance of the work depends on voluntary subscriptions, £1,000 per annum being required.
The money for establishing these homes was raised by Miss Robinson's drawing-room meetings and addresses throughout England and Scotland but she is now, through increased spinal complaint, entirely disabled from travelling, while responsible for £6,000 more to complete the work in hand. An APPEAL is therefore made on her behalf, to which it is hoped that many who know the value of her 20 years' work among our soldiers and sailors will gladly respond.
Subscriptions should be paid into the Portsmouth and Portsea Bank (Grant, Gillman, and Long), London agents, Glyn and Co; or may be sent direct to Miss Sarah Robinson, Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth, from whom all information, printed circulars, &c., may be obtained.

DEAF and DUMB ASYLUM, Old Kent-road and Margate, Kent.

PRINCESS LOUISE HOME for the PROTECTION of YOUNG GIRLS.—1,287 friendless young girls sheltered, clothed, educated, and trained for domestic service. 80 now in the Home. The funds are exhausted. The Committee plead earnestly for speedy help. CONTRIBUTIONS may be paid into the Consolidated Bank, Threadneedle-street; at the Home, Woodhouse, Wanstead; or to the Secretary, 26, New Broad-street, London. 45th annual report may be had on application.

DR. BARNARDO'S HOMES for FRIENDLESS and DESTITUTE CHILDREN.
President—The Right Hon. the EARL CAIRNS.
Vice-President—The Right Hon. the LORD KINNAIRD.
Treasurer—Wm. Fowler, Esq., M.P., 33, Cornhill, E.C.
Bankers—London and South-Western Bank (Bow Branch, E.).
The Committee very earnestly APPEAL for HELP to carry on the work of these Institutions, containing over 1,000 homeless or orphan children.
In connexion with the Institutions there are 30 cottage homes for girls at Ilford, a home for little boys in Jersey and three large homes for boys and girls in the East of London, all engaged in training children for useful and industrious lives.
Destitute cases are always eligible, and may be sent to the office at any hour of the day or night. Other cases, not so urgent, are carefully inquired into and decided upon.
Children are admitted irrespective of differences of age, sex, or creed, and in spite of physical disqualifications that frequently lead to their being rejected elsewhere.
No voting is required to obtain admission.
There is no endowment, and the whole work is dependent upon the free will offerings of the benevolent.
About £15 will support one child in the Institution a whole year.
The Homes are always open to visitors except on Saturday afternoon and Sunday.
Office 18 to 25, Stepney-causeway, London, E.

THE THORNCLIFFE RANGE.

MESSRS. NEWTON, CHAMBERS, and Co., Thorncliffe Ironworks, near Sheffield, with a view to the economizing of fuel in COOKING RANGES, have patented an apparatus which they consider the most efficient, simple, and economical ever invented. It consists of a small fire range, open or close at pleasure, having a hot closet on one side, while a hot plate for boiling, &c., extends nearly the full width of the fire-place. Above the hot plate, at about the level of the eye, are two large sheet-iron ovens, which are quickly heated and conveniently placed for the cook to attend to their contents. Behind the hot plate is a wrought-iron boiler. All flues are made to ascend (hence requiring less draught), and, while they cannot get out of order, can be regulated to the utmost nicety, and the commonest coal can be used. Messrs. Newton, Chambers, and Co. recommend the "Thorncliffe Range" with great confidence. In a very short time the coal saved will defray its cost, and, irrespective of this saving, the coolness and comfort of the kitchen should insure its general adoption. Detailed descriptions may be had on application to Messrs. Newton, Chambers, and Co., as above; or at their London Establishment, 1, Holborn Viaduct, E.C., where the range may be seen.

NOTICE.—Telephonic Communication.—For the convenience of their clients, and for the expedition of business, Messrs. STREET have established TELEPHONIC COMMUNICATION between their CITY and WEST-END OFFICES.—30, Cornhill, E.C., and 5, Serle-street, Lincoln's-inn, W.C., April, 1881.

ROWLAND'S KALYDOR is unequalled for its soothing and curative effects on the face, hands, and arms; it effectually eradicates all freckles, redness, inflammation, and cutaneous eruptions so prevalent during spring time, and produces a healthy purity and delicacy of complexion. Gentlemen, after shaving, will find it has a most cooling and soothing effect on the skin.

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL preserves, strengthens, and beautifies the hair, prevents its falling off, and eradicates scurf and dandriff. It is especially suited for the hair of children, and contains no lead or mineral ingredients.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO is the purest and most fragrant dentifrice ever made, and contains no mineral or acid ingredients. Health depends in a great measure upon the soundness of the teeth, and all dentists will allow that neither washes nor pastes can possibly be as efficacious for polishing the teeth and keeping them sound and white as a pure and non-gritty tooth powder. Such Rowlands' Odonto has always proved itself to be. Ask any Chemist, Perfumer, or Hairdresser for Rowlands' articles.

THE LARGEST FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT in ENGLAND.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

THE LONDON SEASON of 1881.—Messrs. JAY import from Paris novelties in material and style for COSTUMES of every description, suited to the exigencies of their special trade, and are prepared to supply ladies with any variety that taste can desire.—Jay's, Regent-street.

JAY'S

FASHIONS, as imported.—Messrs. JAY beg to draw attention to the Fashions as forwarded to them by their Parisian agents and confirmed by themselves. They therefore invite a visit of inspection of the same, and particularly of their recent importations in specimens of made-up SILK COSTUMES from Messrs. Worth and Pingat, of Paris. Millinery from the most celebrated modistes of Paris. Silks from Lyons. Mourning fabrics from Roubaix. Many articles are specialities in themselves, with which, perhaps, no house in London nor elsewhere is so well furnished.—Jay's, Regent-street.

JAY'S FRENCH MILLINERY.

MODISTE FRANCAISE.—Messrs. JAY have a French artiste, who resides in their establishment during the London season, and they are, in consequence, enabled to supply their customers with MILLINERY in every respect equal in style and fashion to the best houses in the French capital.—Jay's, Regent-street.

COSTUME du JOUR.—MM. Worth, Pingat, and other Parisian artistes forward to Messrs. JAY a great variety of elegant SILK COSTUMES, suited to the special business of their establishment. Ladies are therefore respectfully asked to inspect these novelties as the very type of the first fashions of the season.—Jay's, Regent-street.

JAY'S PARIS MANTLES.

PEAU de CHAMOIS BLACK SATIN.—This name has been given by a Lyons manufacturer to a special kind of black satin. It is made from the purest silk, is as elastic as wash-leather, warranted not to crease, and will wear better than any black silk of the present day. Patterns free.—JAY'S, Regent-street.

PEAU de CHAMOIS COSTUMES.—A varied series of Costumes, made from Peau de Chamois Satin, are produced weekly during the season. Price 6½ guineas each, including sufficient satin to make a bodice.—JAY'S, Regent-street.

JAY'S BROCHÉ SILKS.

LAINE ELASTIQUE, a new French Black Material for Costumes.—Messrs. JAY are the sole agents for its sale in this country. Patterns free.—Jay's, Regent-street.

BLACK COSTUMES, 2½ guineas each, with sufficient material for bodice unmade.—JAY'S, Regent-street.

JAY'S CRAPES.

DRESSMAKING.—Messrs. JAY have prepared for the present season a new and most fashionable assortment of BLACK SILK COSTUMES, suitable for ladies who are in mourning or for those who wear black from choice. Bodices are also made up if required in a few hours, either by the couturière Française or an English dressmaker.—Jay's, Regent-street.

BLACK KID GLOVES, Two buttons, 1s. 11d. per pair; four buttons, 2s. 6d. per pair.—Jay's, Regent-street.

JAY'S BLACK SATINS.

EVENING DRESSES, Black Net, Tulle, and Spanish Lace.—Messrs. JAY prepare for the season a variety of BLACK EVENING DRESSES, which they can confidently recommend both for correctness of fashion and economy in price. Designs and prices postage free.—Jay's, Regent-street.

ECONOMY in MOURNING. Only one guinea and a-half the dress.—The numerous testimonials which Messrs. JAY have received of the durability in wear and colour of the JANUS CORD induce them to recommend and offer it as the very best article ever manufactured for mourning at so cheap a price.—Jay's, Regent-st.

JAY'S HOSIERY.

MOURNING.—Messrs JAY'S experienced dress-makers and milliners travel to any part of the Kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take with them dresses and millinery, besides patterns of materials, at 1s. per yard and upwards, all marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at the warehouse in Regent-street. Reasonable estimates are also given for household mourning, at a great saving to large or small families. Funerals at stated charges conducted in London or country.

STAFFORDSHIRE.—The Hints Estate.—For SALE, by Private Treaty, the above most picturesque and valuable FREEHOLD RESIDENTIAL ESTATE, comprising the manor, village, and nearly the whole parish of Hints, with the mansion-house, called Hints-hall, pleasantly situate on the banks of the Bourne, in the midst of well-timbered, undulating, and park-like grounds, together with coach-houses, stabling, &c., also fruit, flower, and kitchen gardens, and comprising an area of 1,576a. 0r. 22p. of excellent pasture, arable, meadow, and wood lands. Hints-hall is a substantial and attractive residence in the Corinthian style of architecture, and comprises spacious entrance-hall, three reception rooms, study, &c.; 17 bed and dressing rooms, five servants' bed rooms, &c.; also magnificent new billiard room. The estate is noted for its partridge shooting, and is situate in the centre of a fine sporting country, within easy reach of the Atherstone, Meynell, and South Staffordshire hounds. There is also good fishing in the Bourne, which runs through the estate. The Tamworth, Lichfield, and Sutton Coldfields Stations on the London and North-Western and Midland Railways are severally distant between three and four miles from the mansion. Plans and particulars may be had on application to Mr. John Coleman, Land Agent and Surveyor, Park-nook, Derby.

STOKE-PARK, in the County of Bucks.—To be SOLD, by Private Treaty, the beautiful RESIDENTIAL ESTATE, known as Stoke-park and Duffield Estate, comprising mansion, deer park, Stoke Manor-house, &c., and the Manor of Stoke Poges. The large and elegant mansion is situate in the centre of the park; it is in the Italian style, was designed by Wyatt, and built regardless of expense. It is now in a perfectly substantial and decorative state of repair, fit for immediate occupation. It is approached by excellent roads, with convenient lodge entrances. The reception rooms are numerous, well arranged, spacious, and lofty. There are large entrance halls, conservatories, and glazed corridors, with convenient and extensive offices suitable for such a residence. The deer park, the most ancient in England, is stocked with fine herds of red and fallow deer. Views of Windsor Castle and Park and St. Leonard's-hill are obtained from the mansion, and many commanding positions in the pleasure grounds. The estate is ornamented with splendid timber and plantations, the whole comprising about 615 acres of rich grass and arable land. The lawns and pleasure grounds are extensive, are laid out with great taste, and planted with choice trees and evergreen shrubs of great variety, and are studded with ancient forest trees of large size and beauty. The kitchen gardens are in a high state of cultivation, with an abundance of vineries and other glass houses. There are also convenient farm premises, adapted for a home farm. The whole property is in perfect condition. Stoke Manor-house, in which Queen Elizabeth at one time resided, stands in the park, and is a remarkable feature. The house is in excellent preservation, and first-rate repair, and is furnished. Stoke Poges Church and the fine monuments to the poet Gray and Judge Coke are conspicuous objects in the park. The mansion is within 1½ mile of Slough Station, on the Great Western Railway, by which line London is reached in about half an hour. Her Majesty's staghounds, the Old Berkeley and Mr. Garth's foxhounds, and Sir R. Harvey's harriers hunt in the district. The estate is in the neighbourhood of many large and important country houses. Portions of the outlying land might be sold or let for building purposes without detriment to the mansion and deer park. For particulars and cards to view apply to Messrs. Clutton, 9, Whitehall-place, Westminster, S.W.

EPPS'S COCOA.

GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.

BREAKFAST.

EPPS'S COCOA.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by the careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage, which may save us many heavy doctors bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

THE SKIN.—The glory of woman, the pride of man. It contains the delicate lines of beauty and constitutes all that we term loveliness, yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, carbolic, coal tar, glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. The ALBION MILK and SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The ALBION SANATORY SOAP COMPANY, 532, Oxford-street, London.

SHAVING with ease and comfort.—Gentlemen who shave will find GLISSADERMOS a luxury. Ashford, Middlesex.—Valuable Freehold, semi-detached Villas, for occupation and investment, and about two and three-quarter acres of Building Land.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, on Wednesday, 25th May, at 2 o'clock precisely, valuable FREEHOLD PROPERTY, advantageously situate at Ashford, opposite St. Michael's Church, about six minutes' walk from the railway station on the South-Western line, whence town is easily reached by a capital train service. It comprises a pair of substantially-built, semi-detached residences, distinguished as Nos. 1 and 2, Percy-villas, each containing four bed rooms, bath room, three reception rooms, and offices in the half basement. They stand back from the road, with gardens in front, and have large, well-planted gardens in the rear; No. 1 having stable and coach-house, with rooms over. Also about two and three-quarter acres of capital Building Land, approached by the formation of a new road, and capable of profitable development by a well-made road, which would give over 1,000 feet of frontage, affording excellent sites for the erection of villa residences, which are greatly in demand in this neighbourhood. Particulars may be obtained at the Mart; of Messrs. De Jersey, Micklem, and Son, Solicitors, 19, Gresham-street, E.C.; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, Auctioneers, 99, Gresham-street, E.C.

Edgware-road.—Important Freehold Block of Buildings, occupying an area of nearly 6,000 feet. With vacant possession.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL by AUCTION, at the Mart, on Wednesday, May 25 (unless an acceptable offer shall be previously made), a very valuable FREEHOLD ESTATE, most advantageously situate in the best part of that much frequented and first-class leading thoroughfare, the Edgware-road, between Praed-street and the Harrow-road, immediately facing Chapel-street, unquestionably one of the most successful trading positions in the western district of town. The property is distinguished by the numbers 227, 229, and 231, and occupies the grand and exceptionally large superficial area of 5,753ft., with a frontage of about 60ft., and a cart approach at the side, with undisturbed privileges of loading and unloading; comprising three capital houses and shops, with well-lighted warehouses and storerooms, admirably suited for any business requiring space and an advertising position; while, by subdivision into one, two, or three holdings, they would produce highly remunerative rents, even without any outlay in improvements, and thus become a safe investment, though so important and commanding is the site, that a handsome structure, consonant with the requirements of modern trade, would be appropriately placed thereon, while, for a music hall, theatre, or place of entertainment, the extent and position are equally available. Particulars of B. Gray, Esq., Solicitor, No. 93, Edgware-road, W.; of Mr. G. Scamell, 40 and 41, Upper Thames-street; of Messrs. G. Flint and Perks, Auctioneers, 18, Duke-street, Manchester-square, W.; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, E.C.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL by AUCTION, on the Premises, as above, on Monday, May 30, at 1 o'clock precisely, the whole of the appropriate CONTENTS of the RESIDENCE, comprising the well-made and handsome furniture, including all the necessary appointments for the bed chambers, dining room and library furniture in carved oak, drawing-room suite in satin and ebony, costly and beautiful cabinet, clocks, a rare assortment of ornamental china and glass, choice old china, library of books, cellar of wines consisting of about 100 dozs. well-known to the gentry of the neighbourhood, including Château Lafitte, bottled at the Chateau. Choice old vintage ports, champagne, claret, and sherry, and the usual effects of a gentleman's residence. Catalogues of Messrs. Barton and Pearman, Solicitors, 59, Kennington-road, Lambeth; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

Sussex, close to the Market Town and Railway Station of East Grinstead.—Delightful Freehold Residential Estate, for occupation.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, on Wednesday, June 8 (unless an acceptable offer shall be previously made), a delightful FREEHOLD ESTATE, beautifully situate in one of the most healthy and picturesque parts of the county of Sussex, one mile from the market town and railway station of East Grinstead, and near the new and direct line to London, now in course of completion. The property comprises a gentleman's residence, distinguished as Oakleigh, approached through its own miniature domain by a carriage drive with lodge at entrance. It stands on a bold elevation, embraces views of considerable extent and beauty; has been built within the last few years in a most complete and substantial style; and contains 12 bed and dressing rooms, principal and secondary staircases, capital entrance and inner halls, elegant and well-proportioned drawing room opening into conservatory, handsome and spacious dining room, cheerful morning room, and all necessary ground-floor domestic offices, the entire accommodation being arranged on two stories. The gardens are prettily laid out, there is a fine level tennis lawn, shrubbery plantations, gravel walks and parterres, with serpentine walks, an undulating lawn terminating in a beautiful dingle, through which are serpentine walks through a plantation of well-grown oaks and other trees, fine timber being also studded about the land, which extends over 45 acres, and is of a park-like and fertile character. There are complete ranges of out offices within an enclosed yard, a bailiff's house, and other conveniences. The estate is in first-rate order, the land in sound heart. There is capital society in the neighbourhood, which abounds with gentlemen's seats, and the district is well hunted and affords capital shooting. For a gentleman desirous of acquiring a country residence within short distance of London and the coast it will be difficult to find a more snug and complete abode of this character. Particulars of Messrs. Hastie, Solicitors, East Grinstead; Messrs. Hastie, Solicitors, 61, Chancery-lane, W.C.; Messrs. Karslake and Mortimer, No. 5, Great Queen-street, S.W.; at the Mart; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

City of London, Paternoster-row.—Corporation Lease.—Valuable Investment in first-rate Shop Property.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, on Wednesday, June 8th, at 2 o'clock precisely, very eligible long LEASEHOLD PROPERTY, for investment, comprising the recently erected and substantially-built premises, known as Nos. 5 and 6, Paternoster-row, in the City of London, at the corner of Panyer-alley, and having a return frontage thereto. They are built of brick and faced with stone, thus presenting a handsome elevation to the street, and contain—in the basement capital cellarage, on the ground floor two well-lighted shops, private entrance, and three spacious floors of offices or show rooms over. Let on lease for a term of 7, 14, or 21 years, at the annual rent of £700. Held direct from the Corporation of London for a term of 80 years from 1879, at the ground-rent of per annum £350. Particulars of S. B. Booth, Esq., Solicitor, 3, Gray's-inn-square; at the Mart; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

Particulars of B. Hallet, Esq., Solicitor, 32, Craven-street, Strand; of Mr. Cracknell, 116, Marylebone-road; at the Mart; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

Messenger's Aquatic Establishments, at Surbiton, Teddington, and Kingston, with the Freehold of the Island; the splendid Stock of Boats, with their season contracts, and unlimited scope for further extension of the trade; the Ferry from Surbiton to the Middlesex shore; also Freehold Houses, Land, and Ground-rents at Teddington.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, on Wednesday, June 8th, at 2 o'clock precisely, in lots, valuable PROPERTIES, as follows:—
Lot 1.—Messenger's renowned Boat Building and Hiring Establishments, comprising:—At Teddington.—An extensive Range of Freehold Property, advantageously situate on the river, facing the Lock, consisting of a very substantial structure of brick three stories in height, specially constructed for boat building and warehousing, brick boat sheds and timber ditto (a special shed being reserved for the Queen's barge, the rent paid for which is £40 per annum), landing stages and levelled beach; also a vacant plot of land adjoining, with dock, suitable for steam launch building. At Surbiton.—Ravens-ait, in the middle of the river, so well known by all boating-men, and being the head-quarters of the Kingston Rowing Club, who for the accommodation afforded them pay a rent of £140 per annum. It is about an acre in extent, has various and convenient erections, and offers facilities for storing any number of boats, there being now no less than 160 private boats paying rent. This ait is held for a long term, at a low ground-rent, together with the land along the river's bank, which is leased to the Corporation of Kingston and forms the delightful promenade and shrubberied walk between the road and river. The purchaser will have the privilege of acquiring the freehold of this unique property at a fixed price, by which all restrictions are removed, and an hotel could then be built on the island, which as a summer resort would be most enjoyable and attractive. Also West-field ferry across the river is also a source of profit. At Kingston.—Capital shed and landing-stage on the river, with suitable erections for warehousing and repairing and a lay-bye in stream at side.
Lots 2, 3, and 4.—Three Freehold Residences, known as St. Mary's-cottages, Ferry-road, substantially built and uniform in elevation, each contains five bed rooms, three sitting rooms, kitchens, &c., and gardens; all let, and of the annual value of £135.
Lots 5 and 6.—Two Freehold Ground-rents of £15 and £18 respectively, arising from plots of land in Manor-road, one forming the garden of a large private house, and the other secured upon Riversdale, a gentleman's residence and grounds.
Lot 7.—Valuable plot of Building Land, suitable for a villa residence.
The whole of the property may be viewed, and particulars obtained of W. Sturt, Esq., Solicitor, 14, Ironmonger-lane, E.C.; of R. E. Large, Esq., Solicitor, 13, South-square, Gray's-inn, W.C.; at the Inns in the neighbourhood; at the Griffin, Kingston; the Clarence, Teddington; the Southampton, Surbiton; at the Mart; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

Shoot-up-hill between Edgware-road and Hampstead.—First-class Freehold Building Estate, adjoining the Midland Railway and the Reservoirs of the Grand Junction Waterworks Company.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD are favoured with instructions from the Court of Directors of the Grand Junction Waterworks Company to SELL by AUCTION, at the Mart, on Wednesday, June 8th, at 2 o'clock precisely, in one lot, a very valuable and important FREEHOLD ESTATE, most advantageously situate in the parish of Hampstead, close to the Kilburn and Brondesbury Station on the Metropolitan Extension Railway and to the Edgware-road and Brondesbury Station on the North London Railway, and a few minutes' walk from the West-end Station on the Midland Main Line, which passes this property in a cutting, rising just beyond it on to an embankment; comprising nearly 12 acres of first-class building land, on the summit of Shoot-up-hill, fronting upon Mill-lane, and occupying a bold elevation, from whence extensive and beautiful views are obtained, extending on the one side to Harrow and the Berkshire hills, on the other to the heights of Hertfordshire, and towards the south over London to the Surrey hills, with the Grand Stand and Crystal Palace visible in the horizon. The land having been specially selected by the Grand Junction Waterworks Company from its great altitude for the purpose of their high-level reservoirs, Mill-lane is the leading thoroughfare from Hampstead to the Edgware-road, and the land affords facilities for the formation of other roadways, and this presents great scope for profitable development, being from its character and position admirably suited for the erection of the class of house most required in the district, which, from its salubrity, accessibility, and other favourable features, is daily increasing in popular estimation, while the land is also, from its conspicuous position and proximity to the main line of the Midland Railway, specially adapted as the site of a public institution, convalescent hospital, or other kindred object, for which pure air, good water, and easy communication with all parts of town are essential qualifications. Particulars may be obtained of Messrs. Bircham and Co., Solicitors, 46, Parliament-street, S.W.; at the Auction Mart; and at the offices of Messrs. Edwin Fox, E. H. Bousfield, and Edwin Fox, junior, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

Berkshire.—Compact small Freehold Estate, with great facilities for conversion into a Residential Property.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD are favoured with instructions from his Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster to SELL, at the Mart, on Wednesday, June 8, a compact and valuable FREEHOLD PROPERTY, pleasantly situate in the parish of Shawcum-Donnington, in Newbury district, in the county of Berks, on the river Lambourne, a picturesque and historic position, only one mile and a half from the Newbury Railway Station. The estate comprises 77a. 1r. 16p. of very fertile, arable, meadow, and wood land, with cottage and buildings, entirely in a ring fence and lying in the angle of the two main roads leading respectively to Oxford and to Wantage, a few minutes' walk from the church and the castle. The adjacent country is exceedingly picturesque. Snellsmore-common is close at hand, the rides and drives are very beautiful, excellent society is at hand, several seats, including Highclere, Lord Carnarvon's, are in the neighbourhood. The country is well hunted, and with such a combination of advantages it may safely be said to present great scope for the erection of a small residential estate. There are farm buildings and house upon the property. Possession of the whole may be had. Particulars in due course may be had of Messrs. Harting and Son, Solicitors, Lincoln's-inn-fields; at the Mart; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

Kent.—The Westminster Hospital Estates.—Valuable Freehold Landed Investment of 404 acres, with appropriate homesteads.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD are directed by the Governors of the Westminster Hospital to SELL, at the Mart, on Wednesday, June 15, at 2 o'clock, a valuable FREEHOLD ESTATE, advantageously situate in the parishes of Meopham and Luddesdon, in the county of Kent, about two miles from the Meopham and Sole-street Stations on the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway. It is distinguished as Dean Farm and Ham Farm, lying together in a ring fence, and comprising about 404 acres of beautifully undulating and fertile arable, pasture, and wood land, with a small part in hops. There are two homesteads, each with suitable farm-house buildings, and several cottages for labourers. Dean Farm is let on lease at £190 per annum, and Ham Farm, recently vacated, is worth £150 per annum. This estate offers a very sound landed investment, and there are several unexceptionally fine sites for the erection of a residence, the land being most picturesquely disposed, and the situation about 300 or 400 feet above the sea, and therefore exceedingly dry and healthy. Particulars and plans may shortly be obtained of Messrs. Trollope and Winckworth, Solicitors, No. 31, Abingdon-street; at the Mart; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, London, E.C.

By order of the Mortgagees.—Lancashire and Cheshire.—Fine Freehold Building Estates and Residences, on the verge of the cities of Chester and Liverpool, offering to the capitalist great scope for profitable development or subdivision.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD respectfully call attention to the two next following advertisements of FREEHOLD ESTATES at Chester and Liverpool, which will be offered to AUCTION, at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, London on Wednesday, June 15, at 2 o'clock, lotted in such large blocks specially suited for the formation of land and building societies, a certain income being at once available from existing rents. At the present time, when so much capital is seeking investment, the opportunities thus presented are especially worthy the consideration of those interested in the formation of public companies. Particulars and plans are preparing, and may shortly be obtained of the Solicitors and the Surveyors concerned in the conduct of the sale; and of the Auctioneers, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

By order of the Mortgagees.—Liverpool.—Fine Freehold Building Estate and Residences.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, London, on Wednesday, June 15, at 2 o'clock precisely, the SANDOWN-PARK ESTATE, Wavertree, near Liverpool.—A compact and unique Freehold Property, in one of the most delightful residential districts on the outskirts of the city, highly esteemed therein, and having constant railway and omnibus communication therewith, comprising 22 acres laid out as a park, through which wide and excellent roads have been formed, fenced in with iron railings; deep and well-made sewers, gas and water laid on, approached from two public highways, and having two lodge entrances, with a fine modern church on the estate, together with 19 detached and semi-detached residences, very substantially built, varying in style and design, but all admirably arranged for gentlemen's families. The bed rooms are light, large, and airy, bath rooms being fitted in all the houses, front and back staircases in many, and the reception rooms are very lofty and spacious, no house having less than three, and the domestic offices are on the ground floor in each house. For the most part let to tenants of position, some on leases and others on agreement and on yearly tenancies. They each have ample garden grounds, and several have stables and coach-houses; the aggregate gross rental is over £2,000 per annum, and the rental value of the uncovered land, at moderate ground-rents, about £200 per annum. The extent of uncovered frontage is about 3,500 feet. There is also a fine building estate adjoining, not yet laid out; comprising about seven acres contiguous to the park, the roads over which could be continued on this, and it would be thus comprehended in the general scheme. In its midst now stands a comfortable old house and garden, let with the land to one tenant.

City of London.—Very valuable long Leasehold Property, offering to trustees and others very sound investment, with the right of acquiring the freehold.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, on Wednesday, June 29th, at 2 o'clock precisely, a valuable long LEASEHOLD ESTATE, for investment, comprising the commanding and substantially-built premises, Nos. 106 and 108, Queen Victoria-street, in the City of London, having extensive frontages to Queen Victoria and Knightrider streets. It consists of spacious basement, well-proportioned shop on the ground floor with plate-glass front, and four extensive floors over, all well lighted and ventilated, with stone staircases and landings, water-closet and lavatory to each floor. It is all let on leases to responsible tenants, at rents amounting to £760, but rising to £810 per annum. Held direct from the Board of Works for a term of 80 years from the 24th June, 1872, at a ground-rent of £217 10s. per annum, and with the option of purchasing the freehold. Particulars of B. Hallett, Esq., Solicitor, 32, Craven-street, Strand; at the Mart; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

City of London.—Very eligible Freehold Investment.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, on Wednesday, June 29, at 2 o'clock precisely, a valuable FREEHOLD PROPERTY, being No. 8, Philip-lane, London-wall, advantageously situate in the heart of the Manchester Market, and adjacent to the improvements on the Zion College Estate, comprising a substantial warehouse, containing four capital light floors and basement. Let on a lease, which was granted in consideration of a large sum being expended by the tenant, and of which 17 years are unexpired, at the nominal rent of £32 a year, but now producing a rental of £150 per annum, the reversion to which will accrue on the termination of the existing tenancy, thus affording a very sound and remunerative investment. Particulars may be obtained at the Mart; of Messrs. Pearce and Jones, Solicitors, 8, Giltspur-street, E.C.; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

By order of the Mortgagees.—Cheshire.—Fine Freehold Building Estate, and Residences, Cottages, and other Premises, on the verge of the city of Chester, producing rents amounting to about £2,600 per annum, exclusive of the land.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, London, on Wednesday, June 15th, at 2 o'clock precisely, in four lots, the following important FREEHOLD PROPERTIES:—
Lot 1.—The Dee-Hills Estate, Chester.—A valuable Freehold Property, beautifully situate on the verge of this interesting city, sloping to the river Dee, above which it stands at a considerable elevation, commanding most extensive and picturesque views. It comprises about nine acres of building land, and has a frontage to Boughton of 470 feet, another frontage of 698 feet to Dee-lane, and 585 feet frontage to the river Dee, and lies exceedingly well for the formation of new roads, affording choice villa sites. There is a capital mansion on the ground, so placed that it could be retained with advantage if desired, and the gardens around are beautifully planted; together with two commodious, semi-detached residences, well placed at the corner of the property, with gardens; also 38 cottages, 12 with shops. The total annual value under present tenancies is about £1,200.
Lot 2.—The Forest-house Estate, in Foregate-street, Chester, comprising an old-fashioned family house, with large garden, four modern houses and shops, and 17 small cottages, occupying an area of about one acre, with three capital existing frontages and facility for forming a new road, the position being well suited for shops, together with 16 houses, shops, and cottages, comprising Down's-court and a piece of garden land in the rear, situate on the south side of Union-street, the whole producing rentals amounting to about £700 per annum.
Lot 3.—City-road, Chester.—A compact Property, for investment, having frontages to Russell-street and the canal side, with three shops and dwelling-houses, and spacious manufacturing premises, together producing a rental of £355 per annum.
Lot 4.—Christleton-road, Chester.—A beautifully-placed Estate, containing about three acres, and having capital high road frontages, well planted, sloping to the south and overlooking the river Dee, affording fine sites for superior residences. There is a cottage and outbuildings, and a block of five cottages with outbuildings and gardens. The present rents amount to about £110 per annum.
Particulars may be had of Messrs. Kendall, Price, and Francis, Solicitors, Union Bank-chambers, Lincoln's-inn; of John M. Nicholson, Esq., Solicitor, Grosvenor-chambers, Chester; of Messrs. Hunt, Stephenson, and Jones, 45, Parliament-street; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

Caen-wood Towers, Highgate.—The distinguished, beautiful, and renowned Freehold Residential Estate (described and illustrated in Bank's Mansions of Great Britain), which for its perfect taste, harmony of style, grand yet charming and attractive situation and general completeness may be said to be unequalled.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, on Wednesday, the 22d day of June, at 2 o'clock, if not previously disposed of by private contract (in consequence of the owner having acquired a country estate) this singularly choice and exceptionally beautiful FREEHOLD PROPERTY, known as Caen-wood Towers, Highgate, occupying a position which for accessibility from town and for the loveliness of its rural surroundings cannot be surpassed. The Houses of Parliament are within three-quarters of an hour's drive, the Bank of England about the same distance, and the opera-houses and parks are within easy reach. The principal entrance (that from the main road leading from Hampstead to Highgate) is through imposing folding gates, having an ornamental thatched lodge, thence a winding drive round the lovely grounds conducts to the mansion, a stately pile in the Elizabethan style of red brick and stone. It displays in its erection and every detail a refined taste and sound judgment, which, with ample wealth and matured experience, have combined in placing upon a spot on which nature has lavished charms of picturesque beauty a splendid home, replete with all that art and science can devise. It is seated on an elevated plateau commanding views over an undulating and finely wooded landscape, so charming as to be striking in any district, but in the neighbourhood of London fills the beholder with amazement. There is a porte cochere, surmounted by a noble tower, an object of interest from the neighbourhood around. An outer hall (having a marble floor and richly-sculptured chimney-piece) leading to an inner and truly baronial hall extending through the building, whence the grand staircase, with its magnificent stained-glass windows and marble pillars, conducts to the music gallery, in which is a fine organ. The statuary, fire-places, &c., display some fine work by the late H. Phillips, A.R.A., George Durham A.R.A., and Calden Marshall, R.A. The dado ceilings and cornices in the hall and most of the rooms are of solid oak, skilfully hand carved. There is on the ground floor a sumptuous suite of reception rooms, all unique in richness of adornment and perfection of arrangement and style. The drawing room is a work of exquisite art, its walls are hand painted in delicate tints, and the decorations are most elegant. The doors are of ebony, inlaid with ivory. The fireplace and cabinet are of ebony and marble. The dining room is of noble dimensions, having a ceiling of panelled oak, relieved with gilding, a superb fireplace in pure Elizabethan style, also in carved oak and rising to the ceiling. The billiard room, library, morning room, study, and gentleman's room are in perfect keeping, the picture gallery communicates with the dining room, terminates in a grand and delightful conservatory, forming a vista from the dining room of 120 feet. On the first floor are 15 best bed chambers and dressing rooms, with boudoir and several bath rooms, closets, &c., and on the floor above are secondary bed chambers and servants' rooms. The culinary and domestic offices are complete and sufficient to meet the requirements of the most distinguished entertainments. At a convenient distance from the mansion are the coach-houses and stables, admirable in their construction and arrangements. An octagon dairy, situate in a corner of the estate in a valley, forms a notable and picturesque feature. There are also a model farmery, bailiff's and gardener's houses, kennels, and like appurtenances to a country house. But, perhaps, the choicest feature of the estate is the surpassingly beautiful gardens, formerly those of two mansions (one belonging to and lately occupied by Lord Dufferin). These are large and varied, possessing the charm of an in-definite extent, while stately trees, splendid shrubs, rich bowers of rhododendrons, roses, and ferns abound, and with a dingle, miniature lake, sloping and levelled lawns, terraces, winding paths, and plantations of luxuriant evergreens form a singular combination of attractions and render the residence delightful in every season. There is a capital kitchen garden and range of glass-houses. It is difficult for a property of such a remarkable character and having so many features commanding special attention to be appreciated without personal inspection, but it may be safely asserted that this estate stands alone and unrivalled within a like distance of London. Descriptive particulars may be obtained of Joseph Harwood, Esq., Solicitor, No. 90, Cannon-street; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, No. 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

Norris, deceased.—By order of the Trustees.—City of London and Southgate. Eligible Building Site, close to the Metropolitan, North London, and Great Eastern Stations, in Broad-street and Liverpool-street, held on a Corporation lease, renewable for ever, at a nominal rent, and capital Freehold Villa Site.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, on Wednesday, June 29th, at 2 o'clock precisely, a very valuable PROPERTY, exceedingly well situate, and comprising the whole of Bell-square, Blomfield-street, Finsbury, close to the stations of the numerous railways which converge near to this spot. It covers an area of about 4,700 superficial feet, affording a capital site for the erection of offices or warehouses. It is held from the Mayor and Corporation of the City of London under a lease, renewable for ever (on payment of a moderate fine), at the nominal ground-rent of £7 10s. per annum. Also Two Plots of Freehold Building Land, situate in Chase-side-road, Southgate, together having a frontage of 64ft. and a depth of 250ft., affording an appropriate site for the erection of a pair of villa residences. Particulars may be had of Messrs. Potter and Sandford, Solicitors, 36, King-street; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

Mile-end.—Capital Block of Leasehold Property for Investment.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, on Wednesday, June 29th, at 2 o'clock precisely, a very eligible BLOCK of LEASEHOLD PROPERTY, capitally situate between the Mile-end-road and the Cambridge-heath-road, within a few paces of both and a short distance from the Whitechapel and Bethnal-green Railway Stations. It consists of 16 substantial, brick-built cottages, distinguished as Nos. 27, 29, 31, and 33, Cleveland-street; Nos. 1 to 5, Union-buildings; Nos. 5 to 8, Union-street; and Nos. 1, 2, and 3, Union-court. They contain three and four rooms each, with yards in the rear, and are all let to weekly tenants, producing a rental of £220 per annum, and held on a long lease at a moderate ground-rent, thus affording a sound and remunerative investment. Particulars may be obtained at the Mart; of Messrs. Gamlen and Son, 3 and 4, Gray's-inn-square, W.C.; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

Mortimer-street, Cavendish-square.—First-class Manufacturing Premises, specially constructed to carry heavy weights, with side entrance, affording great facility for carrying and unloading throughout the day, and first-rate ground-floor show room or warehouse.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD will SELL, at the Mart, on Wednesday, May 25th, very valuable LEASEHOLD PROPERTY, forming part of the Berners Estate, comprising a noble pile of manufacturing premises, Nos. 1 and 3, Mortimer-street, immediately facing the Middlesex Hospital, in the occupation of Messrs. Filmer and Son, by whom they are now no longer required, their manufactures being now conducted in other premises. The building is most substantial, each floor is supported on stout iron girders. There is accommodation for carrying on most extensive factory and warehouse operations, with a handsome show room or shop on the ground floor, and a dry basement for packing, while the mews at the side, into which there are two entrances, gives great facilities for loading and unloading at all times. The premises are particularly well adapted for an upholsterer and cabinetmaker, pianoforte manufactory, carriage warehouse, and the variety of trade purposes, for which it is difficult to find suitable accommodation in a first-class position at the West-end. Particulars may be obtained of Messrs. Young, Jones, Roberts, and Hale, Solicitors, 2, St. Mildred's-court, E.C.; of Mr. Walter Holcombe, Auctioneer, &c., 8, Orchard-street, Portman-square, W.; at the Mart; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

City of London, Gracechurch-street.—Highly important and extensive Freehold Estate, No. 64, Gracechurch-street, and 1, Fenchurch-street. Preliminary.

MESSRS. EDWIN FOX and BOUSFIELD are instructed to prepare for SALE by AUCTION, the valuable FREEHOLD PROPERTY, occupying one of the most important and commanding positions in the City of London, near the corner of Fenchurch-street, and almost facing Lombard-street, being No. 64 on the east side of Gracechurch-street and No. 1, Fenchurch-street, comprising the important superficial area of about 1,500 feet, the whole being covered by existing buildings, and therefore, free from control by surrounding ancient lights. The present erections do not utilize the ground, the extent and position well adapting the same for modern premises, while the commanding frontage to Gracechurch-street, and the additional advantage of an entrance from Fenchurch-street, adds greatly to its suitability for trading or professional purposes. Vacant possession will be given on completion of the purchase. Particulars may be obtained in due course of Messrs. Smith and Batchelor, Solicitors, Crooms-hill, Greenwich; and of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, 99, Gresham-street, Bank, E.C.

Stepney.—For Occupation or Investment.

MESSRS. DUNN and SOMAN will SELL by AUCTION, at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, E.C., on Wednesday, the 18th day of May, 1881, at 2 o'clock precisely, a capital LEASEHOLD DWELLING-HOUSE, known as No. 46, Portland-street, Commercial-road, E., close to the Stepney station, and let to a punctual paying tenant at £36 per annum; held for about 28 years unexpired from the Mercers' Company at a ground-rent of £2 per annum. Particulars and conditions of sale may be had at the Mart; of Messrs. Langton and Son, Solicitors, 37, Queen Victoria-street; and of Messrs. Dunn and Soman, Land Agents and Auctioneers, No. 27, Bishopsgate-street within, E.C., and at Tunbridge-wells.

Clapton-park.—Sound long Leasehold Property for Investment, situate about 10 minutes' walk from the Hackney Station on the North-London Railway.

MESSRS. DUNN and SOMAN have received instructions to SELL by AUCTION, at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, E.C., on Wednesday, the 18th day of May, 1881, at 2 o'clock precisely, FIVE long LEASEHOLD DWELLING-HOUSES, known as Nos. 6 and 7, Elderfield-road, and Nos. 52, 54, and 56, Pratt-road, Clapton-park; let to respectable tenants, and producing £130 per annum. Held for long terms, at moderate ground-rents. Particulars and conditions of sale may be had at the Mart; of Messrs. Thomson, Son, and Brooks, Solicitors, 62 and 63, Cornhill; and of Messrs. Dunn and Soman, Surveyors and Valuers, 27, Bishopsgate-street within, E.C., and at Tunbridge-wells.

Harrow-road, within 10 minutes' walk of the Westbourne-park Railway Station.

MESSRS. DUNN and SOMAN have been favoured with instructions to SELL by AUCTION, at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, Bank of England, on Wednesday, the 18th day of May, 1881, at 2 o'clock precisely, THREE attractive and well-built RESIDENCES, distinguished as Nos. 12, 13, and 14 Lancefield-street, Mozart-street, Harrow-road; two are let and produce £80 per annum, the other is in hand, the whole, however, are of the estimated rental value of £120 per annum. Held for long terms, at moderate ground-rents. Particulars and conditions of sale may be had at the Mart; of Messrs. Few and Co., Solicitors, 19, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.; and of Messrs. Dunn and Soman, Land Agents, Auctioneers, and Valuers, 27, Bishopsgate-street within, E.C., and Royal Kentish-buildings, Tunbridge-wells.

Order of Sale at the Mart, To-morrow, Tuesday, May 10, at 2, by

MESSRS. DEBENHAM, TEWSON, FARMER, and BRIDGEWATER:—
No. 1. GRAVESEND, Kent.—A commodious Freehold Family Residence, known as The Cedars, with good garden, and large piece of building land adjoining; stabling, &c., in all about 2r. 20p. The whole let on lease at £100.

Callow	Hill	Morris	Guido Schmidt
Danby	Hulme	Mote	L. Verboeckhoven
Drummond	Johnstone	Percy	Williams

May be viewed mornings of sale. Particulars of the second and third weeks' sale will be duly advertised. Catalogues of the entire stock (at 2s. 6d., or of each week separately at 1s.), to be had on the premises, or of Messrs. Foster, 54, Pall-mall.

Carlton-hill, St. John's-wood.—A comfortable Semi-detached Residence, with Garden, for 58 years, at £4 ground-rent (by direction of the executors of Mrs. Marchant, deceased), with possession.

MESSRS. FOSTER respectfully announce for SALE by AUCTION, at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, Lothbury, To-morrow (Tuesday), 10th May, at 2 o'clock precisely (unless previously disposed of by private contract), the LEASE of No. 8, Carlton-hill, a conveniently planned RESIDENCE, containing on the upper floors, eight bed rooms; on the ground floor, dining room, drawing room, library, hall, and lavatory; in the basement, morning room and domestic offices. Within a few minutes' walk of the Loudoun-road station (London and North-Western Railway); of the Marlborough-road (Metropolitan); and the route of the Atlas omnibuses. Particulars may be had of Messrs. Arnold and Co., Solicitors, 60, Carey-street, Lincoln's-inn, and of the Auctioneers, 54, Pall-mall.

In the High Court of Justice, Chancery Division.—Re A. de Laski, deceased: De Laski v. Rau.—Spacious Marine Residence, No. 2, Adelaide-crescent, Brighton, and extensive stabling, with possession.

MESSRS. FOSTER (with the approbation of the Master of the Rolls, the Judge to whose court this action is attached), will SELL by AUCTION, at the Auction Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, London, To-morrow (Tuesday), the 10th day, at 2 o'clock precisely, the spacious LEASEHOLD MARINE MANSION, No. 2, Adelaide-crescent, Brighton, which for beauty of situation (being en face the green sward of the Esplanade where all the rank and fashion congregate), and internal arrangements, can hardly be excelled by any house, even at this queen of watering places. The residence of attractive elevation has an extensive frontage to the sea, and contains numerous best and secondary bed rooms and bath room, a suite of three lofty reception rooms and boudoir on the first floor, a noble double dining room, study, hall, principal and second staircase, and unusually good offices; also the range of enclosed stabling, one of the best, most compact, and extensive in Brighton, being those known as the Holland Stabling in Holland-road, one door from the Western-road. The house and stabling are held by lease direct from the freeholder, for a term of which 35 years are unexpired, at a very inadequate rent, in consideration of an outlay made by the Lessee, the late M. De Laski. The purchaser will have the advantage of not being called upon to pay for the landlord's fixtures (which are of an expensive character), throughout the house and stabling, the same being scheduled to the lease. Printed particulars and conditions of sale may be had when published at the Auction Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, London; at the Old Ship, Brighton; of Messrs. Walters, Deverell, and Walters, Solicitors, 9, New-square, Lincoln's-inn; of Messrs. Arnold and Co., Solicitors, 60, Carey-street, Lincoln's-inn; of Mr. Thomas Sismey, of No. 11, Serjeant's-inn, Fleet-street; and of Messrs. Foster, 54, Pall-mall, who will give orders to view to principals only, and their Solicitors.
