

Dear Sir,

According to your wish to receive all the letters, written by your father, I send you a copy of an article, which I published last week in our weekly paper "De Nederlandsche Spectator," containing parts of two letters, written to me by him in 1873.

I don't know, if you understand Dutch well enough to read my article. If not, and if you think you can make use of the letters, I will be glad to send you a translation of it.

I am, dear Sir,
Yours truly

M. D. Doedes.

Professor of History
at the School for Secondary Education,

Leeuwarden, Holland.

June 16th 1882.