

Voysey
Camden House

Durham S.E.

April 7. 1873

My dear Sir

I can hardly hold my pen for laughter over the lovely "Neo-Platonic jest" which my eldest daughter has just copied out for your amusement.
I know not who wrote it, and only hope I may be

The wish to have the privilege of sending it to you.

I state this hoping it also of asking your kind acceptance of my 6th Vol. just published.

By the side of the works of the Giants of Science, it looks small indeed;
but if it be an effort to reach babes the A.M.C.

4 multiplication Table of Religious Writers, it will not be altogether despised by yourself.

As I fear your health is none of the best, let me beg you not to take any notice of my letter, beyond a post paid to say the book has reached you.

Yours Dear Sir

Very sincerely
Charles Wesley